

Petition To Stop Married Women In Public Positions

The first district to be filed by members of the Massachusetts Women's Political Club with the Secretary of State was the Fourth Middlesex. This organization is busy obtaining in various representative districts 200 signatures of registered voters necessary to put on the ballot the question of public policy intended to bar from employment in public service married women whose husbands are gainfully employed.

Far in excess of the required 200 were filed today for the Fourth Middlesex District with the Secretary of State's Office by Miss Florence Birmingham, President. This district comprises Wards 1, 2, 3 and 7 of Newton. These signatures were procured by the Middlesex County Branch of the Junior Affiliates of the Club through a committee headed by Robert E. Roche, 54 Capital st., and Patrick J. Zeolla, 22 Cook st., Newton. The filing of signatures covering numerous other districts has been delayed, according to Miss Birmingham because registrars of voters were giving priority to candidates' nomination papers, but after next week, with these out of the way, many more districts will be filed with the Secretary of State.

New Chestnut Hill Postoffice Soon

In the Boston postoffice Tuesday morning Postmaster Tague formally received the offer of a site for the $75,000 postoffice building to be erected on Middlesex rd., where the present postoffice has been located for about a half century. No other bid or offer on a site was received. The building will be erected under a grant from the Federal Government. Whether the building will be erected as a regular contract job or as a WPA project has not been decided. This will be the first Federal building to be located in the city of Newton, and strangely enough will be for the use of one of the smaller postoffice units in the city, but an office which serves not only a part of Newton, but also a part of Brookline. This accomplishment is due to the energy of Supt. Brennan of the Chestnut Hill postoffice, and also to the generosity and public spirit of a group of Chestnut Hill residents who donated the land for the site. This group was headed by Mrs. Everett Morris, Jr., of 481 Hammond st.

Telephone Co. To Have Newton Office

An application for a building permit was made at City Hall on Monday by John Hope, agent for the bank which owns the business block on Washington st., Newton, between Bacon and Peabody sts. It is proposed to make alterations at the store at the corner of Peabody st., which will cost from $5,000 to $10,000 so that the store may be occupied as a branch business office of the New England Telephone Company. The work will be done by the J. F. Fitzgerald Construction Co. of Boston. At present the business office for the three Newton exchanges is at 8 Babcock st., Brookline. The telephone company in the near future expects to start work on a large central exchange building at the corner of Washington st. and Central ave., Newtonville.

$3000 For Plans For New School

At the next regular meeting of the Board of Aldermen on August 22 a recommendation will be received from Mayor Childs asking for the appropriation of $3000 for plans of the new school which will replace the 84 year old Lincoln School and 54 year old Eliot School, the former at the corner of Thornton and Pearl sts., Newton and the latter at Pearl st., Nonantum. The appropriation would also pay for borings at sites being considered for the school. If the appropriation will be made, then the Mayor will appoint an architect to draw plans for the new building. It is estimated that the structure will cost about $200,000 and the land $35,000 and application has been made to the Federal Government for a PWA grant in connection with the project. If this application is approved, the grant would amount to 45 per cent of the cost.

Resume Work On Lagrange Street

Lagrange st., at Oak Hill, which is located in the city of Newton for about a third of a mile between the Brookline and West Roxbury sections, will soon be in better condition than it has been. Boston and Brookline in recent years widened and improved their sections of the street. Newton started last winter to improve its short section, but because of a delay in the receipt of funds from the State and Middlesex County, the work has been held up for months. Last Monday it was resumed, as the State has allotted $10,000 for its contribution, and the county $5000. Newton's share toward the project is $6000, which was appropriated at the last meeting of the Board of Aldermen.

Youths Who Took Car Arraigned

Two Boston youths who took an automobile without authority were arraigned in the Newton court last Friday. The car belonged to the stepfather of one of the pair and had been in dead storage. One of the pair, Robert Kahakalan, 16, of 332a Massachusetts ave., Boston, was charged with using the car without authority, driving without a license, driving an unregistered and uninsured car, and attaching to it plates issued for another car. He was placed on probation and then turned over to Boston policemen to face charges in that city. The plates used on the car had been stolen off another automobile.

The other youth, Charles Boyle, 17, of 364 Massachusetts ave., Boston, was arraigned on only one charge—using an automobile without authority. As he was on parole from the Lyman School, he was turned over to officers from that institution.

Chestnut Hill House Entered

Joseph Goldberg of 147 Woodchester drive, Chestnut Hill, reported to the Newton police last Friday that when he returned to his home after an absence of several days, he found that someone had removed a pane of glass by prying off the putty, and entered the house. Goldberg was not able to state whether or not anything had been stolen.

Veteran Letter Carrier Retires

John P. Maloney, for over 25 years a letter carrier at the Newton postoffice, was retired on a pension on August 1, having reached the age limit of 65 years. Mr. Maloney was appointed to the postal service on June 8, 1905, and was assigned to the Brookline postoffice. He came to Newton in 1913 and during his quarter century of service there delivered mail to the Hunnewell Hill section. He resides at 100 Harland rd., Waltham. His avocation has been swimming and he has been a regular attendant at the Newton Y. M. C. A. swimming pool since it was built, going there daily and sometimes twice a day. Harwood Again To Direct Chest Campaign

1938 Drive Is Scheduled For November 9-22

A. Leslie Harwood, Jr., president of the Newton Community Chest, Inc., has accepted the chairmanship of the 1938 Newton Community Chest campaign, it was announced yesterday. Mr. Harwood, who is a resident of Newton Centre, is a well-known Boston lawyer. He successfully led the 1937 Newton Campaign, which raised $196,600.00 in a two-week period, exceeding the goal by over $4,000.00. This year's campaign will be conducted November 9 to 22.

Pointing out that the business recession during the first six months of 1938 had placed heavier burdens upon Newton's social agencies, Mr. Harwood declared that only because of the success of last year's campaign had the fourteen Newton health and social agencies been able to meet the increased demands made upon them this year. "The goal for the 1938 campaign," he said, "will be set after very careful study by the Chest Budget Committee." "This committee, made up of able business men is in constant touch with the work of the agencies. Our goal will be the minimum necessary to adequately finance the work of our fourteen health and social agencies. Our campaign succeeded last year because of the loyal services of thousands of Newton citizens. We shall need their help again. Plans are already under way to build a campaign organization, which can quickly and economically raise the money needed to help the less fortunate, the sick and the youth of our city."

Mr. Harwood has long been active in civic affairs in Newton. He is a former trustee of the Newton Hospital and a former member of the Boy Scout Council.

Warren For County Commissioner

Charles G. Warren of Arlington, candidate for the Republican nomination for commissioner of Middlesex County has a long record of public service. A native of Framingham, Me., he has lived in Arlington for 32 years, is married and has two children. He is a lawyer by profession. In Arlington he served as a selectman for a year, superintendent of schools for 2 years, member of the School Committee 8 years, chairman of the Republican Town Committee, and a member of the Republican State Committee. He served as Representative to the Legislature from Arlington for 3 years, and was Senator from the 6th Middlesex district for 12 years. He has stood for progressive legislation and for economy. He was the father of the bills for the State highway affording the cut-off from Massachusetts ave., Arlington, to Concord ave., Belmont; for the Cambridge-Concord turnpike; and the parkway across the marshes in Medford and took an active interest in Boston Elevated legislation.

Charge Local Man With Manslaughter

Anthony Iarossi, 23, of 169 Chapel st., Newton, was arraigned in the Waltham court on Tuesday charged with manslaughter and driving to endanger. Iarossi is the driver of an automobile which on last Friday at a. m. hit Manuel Silva, 42, of Winthrop on Mount Auburn st., East Watertown. Silva received a fractured skull and other injuries. He died at the Cambridge Hospital on Sunday. As a result of an investigation, Watertown police secured the complaints against Iarossi.

Alderman Gaddis Praises Police For Promoting Safety

Alderman Maxwell Gaddis, chairman of the Traffic Committee of the Newton Board of Aldermen, sent the following letter to Chief Hughes of the Newton police in commendation of the work of the local police in helping to cause a great improvement in Newton's record as regards automobile fatalities and accidents this year. Alderman Gaddis' letter also contains an appeal to motorists and pedestrians to co-operate in reducing the number of accidents.

The letter follows:
August 2, 1938.
Mr. Michael T. Hughes,
Chief of the Newton
Police Department,
Newton, Mass.

My dear Chief:
May I take this opportunity of congratulating you and the Officers of the Police Department for the fine work you all are doing in helping to reduce accidents on the streets of our fine city? Also to congratulate the people of our city for the interest they have taken in Public Safety.

Newton has had but one fatal accident during all of the year 1938 to date. That accident was caused from speeding. For the past 121 days, we have not had a fatal accident in our city and this fine record is attributable largely to vigilance combined with common sense used by members of the Police Department in enforcing our traffic ordinances.

Pedestrians also have a large part in reducing accidents by being very careful in crossing streets. The public generally can be of great assistance by talking to the children of our city, asking them to be doubly careful in crossing streets and to not dodge from behind parked cars.

Those who drive automobiles can be of great assistance in reducing accidents, by reducing their speed in congested areas especially. If they will make it a point to drive with great care through our villages. If they will watch the traffic lights, and if they will come to a full stop at stop and enter streets.

All the above may be "old stuff" to most drivers and pedestrians, yet it is the non-observance of traffic regulations that causes the loss of lives, that causes crippled bodies, and anguish to those who must carry on the fight for existence. It has often been said that eternal vigilance is the price of success. Certainly in these days, eternal vigilance is the price of life.

The Police Department can be of great assistance in reducing accidents by calling attention to drivers regarding speed, regarding poor parking, regarding obeying traffic lights and stop signs. Eternal vigilance on their part again is the price of saving lives.

I am confident that every individual in our city who takes the oath and dons the honorable uniform of a Police Officer swears to himself that he will not only be an officer, but that he will be a real man and do his duty as he sees it and as most officers have families of their own, they naturally are thoroughly interested in saving lives, therefore we are confident they will use every precaution necessary to make our City a safe place in which to live.

Let us all then, the people of Newton, whether drivers of automobiles or pedestrians, co-operate with our Police Department and all other agencies in one great effort to eliminate accidents of all kinds in our beautiful city by practicing eternal vigilance, and by continuously talking to our children, urging them to be careful.

Attached is a letter to Motorists entitled "My Little Girl" which recently appeared in newspapers of many cities throughout the South. If everyone in our City could read "My Little Girl" we would think of our own little boy or girl and drive carefully.

Fearing sure that you and your men will carry on with safety as your men in your work, I am

Sincerely yours,
MAXWELL P. GADDIS.

MPG:D

"MY LITTLE GIRL"
Today my daughter who is seven years old, started to school as usual. She wore a dark blue dress with a white collar. She had on black shoes and wore blue gloves. Her cocker spaniel whose name is "Coot," sat on the front porch and whined his canine belief in the folly of education as she waved "good-bye" and started off to the hall of learning.

Tonight we talked about school. She told me about the girl who sits in front of her—the girl with yellow curls—and the boy across the aisle who makes funny faces. She told me about her teacher, who has eyes in the back of her head—and about the tree in the school yard—and about the big girl who doesn't believe in Santa Claus. We talked about a lot of things—tremendously vital, important things; and then we studied spelling, reading, arithmetic—and then to bed.

She's back there now—back in the nursery sound asleep, with "Princess Elizabeth" (that's a doll) cuddled in her right arm.

You guys wouldn't hurt her, would you? You see I'm her daddy. When her doll is broken or her finger is cut, or her head gets bumped, I can fix it—but when she starts to school, when she walks across the street, then she's in your hands.

She's a nice kid. She can run like a deer and darts about like a chipmunk. She likes to ride horses and

Object To Stables At Newton Center

The Newton Board of Health held a public hearing on Monday night at City Hall on the application of Robert Wilson who wants to build a stable on Warren st. and to keep 6 horses there. Wilson conducts an express business. Sixteen residents of the neighborhood appeared to protest against the proposed stable. They argued that the section is residential, and that the stable would be a health menace by bringing rats and flies.

Another hearing was held on the application of George Maxwell who wants to keep 10 cows in a stable on Hammell st. Maxwell formerly kept cows at the place but discontinued doing so several years ago. Manfred Taglienti of Beecher pl. objected, saying that when the cows were kept at the place, there was a bad odor from the stable. Mrs. Angelina Alterio of 22 Beecher pl. also objected. She stated that the odor from the cow stable had been so bad when the bovines were formerly kept there, that she could not work in her garden which abuts the barn. She also complained of the mooring of the cows. She admitted when questioned by Chairman Madden of the Board of Health that none of her family has been made ill by the alleged unhealthy conditions at the cow barn. Other residents of the neighborhood claimed that when Maxwell had kept cows in the barn their homes had been filled with flies and mosquitoes. The Board rejected Maxwell's petition, but laid that of Wilson on the table until it could obtain a ruling from the Public Buildings Department relative to the matter of zoning.

On Wednesday Building Commissioner Campbell gave the opinion that the use of the stable as proposed would be in violation of the zoning ordinance, quoting the following section:

"A business stable is a building or part of a building in which one or more horses belonging to the owner or tenant of the premises are kept and used in connection with the business of the owner or tenant for other purposes than sale, rent or hire."

Big Trailer Was Not Registered

As a result of an accident on Auburndale ave., West Newton on the night of July 13 when an automobile operated by Dr. Rocco Pavone of 259 Walnut st., Newtonville crashed into a big trailer which had been parked on that street, Louis Proia of 169 Crafts st., Newtonville, owner of the vehicle, and Attilio Proia of 109 Gardner st., Newton, who had driven it to the place where the accident occurred, were arraigned in the Newton court last Friday. Louis Proia was charged with permitting an uninsured and unregistered vehicle to be operated on public streets; and Attilio Proia was charged with having operated the vehicle. The trailer had been used to convey a tractor, and it was claimed that it was not properly lighted when the accident occurred. Arthur Scipione, a lawyer of 259 Walnut st., Newtonville was aided with Dr. Pavone when the accident occurred and reported that he had received head injuries.

Narcotic Pills Kill Newton Man

J. Warren Ferguson, 41, was found dead in his room at 34 Harrington st., Newtonville on Sunday morning by his landlord, Frank H. Taintor. Mr. Taintor told the police that about 4 a. m. Sunday he heard Ferguson snoring and observed that the light in the latter's room was on, so he went in and turned off the light. Later on Sunday when Taintor attempted to awaken Ferguson and could not, he summoned Dr. Theodore Clark who found that Ferguson was dead. Medical Examiner Gallagher was notified and reported that Ferguson's death was caused by an overdose of sleeping tablets. Ferguson was formerly engaged in the lumber business in this city and lately had been employed by a Maine lumber company as a salesman. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mildred Ferguson who resides in Waltham.

Disturbed Peace; 30 Days in Jail

Stanley Waldo, 39, of 404½ Centre st., Newton, was sentenced by Judge Mayberry in the Newton court on Wednesday to serve 30 days in jail for disturbing the peace. A drunkenness charge was placed on file. Patrolman Foley told the court that on Tuesday night shortly before midnight Waldo's young daughter ran up to him in Nonantum square and told him that her father had given her mother a terrible beating. Foley rushed to the scene and found Mrs. Waldo lying unconscious on the sidewalk in front of her home, and a large crowd of people standing about. He found Waldo in the house and placed him under arrest.

swim and hike with me on Sunday afternoons. But I can't be with her all the time—I have to work to pay for her clothes and her education. So please help me look out for her. Please drive slowly past the schools and intersections—and please remember that children run from behind parked cars.

Please don't run over my little girl.

Bartlett Queries More Policemen

City Solicitor Bartlett resumed his investigation of the Newton police department on Tuesday of this week when five members of the police force were ordered to report at the Mayor's office in City Hall to be questioned regarding the conduct of the department, and their knowledge of unprosecuted violations of the law (if any) in this city. Those who were interviewed on Tuesday included Captain Richard Goode, head of the detective division of the Newton police; Inspector Thomas Burke, and Patrolmen Sanford McLean, William Riley and Fred Reagan. On Wednesday there was no session of the investigation, but on Thursday Mr. Bartlett interviewed twelve members of the police department, included in the number who sweltered in the heat as some of them waited several hours to be interviewed by the City Solicitor were Sergeants Meehan and Sullivan, and Patrolmen Hoyt, Davis, Dwyer, Goddard, Dowling, Charles Jenkins, James Jenkins, Loughlin, Bagley and Joseph Green.

Some of the police officers spent but a few minutes in private session with the City Solicitor, so the inference is that they had little information to give him. Others spent hours with Mr. Bartlett, so the inference is that they either had considerable information to give or suggestions to offer. To date nearly 40 members of the department have been questioned by the City Solicitor. There are about 90 other men in the department.

More Burglaries In the Newtons

Two burglaries were committed in First National Stores in this city the first of this week. On Sunday night some one entered the store at 349 Washington st., Newton, by breaking a rear window. Cigarettes constituted the most of the loot. On Monday night the store at 69 Waltham st., West Newton, was entered and several cartons of cigarettes stolen.

On Monday it was discovered that the home of Arthur Bulling, 497 Boylston st., Newton Centre, had been entered and ransacked. The family has been away since July 27. While members of the household of Mrs. Isabelle McFarland, 33 Gate House rd., Chestnut Hill, were absent from the house on Monday noon for only an hour, someone broke a pane of glass at the rear door, entered the house and stole a camera, wrist watch and electric razor.

George Mills Given Testimonial

George Mills, recently appointed superintendent of the Newtonville postoffice, was tendered a testimonial by a group of friends at the Hotel Victoria last Saturday night. About twenty were present, including some of Mr. Mills' former associates at the Newton postoffice, and friends from Brighton and Newton. The guest of the evening was presented with a meerschaum pipe.

Newton Woman Nearly Suffocated

Mrs. Malvina Rottler, 67, of 4 Columbus terrace, Newton Highlands, was nearly asphyxiated last Friday afternoon at her home by fuel gas. Her son, Albert Rottler, who is employed at a factory in Newton Upper Falls, telephoned to his home about 4:30 and when his mother did not answer, he surmised that something was wrong at the house and hastened there. Forcing an entrance to the house he found his mother unconscious in the kitchen, overcome from gas which was escaping from the kitchen range. Rottler phoned for assistance and Dr. Joseph Seltzer of Irving st. responded. He was attempting to resuscitate Mrs. Rottler when the police ambulance arrived and the woman was taken to the Newton Hospital.

Defective Radio Causes Fire Scare

A telephone alarm to fire headquarters at 5:23 p. m. Sunday that there was a fire in the cellar of the house at 20 Shawmut park, Newton Upper Falls, occupied by Elizabeth Duval, caused Engine 7 to hasten to the place. After a search the firemen found that there was no fire in the cellar, but that smoke which had alarmed the occupants of the house, was caused by a defective condenser in a radio set.

Woman Fined $50, Drove Recklessly

Catherine E. Taylor of 32 Arapahoe rd., Auburndale was fined $50 by Judge Weston in the Newton court on Monday for driving a car so as to endanger the safety of the public. On April 29 a car driven by Mrs. Taylor collided at Greenough and Gilbert sts., West Newton with a car driven by Mrs. Julia Brennan of 15 Ardmore rd., West Newton. Mrs. Brennan's back and legs were injured. Mrs. Taylor said her view was obstructed by a hedge.

DOUBLE APPRECIATION

Announcement was made this week that A. Leslie Harwood, Jr., of Newton Centre had again accepted the chairmanship of the Community Chest campaign. Last year Mr. Harwood directed the annual community drive to a successful conclusion with a goal of $197,000 being exceeded by about four thousand dollars. Mr. Harwood, we feel sure, would be among the first to declare that the successful effort was due to the untiring and willing effort upon the part of several hundreds of workers who performed the actual solicitation. Unquestionably Mr. Harwood will again build up a working unit which will go far towards raising this year's quota yet we would point out that the ability to organize and to direct a group movement of this kind is a task which requires unusual ability. Newton is fortunate in having had Mr. Harwood's active interest in the Community Chest campaign of last year and doubly fortunate and appreciative that he is willing to assume the post of leadership again.

POLITICAL STRATEGY?

We wonder if there is any political strategy involved in a recent ruling of Federal authorities involving a change in eligibility of appointment of supervisors under the WPA setup? These supervisors who have charge of assignments of certified WPA workers have until the present time been appointed from the relief rolls at a rate of pay of one hundred dollars monthly. On August first Federal authorities abandoned the requirement of taking the supervisors from relief rolls. In other words, persons not in need of WPA or relief work may be selected. It would seem that this change of policy, particularly with the fall elections in the offing, opens the door even wider to political preferment in governmental capacities. Here again is additional evidence to support the contention of many of those interested in the apportionment of relief with merit as the first consideration that welfare and relief should be administered locally and not from Washington or some Federal district office which cannot possibly know local conditions.

Letters To The Editor

Newton, Mass., Aug. 1, 1938.
Editor, The Newton Graphic:
The sentiments embodied in enclosed clipping from the Boston Traveler, are those of many of my neighbors.

Suggest you copy same in one of your issues.

Very truly yours,
F. C. HOWES.

NIX ON BOMBS BURSTING IN AIR
Once in a while this newspaper receives letters from a Greater Boston doctor who must be a very unselfish person. He is forever thinking, ever so sensibly, about others. It has never been our good fortune to meet the gentleman. He asks every time that his name not be used.

The doctor's latest letter has to do with fireworks bombs—not merely on holidays, but during all sorts of celebrations, public and commercial. The doctor says the noise raises havoc in hospitals and is frightful to many elderly persons suddenly awakened from sound sleep.

"Why can't celebrators have fireworks without bombs?" our friend asks.

This good fight we have fought for years. Why any person or group should have the privilege of disturbing whole communities and perhaps causing illness and death is a question beyond the understanding of what we perhaps laughingly refer to as our minds.

Some wise city official is going to make a million friends and be called blessed if he gets up and puts a stop to noisy fireworks. Silent rockets and set pieces are far more beautiful than nerve-shattering bombs. As a matter of fact, such a silent and beautiful display probably would draw more people to the lawn-party rackets which the bombs usually punctuate.

In behalf of the aged and of the ill in hospitals, and for little children, we make this plea.

Rotary Club

In the early years of the Rotary organization, the custom prevailed of devoting time at each meeting for a member to tell about his own business. The Newton Club has in recent years revived the custom by asking certain members to address their fellow members on their work, and very interesting meetings have resulted. Such was the case last Monday when Orville Clapper, proprietor of the New England Toro Company, 1121 Washington st., West Newton, whose Rotary classification is Machinery and Equipment, gave a good account of the origin and history of the Toro Company which started in business in Newton 11 years ago. "Before the Depression" said the speaker, "99 percent of the business of my company was in machinery, which keeps the golf club turfs and other lawns in perfect condition, but this has now dropped to 35 per cent. The golf clubs have been terribly hard hit. But other departments of my business have been developed to such an extent that in spite of the depression, my staff of men has increased from the five with which we started to 15. Our work covers all of New England." Mr. Clapper also told about the other Toro companies throughout the country, the headquarters of which are in Minneapolis.

Mayor Childs who has charge of the programs for the month of August, before introducing the speaker of the day, told an interesting anecdote from his last campaign and also commented briefly on the recent inquiries conducted at City Hall, Dr. Charles Ausley presided in the absence of Paul Ellicker, club president, and Dr. Cecil Clark gave a brief report on the district meeting which he and four other members of the club attended at Worcester last week.

NO. 1—GENERALITIES

On Tuesday afternoon at five o'clock time expired for the filing of certified nomination papers for candidates for state, congressional, and county offices. These candidates have until five o'clock this afternoon in which to withdraw from the field and in such cases where party nominations are vacated duly organized city and town committees may nominate candidates to appear on the September ballot. Despite rumors and counter rumors in various political circles it is generally believed that there will be no withdrawals of major candidates.

Approximately twenty-five hundred candidates filed nomination papers when the deadline was reached and it is a certainty that the September ballot will set a new high mark in this respect. Chief interest of course centers in the state wide contest which Democrats seeking the endorsement of the voters for the six state-wide offices of governor, lieutenant-governor, secretary of state, treasurer, auditor and attorney general. In future articles we shall discuss at length these candidates.

Early in the week some concern was felt in several political camps over the new law requiring a candidate for state-wide office to record a certificate designating him as an enrolled member of the party nomination he seeks at least thirty days before the filing of certified nomination papers. Secretary of State sought a ruling from Attorney General Paul Dever as to the eligibility of Richard Whitcomb as a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor. Mr. Dever ruled that inasmuch as the law did not become effective until Wednesday, the day after nomination papers were filed, that the new law could not be applied to him. He also declared that if the legislature had intended the statute to apply this fall that it would have attached an emergency preamble to the bill making it effective on its passage on May 5th. Under this ruling the name of Mr. Whitcomb will appear on the September ballot as well as that of David B. Church of Brookline, a last-minute candidate for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor.

Among the many rumors in circulation is that Mr. Whitcomb will withdraw from the field but it is our opinion that the rumor is decidedly far fetched. During the past few months Mr. Whitcomb and his friends have shown considerable activity and spent considerable money in building up the Whitcomb candidacy and it does not seem reasonable to believe that all that must have been accomplished in this time will be tossed away. Another rumor which was current a short time ago was that Frederick Butler, county commissioner of Essex County, also a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, would withdraw but Mr. Butler himself spiked this with an emphatic announcement of his determination to remain in the field.

Thus the contest for governorship among the Republicans finds four candidates, Leverett Saltonstall of Newton, former Speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives for eight years, and Republican candidate for lieutenant governor two years ago, Whitcomb, Butler and William H. McMaisters, candidate for governor two years ago on the Union Party ticket who polled nearly 70,000 votes.

Four candidates for the Democratic nomination for governor remain in the running with the failure of Howard Haines Murphy to file nomination papers. Mr. Murphy, former Commissioner of Agriculture under Governor Curley and a former resident of Auburndale during which time he was an unsuccessful candidate for the Newton Board of Aldermen on several occasions, announced that he wished his supporters to vote for Curley. In addition to Governor Hurley, candidate for a second term, and ex-Governor Curley the Democratic aspirants are Lieutenant Governor Francis E. Kelly, who seeks promotion, and ex-Congressman and Ex-Mayor Richard M. Russell of Cambridge. Mr. Russell is a son of former Governor William E. Russell who was Chief Executive from 1891 to 1894.

It is also a possibility that the Union party, entitled to a ticket on the primary ballot through the nearly 70,000 votes which McMaisters received two years ago, will have a gubernatorial candidate although no nomination papers were filed. If there is such a candidate he will be obliged to run on stickers in order to have his name appear on the November ballot. In addition there are several candidates who have filed nomination papers as independent candidates. One of these is McMaisters, who will run under the designation as a Townsend Recovery Plan candidate. Two others are Charles L. Manser of Beacon Hill who was one of many candidates for Mayor of Boston last fall, and former State Senator William A. Davenport of Greenfield who will run on a tax reform platform. It will be remembered that it was Davenport's vote as a senator which broke a deadlock in the State Senate on the presidency of that body in 1935 after numerous ballots which resulted in the election of Senator James G. Moran. President Moran then gave chairmanships of several important committees to Democratic senators and at the close of the 1936 legislative session was appointed to the State Racing Commission by then Governor Curley.

There are numerous candidates for Lieutenant Governor in both parties. The Republican candidates are Dewey G. Archambault, mayor of Lowell; Horace T. Cahill, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and a former selectman of Braintree; J. Watson Flett of Belmont, chairman of the Selectmen of that town and prominent in many activities; Charles P. Howard, of Reading, former chairman of the State Commission on Administration and Finance for a number of years until replaced a few months ago by Governor Hurley's appointment of Patrick Moynihan; former Judge Kenneth D. Johnson of Milton, who has already caught the fancy of some voters because of his candid announcement that he is a candidate because he wants to be and not because he feels obliged to respond to the importunings of many friends and also because of his sincerity in resigning his position on the bench because of the district court system and in the propriety of judges retaining private practice; Robert Gardner Wilson, Jr., of Boston, Republican member of the Boston City Council for several years, and David B. Church of Brookline.

Aspirants for the Democratic nomination for the second highest office in the State number five, well known in parts of the state where they have been more or less active. They include Joseph C. White, of Jamaica Plain, former State Senator, appointed Director of the Telephone and Telegraph division of the State Public Utilities department, and a member of the Boston School Committee; former Representative Alexander F. Sullivan of Boston, whose campaign centers chiefly around lower utility rates and Boston Elevated matters; Edward T. Collins of Springfield, member of the Governor's Council from the eighth district; James Henry Brennan, and Mayor William P. Yoerg of Holyoke.

Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook is the only Republican candidate for state-wide office who is unopposed for the nomination. He will have as his November opponent one of ten Democratic candidates. Among these ten are Representative Katherine A. Foley of Lawrence, Mrs. Foley is the only woman candidate to file for a state-wide office. She is the author of the so-called "breach of promise law" which bans law suits of this nature in Massachusetts as the result of the passage of a statute this past spring. Her opponents include Joseph Santosuosso of Boston, John M. Bresnahan of Lynn, John H. Waller of Boston, William J. Ahearn of Lynn, William F. Sullivan of Boston, John T. Buckley of Medford, Henry Clay of Springfield, Frank Pratti of Somerville, and Charles Marsoline of Boston.

Treasurer William E. Hurley will not only face another Republican Hurley in the contest for the Republican nomination for that office but he will also have among his opponents the perennial candidate Alonzo B. Cook of Boston, former State auditor and blacklisted Republican. John J. Hurley of Revere and Wilfrid W. Lufkin, Jr., of Boston are the other Republican aspirants. There are eight candidates for the Democratic nomination including Representative Daniel J. Honan of Winthrop, Owen Gallagher of Boston, William H. Burke, Jr., of Hatfield, Ernest J. Brown of Boston, John F. Harkins of Needham, William F. Barrett of Lowell, John J. McGrath of Boston, and Joseph W. Doherty of Brookline.

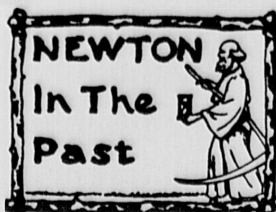

The auditorship race finds Republican nominee of 1937, Russell A. Wood of Cambridge opposed by Carl D. Goodwin of Boston on the Republican side and present Auditor Thomas H. Buckley, candidate for another term, opposed by John J. Barry of Everett and Leo D. Walsh of Boston on the Democratic side.

Clarence A. Barnes of Mansfield, who sought the primary endorsement of the pre-primary convention at Springfield two years ago but lost out to Judge Felix Forte of Somerville, is one of three Republican candidates for attorney general. The others are Howe Collidge Amee of Cambridge and Frank F. Walters of Boston. The present attorney general, Frank P. Dever of Cambridge, is unopposed in the Democratic party for a third term nomination.

Highlights in the congressional campaigns are featured by the assurance of another term in Congress from the fifth district for Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers as the Democratic organization conceded her the place by offering no opposition nominee. All fifteen of the Massachusetts congressmen are seeking reelection. In the 11th district no Republican candidate filed papers but Thomas A. Flaherty of Charlestown who won the special election held following the resignation of Congressman John P. Higgins to become Chief Justice of the Superior Court of Suffolk County, will have considerable opposition, including that of State Senator Joseph Langone. In the ninth district of which Newton is a part and a major factor Congressman Robert Luce is opposed by Edward Rowe of Cambridge for the Republican nomination. Mr. Rowe was unsuccessful in his campaign two years ago after a late start but this year has organized considerable support during the past few months. It is expected that Congressman Luce will begin his active campaign for reelection shortly after Labor Day although many of his supporters are already doing considerable preliminary work in his behalf.

In this same district there is considerable question as to the outcome of the race for the Democratic nomination. Former Alderman Dennis M. Cronin of Auburndale is a chief contender as is Thomas H. Elliot of Cambridge, a grandson of President Elliot of Harvard and a co-author of the Social Security Act. It is conceivable that in this contest there may be national significance to the Democratic party in the endorsement or defeat of a pro-New Deal candidate as Mr. Elliot must be regarded because of his Washington interests during the past few Rate of taxation for Newton for 1883 is $15.40; an increase of $1.20 over last year.

The sheds by the Old Unitarian Church at Newton Corner are all being torn down, as well as the platform on the North side of the railroad, preparatory to the laying of the fourth track.

A man, who said he was from Providence, hired a team last Saturday from H. C. Daniels' livery stable, and for some unknown reason has not returned it yet.

On account of work on the new North track on the B. & A. railroad, the crane from which the Western mails was snatched by the railroad mail trains has had to be temporarily removed.

A number of people are aggrieved at the action of the B. & A. railroad in closing all the cross-ways from Washington st. across the tracks. It is claimed that the crossing from Richardson st. to Washington st. cannot be legally closed as it has been used over 20 years.

H. M. Burt, editor of the GRAPHIC and also editor of "Among the Clouds," while in the office of the latter paper on the summit of Mount Washington, last Saturday evening was struck by lightning and severely injured. He was standing between the office table and the compositor's frame when he was struck in the back by lightning and knocked down. The shock paralyzed his limbs. Three other persons were standing near, two of them being affected. Two hours were spent in effort to restore circulation to Mr. Burt's limbs before being effective. He is still suffering from the results of the shock. Thunder storms at the summit are very rare. They usually occur at a lower altitude.

That Hon. E. A. Morse of Canton is a popular speaker in Newton was proved by the large audience which gathered to hear him at the open-air meeting of the Y. M. C. A. on the bank grounds at Newton last Sunday afternoon. Next Sunday Messrs. Hawkins, McCullough and Pond of Boston will relate their terrible experiences with rum and their marvelous deliverance from the power of the monster.

One of the new branches offered by Lassell Seminary next year is Phonography, taught practically by one of the best reporters in Boston. A knowledge of phonography would open many positions to young women. Another new branch at Lassell is military drill, it being believed that nothing is quite so good for erect bearing and graceful carriage.

The Aetna Mills at Bemis are busier than for some time and will probably resume full time in the near future.

Business at the Nonantum Worsteds Mills is looking up and they are so full of orders at present that they are arranging to run on extra time. This will be good news for people of the vicinity.

It is evident that the free-trade movement has not alarmed the proprietors affected by the trade of the Crookinsley Mill at Newton Lower Falls as he is now putting in two new ginning machines.

Officer Bosworth's activity in capturing the two Waltham men who sneaked away on their bicycles last Monday after colliding at Newtonville with Mr. Fay's horse, without waiting to ascertain the extent of the accident, is commended by citizens generally.

The "Newton Ideals," champion 17½-year-old club of Massachusetts, will play the strong Elmwoods of Allston at the Magnolia grounds in Newtonville on Saturday afternoon.

Thomas Woodfin, night man at the Walnut st. crossing on the B. & A. at Newtonville, narrowly escaped serious injury last Sunday when he went out to ride with his family. While passing through Newton Highlands he was run into by another horse and carriage. The horse jumped into Mr. Woodfin's carriage, badly damaging it. The shaft of the carriage passed directly in front of Mrs. Woodfin and her child.

Powers' Paragraphs

There are some very interesting angles in the contests for State political offices this year. Take for instance that for the Democratic nomination for Governor. The present incumbent, Governor Charles F. Hurley, rode into office on the Roosevelt and Democratic wave labelled as a high-minded, non-political young man. He was contrasted with his predecessor—that very practical politician, James M. Curley. But, since Governor Hurley assumed the office of Chief Executive of Massachusetts he has proved himself to be quite politically inclined, despite his repeated declarations of being actuated by high ideals. Lacking the acumen of Mr. Curley, he has made many political enemies, not only among Republicans who formerly supported him, but also among many of his erstwhile Democratic admirers.

Opposing Governor Hurley for the nomination are two men who possess to a high degree the color which the Governor utterly lacks. Lieut. Governor Francis E. Kelly is erratic, but he has that pugnacity which attracts many voters, more so among the Democrats, than amongst the Republicans. Kelly was regarded as a sort of a joke candidate two years ago, but he flabbergasted the big-shots of the Democratic party when he defeated their candidate for the nomination, and then he gave the Republicans a heartbreak when he won a victory over the popular and capable Leverett Saltonstall. Kelly will have to be reckoned with in the coming primaries.

The third Democratic contestant for the nomination for Governor is the brilliant and amazing James M. Curley. Only a man of Curley's indomitable fighting spirit would have the nerve to again participate in a major battle in the political arena following the defeats he received in his contests for United States Senator by Lodge, and for Mayor of Boston by Tobin. Since these two defeats it has been commonly remarked that "Curley is dead politically." This same remark regarding Curley was made several times in the past. But, Curley proved to be a very live corpse. And in the coming battle royal it is more than probable that he will again score another comeback. In addition to his large personal following in Boston and throughout the State, Curley is still strong with the labor element. His incisive attacks on Governor Hurley's feigned and belated solicitude for the unemployed, are more than offsetting the campaigning for Hurley which has been done the past few weeks.

Edward M. Rows of Cambridge, who opposed Luce for the Republican nomination two years ago, is again opposing him this year and has been conducting a well organized campaign. Rowe will receive considerable support from the younger Republicans who believe that Mr. Luce has reached an age at which he should retire in favor of a younger and more energetic man. The two leading candidates for the Democratic nomination for Congress in this district are Dennis M. Cronin of this city and Thomas H. Elliot of Cambridge. Cronin, a native and lifelong resident of Newton, was for many years employed by the Boston & Albany Railroad. Following his service in the United States Army during the World War, he studied law nights, was admitted to the bar, and several years ago resigned from his position with the railroad to devote himself exclusively to the practice of law in this city. He served for 5 years as a member of the Newton Board of Aldermen, but did not run for reelection last year. Since Mr. Cronin announced that he would be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress, he has been conducting a vigorous and well-organized campaign, and has built up a large following throughout the district.

Thomas H. Elliot has been interested in politics since his boyhood days. A young man of attractive personality, like Mr. Cronin, he possesses both energy and ambition. Although Elliot's environment might well have led him to join the Republican party, he espoused the principles of Thomas Jefferson during his college days at Harvard, and was president of the Democratic Club while in law school. When he became of voting age in years. Cronin and Eliot are but two of seven candidates, the remaining five of whom, like Eliot are Cambridge residents. Thus with six Cambridge citizens in the race the vote in that section of the district may be well split up thus leaving the ultimate winner the candidate who can garner the most votes from the remainder of the district.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Herbert Hitchen, minister of The First Unitarian Society in Newton, in the presence of members of the immediate families.

The bride wore her mother's wedding gown. She was attended by her sister, Miss Elizabeth Best. Mr. Macdonald's best man was his brother, Udolpho Snead Macdonald, of Montclair.

Local interest may develop to a high peak in the contest for the Republican nomination of Governor's Councillor from the third district. Frank A. Brooks, candidate for a third term, will be opposed by Seth Arnold of Boston and by Thomas Morahan of Newton. Mr. Morahan moved to Newton within the past two years and resides on Tremont st. Among seven Democratic candidates is former Alderman James P. Atkins of Newton.

State Senator Arthur W. Hollis, prominent candidate for a sixth term to a seat in the upper branch of the State Legislature, has primary opposition from Maxham E. Nash of Framingham. With Newton comprising more than half of the first Middlesex senatorial district, from the viewpoint of Republican voting registration, it is generally conceded that a Newton candidate in good standing has little concern over defeat from a candidate from another part of the district which extends through Weston and Wayland to Framingham and Marlboro. Joseph J. Sleeper of Framingham will be the Democratic nominee.

One of the most interesting local contests is that in the fifth Representative Middlesex District where Representative Douglas B. Francis and Clarence S. Luitwieler are opposed for the Republican nomination by Aldermen Paul N. Goddard and John Temperley. No Democratic candidate has filed so that the Republican nominees can devote their political activity to Republican party affairs after the primaries. This district comprises Wards 4, 5 and 6 of the city of Newton.

In the 4th Middlesex Representative District, comprised of Wards 1, 2, 3 and 7 of Newton present Representatives William B. Baker and Warren K. Brimblecom seeking re-election are opposed by Robert G. Lawrence of Newtonville who has been active among the young Republicans in recent years.

On the Democratic side, ex-Alderman Alfred Guze of West Newton, unsuccessful candidate for the House on three nominations, Republican, Democratic and independent, in 1937 and Robert G. Allen of Newton will receive the party nomination without opposition and will go on the November ballot.

This practically completes the political picture, as it now exists with the exception of the various county offices which will be discussed at some length in the near future as will the contests of major local importance and significance.

NEWTONVILLE RESIDENCE SOLD

Alford Bros. report that final papers have been recorded on the sale of a pleasing Colonial house, situated on the easterly slope of West Newton Hill, at No. 59 Walden st., Newtonville, Mass. Mr. and Mrs. Philip M. Wilbert, of Cambridge, are the new owners who are already occupying the property. The title was given by Mrs. Emily Davenport of England. The property consists of a nicely-planned 7-room frame house, with an open porch, a sun room, and a one-car basement garage. Approximately 8700 square feet of well-landscaped land makes this home a delightful one. For tax purposes, the real estate is assessed at $2200 by the City of Newton.

"In Flanders Fields"

"In Flanders Fields," written by Col. John McCrae, a Canadian medical officer, has been quite generally ranked as the greatest poem inspired by the World war.

The first uniform census of England was taken in 1801 and showed a total population of 8,892,536.

Annual Circus At Camp Day

More than one hundred parents of campers witnessed the seventeenth annual Camp Frank A. Day circus on last Saturday, held on the ballfield of the Camp. From the moment that Ringmaster Prescott Coan gave the signal for the parade to wind its way to the center of activity through the various acts prepared by the campers, there was fun for all. Parents enjoyed the show to the full, for earnest efforts by the various committees in charge made the event one of excitement and thrills.

A ten piece band, organized by Taylor Smith and David Ashton, led the parade and filled the air with martial music during the course of the march. Following next in line were the "wild animals," manufactured by Professor Daye of the Nature staff, but which were later seen to be campers in disguise. Gymnastic exhibitors and Indians, clowns and freaks, all were in the line of march, and lent their peculiar steps to the amusement of the onlookers. After completing a turn about the ring, the participants were dismissed for the mid-way show which was under way for the ensuing half-hour.

Many were the possibilities for the guests to test their skill on the mid-way, from nailhammering to tossing a ball at sawdust cats set up at a short distance from the thrower. One of the most difficult of feats was the concession operated by Dick Wright and Colby Ellis, with several cans placed in the ground and the chance-takers endeavoring to roll small rubber balls into the openings. Prizes were awarded to the stands which gained the largest profit; first place to the concession of Kenneth Chesley, Dick Karb, and Walter Stone. Second place went to Donald Berns, John Neilson, and Dick Lane, while Leslie Beeten, Charles Eddy, and Bill MacVicar won third award.

Centers of great activity were the two tents which contained the side-show and the chamber of horrors. In the former under the direction of Jack Hancock, were a snake-charmer in the person of Howard Bruya; a wild man with club and grotesque actions played by Dick Higgins; a fat lady symbolized by Tom Whittingham with the aid of numerous pillows; George Roope as the bearded lady was astounding onlookers for half an hour; while Tom Thumb and his wife, portrayed by Billy Kepner and Bobby Cashin, had their share of admirers. The glass-eater, Chilson Buchanan, astounded one and all with a demonstration of this art, and had many calling for the doctor. A real Barker, Ed Hill, lured the unwary into the tent to witness these feats, and to him must go credit for his novel methods.

Dan Holmes chamber of horrors attracted more than seventy-five patrons who were well rewarded when the first act appeared on the improvised platform. Too horrible to picture for the uninitiated, suffice to say that the acts were more than horrible in several ways, depending on the viewpoint of the eyewitness. Taking prominent parts in this show were Gordon Gifford, Gerald Axelrod, Donald Craig, Samuel Cutler, Dick Bramhall, William Kaiser, Walter McGill, Godfrey Chater and Gardner Brown.

With a flare of trumpets the main show, under the direction of the Ringmaster, made an auspicious start with animal acts guided by Professor Daye. The features of this act were the egg-landing demonstration by a strange, acrobatic bird, and the orange-eating prehistoric dinosaurs. Led from the arena the animals were sent to their summer quarters in the nature museum, and their own tents.

They followed in well timed order clever tumbler, led by Alan Smith of West Newton, who gave several thrilling personal demonstrations, chief of which was the barrel act, a favorite of Camp Day boys. Sharing in the applause of the act were Bobby and Donald Cashin, Gardner Heger, and Sid Pond. A pyramid group, developed by Bill Fleming of Sarasota, Florida, performed six tableaux which contributed much to the show. Little Douglas Berns, the top man in each pyramid, was the focal point of interest when he climbed to the gradually increasing heights. Stanley Sumner was the assistant-in-charge of this act.

Two pageants, one by the Midget camp and the other by the Junior camp, pictured incidents of Indian lore which occurred in the territory about Camp Day. The Midget pageant, directed by Dick Kelley of Watertown, included twenty boys, and exemplified an Indian council fire where the warriors deliberated an attack upon the encroaching colonials. Mr. Jerry Sullivan of Newton selected an incident from the book "Paradise" written by Esther Forbes, in which Fore-thought Fearing, the Canaan minister, is captured and by forced march is brought to the hills of Brookfield. The campers showed the incidents surrounding the capture and the attempt of his wife, Jazan, to secure his freedom. These pageants served to strike a dramatic note in the Big Show to the delighted reaction of the spectators.

The Seniors, led by Prescott Coan, gave two exhibitions modeled after the competition prevalent in many colleges, when freshmen vie against sophomores for possession of a flag. Great fun resulted for the competitors, and much amusement for spectators.

No circus is truly successful without clowns, and Camp Day circus was fortunate in the supervision of this department. Roger Cotting of Newton gathered together the best laugh-provokers of the camp, and delivered a show that was worthy of Big Name circus. Imitations of tumbler, pantomime at its best, and to close the act the traditional blazing building with the clown fire department rushing to the scene, only to find that the hose leaked, all were included to tickle the boy-campers.

The final act of the day was reserved for the waterfront where Chief Hess had planned a watermelon race

ARCHERY

The second archery tournament of the season was held last Saturday morning at the Newton Centre playground. Of those who have departed for vacations, Winifred Smith and Althea Goodwin were unquestionably missed the most. They are two very fine archers. However, as day by day some children go away for their vacations, others come to take their places. We are very happy that Lois Jenks has returned, for she, too, was an outstanding archer last season.

On Saturday, the youngest children who attend the classes each morning were given an opportunity to take part in the tournament. Each one shot 30 arrows from 30 yards. Connie Fields took first place with a score of 61; Walter Greene, second, with 35; Felice Edelman, third, with 11; Arthur Edelman, fourth, with 7; and Eleanor DeStefano, fifth, with 6.

Following this the older boys and girls shot 60 arrows from the 40 yard line.

Scott Doten, a junior member of the Newton Archers Club, came in first with a score of 46-216. Lois Jenks, in this first tournament of the season for her, placed second just five points less than Scott, with 53-211. The remaining participants scored as follows:

Sadie MacIsaac	39-190
Dunsmore Walsh	41-172
Billy DeStefano	36-150
Edith Shapiro	31-129
Richard Hickey	31-120
Dorothy Hickey	27-94
Arthur Abramson	19-71
Josephine MacIsaac	14-60
Dorothy Gilman	16-55
Helen Weise	13-34
Betsy Cushman	5-25
Carol Walsh	3-15

Sugar Fetes Baby

To celebrate the birth of an heir-presumptive to the throne, every home in "Tivapudrum, India, received a gift of a cupful of white sugar. Carloads of the sweet passed through all streets and stopped at each house. Distribution of sugar is an ancient Indian custom in celebrating births.

Rowing as U. S. Sport in Nineteenth Century

Rowing began in the United States early in the Nineteenth century, but did not become popular enough for mention in print until 1811, when a race between a boat owned by the Mercantile Advertiser and another whose owner was merely a "Mr. Snyder," was mentioned in an advertisement in a New York paper. This sport became very popular during the 1820s. Each boat had its host of followers who bet on the outcome of various races. Some such contests drew crowds of 50,000 persons, according to a writer in the Detroit News.

One of the first clubs to be organized was the Castle Garden Boat club established in New York in 1834. The Atlanta Boat club was formed in New York in 1848 and for some time remained a dominant power in rowing. Other early clubs included: the Union Boat club of Boston, organized in 1851 and in 1858 the "Schuylkill Navy" was created in Philadelphia by a merger of the Keystone, University, Excelsior, Bachelor and other boat clubs in that district.

In 1843 Yale established rowing, being the first American university to do so. Harvard followed six years later. Intercollegiate rowing did not start until 1852, when the crews of Harvard and Yale raced on the Connecticut river at Springfield, Mass. Harvard was the victor. From 1864 to 1870 seven such intercollegiate regattas were held, with Harvard winning five and Yale two. In 1871 the famous Rowing Association of American Colleges was formed and by 1929 there were 160 rowing universities and clubs functioning in the United States.

His European tour is being made for the prime purpose of studying beauty culture in foreign countries and Mr. Albert will embark at Liverpool and return to Newton about October 12th.

AROUND THE WORLD CRUISING STEAMER TO SAIL ALONG EDGE OF SHORELESS SARGASSO SEA

To sail along the edge of the shoreless Sargasso Sea is a unique feature promised to passengers on the Franconia cruise around the world, much of the voyage being through the Southern Hemisphere, the steamer sailing from New York on January 5, 1939.

This mysterious sea, which lies to the east of the Greater Antilles, was up to 1910 a source of worry to navigators. In that year Sir John Murray was swept away by Sir John Murray, who had been sent out by the Norwegian Government to explore it. He did, and his report exploded its grim reputation.

Sir John said that the Sargasso Sea, though thin in sea weed now, really stretches from the east bank of the Gulf Stream, off the coast of Florida, to a point half way across the ocean to Africa; that the parallel 28 degrees north latitude and the parallel 60 degrees west longitude pass through the center of it.

He found that the sea is situated in the North Atlantic "whirl," which is caused by the movement of the Gulf Stream, the West Wind Drift, the Canaries Current and the North Equatorial Current. Thus the Sargasso Sea is a product of its environment and of necessity lies where it is and functions as it does.

Not the "Graveyard of the Atlantic"

The belief of the ages that the sea is the "Graveyard of the Atlantic" is now known to be as false as it is ridiculous. Few ships have been wrecked or stranded in its quiet waters. It is probably the safest region of the entire Atlantic.

The Franconia will skirt or sail through this sea on her way to Trinidad, the first stop on her around-the-world cruise. She will sail through the Atlantic to the eastward of the West Indies—the Greater and Lesser Antilles.

The fear of the Sargasso Sea dates back for more than 2000 years. Aristotle wrote about its perils. Before his time Phoenician mariners brought back stories of great fields of sea-plants which were a menace to ships. In the fifteenth century a merchant of Cadiz sent a galley a hundred leagues westward and east winds swept it into this region of weeds and calms, from which it was with much difficulty freed.

Columbus Got "Stuck" in It

Christopher Columbus had heard of the Sargasso Sea before he set out from Palos, and plunged into it on his way to San Salvador in September, 1492. He named the phenomenon "The Sea-Weed Meadows."

As he sailed slowly on, the weeds grew thicker and thicker until on all sides spread out what appeared to be a green level plain.

Columbus took soundings but could not find bottom.

His compass needle went wrong, no longer pointing to the Pole Star, but to the northwest.

His ships were held compassed by this sea, which was covered with weeds as far as the eye could see—a seemingly inundated meadow.

After days of drifting the ships came out into a clear space where the water was as still as a mirror. It was so quiet that it was stagnant.

As mutiny mounted among the crews, a breeze came out of the south-west and Columbus escaped from the Sargasso Sea after having been entrapped in it for nearly two weeks.

The Name is Portuguese

The Portuguese with Columbus named the sea Sargasso because the weed resembled the herb sargasso, which grows in the wells of Portugal. The weed lies upon the water in a single layer, bits of it being frequently visible in the Gulf Stream to the east of the United States. It has no organs of attachment, simply floating on the surface of the sea.

Allston Youth Says He Was Injured

Last Friday evening Edgar Hallett of Grantland rd., Wellesley Hills, reported to Newton police headquarters that he had received a letter from an attorney claiming that Daniel Farnese, 20, of 153 North Harvard st., Allston had received injuries the preceding Monday night when he was hit by Hallett's car. Hallett told the police that on the evening of July 25 he was driving along Watertown st., Nonantum when at the corner of Adams st. a youth jumped off a truck and was hit by the front fender of the Hallett's car. At that time, according to Hallett, the youth stated he had not been injured and only gave his name and address after persuasion.

Automobile Accidents

A car driven by Alfred Smith of 213 Adams ave., West Newton hit a tree on Walcott st., Auburndale at 10:45 p. m. Monday. Virginia Smith of Webster Park, who was riding in the car, received slight injuries. The car was badly damaged. Smith told the police that the car hit a rough spot on the street and skidded.

Kenneth Morrell, 10, of 306 California st., Nonantum, was slightly injured Saturday afternoon when the bicycle he was riding collided with a car driven by Thomas Lombard of 347 Elliot st., Newton Upper Falls. The accident occurred at Watertown and Bridge sts., Nonantum.

A car driven by Peter Gherazze of 55 Lincoln st., Newton Highlands, hit a tree opposite 51 Austin st., Newtonville, on Sunday afternoon, when a front tire burst. Two occupants of the car received slight injuries.

Cars driven by Samuel Prescott of Pawtucket, R. I. and Maurice Eliot of North Weymouth collided at Newtonville squares on Sunday night. Prescott's wife claimed that her neck was injured. Eliot said the collision was caused when Prescott's car stopped suddenly.

Arrested For Taking Aunt's Car

Kenneth Williams, 24, of 14 Hyde ave., Newton was given a suspended sentence of two months in jail in the Newton court on Tuesday for taking an automobile without authority. The complainant was Mrs. Estelle Aiken of 618 Centre st., Newton, an aunt of the defendant. She reported to Newton police last Saturday that Williams had taken her car without her permission. A teletype message was sent out and on Sunday Williams was arrested in Sausalito while driving the automobile. A Watertown girl who was riding with him was permitted to return to her home.

Snore Cycles Mark Life of the Average Person

It has been established that there are snore cycles in the life of the average person, writes Margaret McEachern in Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

Infants snore commonly. Between the ages of ten and thirty years, snoring is rare. But after thirty it increases. This may be because at this age period, people become a little careless about their physical well being. And unless the physical condition which is causing the snoring is corrected, it will increase with the passing of each ten years.

Generally, snoring indicates disturbances in the breathing apparatus, especially an obstruction in the nose that prevents the individual from sleeping with his mouth closed. The obstruction may be a result of polyp, tumor growths, enlarged turbinates, bony deformities, sinus infection or a deviated septum which encroaches on the air space of one nostril.

Strange but true, certain foods may cause a person to snore. Many men and women are sensitive to certain proteins. If they eat tomatoes, for instance, the mucous membranes of the nose have a tendency to accumulate secretions. Chronic inflammation of the nasal linings also may cause an enlargement of the tissues sufficient to obstruct the nose.

In children, snoring commonly is an indication of enlarged adenoids. According to conservative estimates, one out of every eight persons snores more or less regularly. No doubt every person snores occasionally, but the one out of eight is the person to look out for.

Marijuana Long in Use

In Asia Minor and India, where its influence first was felt, priests 3,000 years ago used various forms of marijuana to induce religious frenzy. It was not until 1845 that a French doctor made a detailed study of its effects and the relation between "hashish" excess and insanity. Since then, use of the weed has spread over the entire world. In the United States, "killers for hire" smoke a "mugle" or two to bolster their nerve.

'Mad Anthony' Wayne Is Buried in Pennsylvania

Although Pennsylvania has two graves of "Mad Anthony" Wayne, he still remains a shadowy figure of the Revolutionary war to many Americans. History writers in the main have failed to provide many details about him, notwithstanding the fact that he was one of Washington's most colorful generals.

He was the son of a Chester county farmer and lies buried, officially, in Old St. David's churchyard, Devon, observes a writer in the Philadelphia Inquirer. Not far away is the land his father tilled. Still closer is the community which bears his name.

His original grave, still decorated as such, is on Presque Isle, on the shore of Lake Erie, where he died from an old war wound in the leg. "Bury me at the foot of the flag-staff," he said, and that was where he was laid to rest. At that time he was commander-in-chief of the United States army.

In 1809, 13 years after his death, his family had his remains removed to Old St. David's. Approximately 100 years later—in 1908 to be exact—the state erected a statue in his memory at Valley Forge.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Spirit" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, on Sunday, August 7.

The Golden Text is: "The fruit of the Spirit is in all goodness and righteousness and truth" (Ephesians 5:9).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh; and these are contrary the one to the other: so that ye cannot do the things that ye would. But if ye be led of the Spirit, ye are not under the law" (Galatians 5:17, 18).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The flesh lusteth against the Spirit. The flesh and Spirit can no more unite in action, than good can coincide with evil. . . . Rise in the strength of Spirit to resist all that is unlike good. God has made man capable of this, and nothing can vitiate the ability and power divinely bestowed on man" (pp. 167, 393).

Burial of Custer's Men

An article published by "an eyewitness" describing the burial of Custer's men (June 28, 1876) says: "Early in the morning of the twenty-eighth, all troops, except those left to care for the wounded of Reno's force, repaired to the battlefield and buried the dead of Custer's column, and as few tools were available, and the ground baked hard, interment was not complete in all cases. Custer was buried beneath a huge mound, and an attempt was made to mark the graves of identified officers and enlisted men. In all 212 bodies were buried where they fell."

Ventriloquists, 'Belly Speakers'

Once it was believed ventriloquists produced noises in their stomachs. Hence their title, from two Latin words meaning "belly speakers." Actually they form words in the usual manner but with special control of breathing throat, mouth, lips and tongue. Anyone with healthy vocal organs can learn the trick, asserts a writer in the Washington Post. Ancient people were masters of ventriloquism. Through the art, it's believed, they made their statues of pagan gods speak.

"God's Island" Is Name

for Gigha in the Gaelic
"God's Island," they call Gigha in Gaelic, and perhaps one reason is that the people there still cling to their old-time traditions, writes Frederic Babcock in the Chicago Tribune. They allow no signs of modernity. It is one of the holiday islands visited from the port of Glasgow.

The isle has only about seven square miles, but within that area it displays a surprising variety of scenery. It has real mountains—in miniature—and many glens, caves, and hiding places awaiting the explorer.

In the year 1263, the fame of Gigha's cattle drew the attention of King Haakon of Norway. He paid a visit there and carried off the entire stock without even a promise to pay. The natives still talk about this unwelcome visitor.

The village consists of rows of whitewashed cottages situated one above the other. These avenues are termed High and Low street, with all the usual class distinction between the dwellers on the two. Living in the upper row are the heroes of the sea, the hunters, and those who have distinguished themselves in public service and religious activities. The undistinguished live in the other. On the road leading from the center of the village is one of the oldest churches of the British Isles. It is known in church history as the one "on the road to Ard-lamey."

Glass Bead Factory Was First Industry in U. S.

Eight Dutch and Polish glass blowers were imported for America's earliest experiment in the production of glass, an experiment which also bears the distinction of being the first manufacturing industry in the United States, states a writer in the Detroit Free Press.

They set up a furnace at Jamestown in 1609 under the protecting wing of the Virginia company, turning out glass beads for use in trading with the Indians. Neither their names nor any authenticated specimen of their product has come down to us, but it is believed that they turned out a considerable quantity of glass. Operation of the furnace ceased with the failure of the Jamestown colony.

The next effort, a decade later, was also at Jamestown. This time six Venetian glass blowers were procured.

History permits us to know the names of three of them—Bernardo, Bonventura and Vincenzo—but little more. They, too, made glass beads. But their displeasure with regulations laid down by the colony's supervising authorities brought on the first recorded labor trouble in the United States—a virtual strike—during which one glass blower smashed both glass furnaces, thus ending the second experiment.

Shortly after, Dutch glass makers arrived at New Amsterdam, and 50 years later Germans started the industry in Philadelphia.

The Danish Westminster Abbey

The cathedral at Roskilde, Denmark, sometimes called the Danish Westminster abbey, contains the tomb of one of the first women in northern Europe to come out of the kitchen and surpass men at their own occupations, says a writer in the Detroit News. Margaret, who came to the Danish throne in 1387 and a year later was made queen of Sweden and Norway, was one of the country's most noted rulers. When her brother-in-law, a neighboring king, wished to deride her, he sent her a whetstone and advised her to sharpen her needles, leaving swords and weapons to men. Margaret promptly answered the insult by defeating the king and his army in battle and taking him prisoner. Today the whetstone that started the feud rests beside her in her tomb.

Weighty Air

The ancients considered air an imponderable substance, but in the past 100 years our knowledge of it has increased considerably. One authority, says London Tit-Bits Magazine, says that the air in the average room weighs about 160 pounds. A cubic foot weighs as much as a letter which can be sent through the post for 1½ pence, and in the course of a day the weight of air breathed by the average person is greater than the weight of food consumed by him. Air is composed of more than a dozen gases, which include nitrogen, oxygen, carbon dioxide, water vapor, hydrogen, helium, neon, argon, krypton, xenon, radon, and other lesser-known elements.

Legendary King of Britain

King Arthur was a legendary king of Britain of the Sixth century, who became the central figure of a great cycle of romance. He was said to have lived in state with his wife, Guinevere, at Caerleon on the Usk. He is supposed to have received mortal wounds from the invading Saxons on the battlefield of Camlan, but it was a tradition that he was taken to be healed in fairyland, and would reappear to reinstate his countrymen over Britain. Probably in the mythical Arthur a semi-historical personage was confounded with an ancient British god, thus forming a semi-divine hero who may at one time have replaced the older Gwydion.

China Has Suicide Mountain

A cruel trick of nature causes many suicides on sacred Mt. Omei, according to the Chinese government in discussing the 11,000-foot peak which sits on a carpet of clouds. At the top, pilgrims and on a plateau, look down and sometimes see on clouds below the "image of Buddha." Believing he has come in person to welcome them to the after-life, they jump off the cliff. Actually, the "image of Buddha" is their own shadows, cast on the clouds below by the sun. Nature has other tricks that lead humans astray. Best known is the mirage, the reflection of distant objects by rebounding light. Mirages occur most often in deserts, but back in 1868 Gaston Tissandier reported one from a balloon above Calais, France. He saw ships, "sailing in the sky," reflected from the English channel.

Cave Lighted by Glowworms

One of the wonders of New Zealand is the Waitomo cave in the province of Auckland. It is rich in stalactite and stalagmite formations, and is lighted not by naked lights or electricity, but by millions of glowworms, says London Tit-Bits magazine. Hundreds of people visit the cave every year for a glimpse of this amazing sight, for the insects line the roof and do not twinkle. Silence is enforced, as the noise of speech has the effect of making them switch off—a natural protective instinct. Glowworms and fireflies are, of course, plentiful in all tropic regions, where it is sometimes possible to read a newspaper by the light they give. In India "shikaris" (hunters) often stick them on the foresight of a rifle for night shooting.

'Fish on Friday' DatesBack to Days of Christ

Fish became associated with Friday in a roundabout way. Friday corresponds to the day of the week on which Jesus was crucified and many early Christians observed it as a weekly fast day, that is, a day on which they abstained from eating flesh meats, says a writer in the Indianapolis News. Pope Nicholas (858-867) declared that abstinence on Friday was obligatory on all communicants of the Roman church. Fish is the principal non-flesh meat and accordingly it became the favorite food for those days when flesh meats were forbidden. Later others followed the practice of serving fish almost exclusively on Friday. This is partly out of respect for religious custom; but fish dealers report that many housewives buy fish to be served on Friday because they feel that they can obtain fish of better quality at that time of the week because of the prevailing custom.

The fish was one of the earliest symbols of the Savior of Christianity in general. There were several reasons for this. Fish and fishing played an important part in the daily lives of Jesus and his disciples. Peter and several of the other disciples were fishermen by trade, and Jesus told them that if they would follow him he would make them "fishers of men." The miraculous multiplication of the loaves and fishes, as well as the feast after the resurrection on the shores of Galilee, when some of the disciples ate fish caught by following the instructions of the Lord will be recalled.

The fish as an emblem of Christianity was further popularized by the coincidence that the Greek word for fish which we render "ichthys," is spelled in Greek with five letters, corresponding to I-C-H-T-H-U-S, which form what is known as an acrostic; that is, the component letters of the word for fish are the initial letters of Iesusus Christus, Theou Uios, Soter, meaning Jesus Christ, Son of God, Savior.

British History GleanedFrom Public House Signs

Much of Britain's history, and more of its manners and feelings can be gleaned from various public house signs, seen in villages and towns, says Pearson's London Weekly.

Many of these were selected out of compliments of the reigning king, or lord of the manor. The Blue Boar was the badge of Richard III; the Bull's Head of Henry VIII, and the White Hart of Richard II.

The Fox and Hounds and Hare and Hounds were named in compliment to a sporting squire, and the Green Man probably originated when the squire's gamekeeper, married, and was promoted to the village public.

It is thought that the Saracen's Head was thus named by a Crusader after his return from the Holy wars. The Chequers is said to refer to the Stuart kings, whose shield was "chequy." The Spread Eagle being the arms of Germany, indicated in past days that German wines were sold in that inn, and the Castle, being the arms of Spain, signified that Spanish wines were sold.

Stools Were First Seats

Among the first forms of seats made in America were stools, for the Puritans did not have room to bring over any furniture except chests and these served for storage purposes, seats and sometimes beds. The first trained woodworker listed among the Pilgrim colonists was John Alden of "speak for yourself, John" fame. It is not recorded that he acquired any fame as a cabinetmaker but he no doubt did make many of the stools, forms and benches required for use in the sparsely furnished homes of that day. Furniture makers were not long in coming to America. As the colonies prospered and trade with England and the continent increased, fine furniture was not only imported but much that was beautiful in design and workmanship was made here.

Printing in China 50 B. C.

Printing is traced to China, where as early as 50 B. C. the Chinese had originated a method of printing with ink on paper by means of engraved blocks. The question of who was the first to employ movable printing types has long been a matter of controversy. Laurens Janszoon Coster, of Haarlem, Holland, is said to have invented wooden type about 1420 and movable metal type between 1440 and 1449. However, it is to John Gutenberg, of Mainz, Germany, that is attributed the credit of being the inventor or at least responsible for the great improvement in the production of movable types and for the craftsmanship displayed in printing his celebrated Bible in 1455.

Mount Rainier Third in Height

Washington's Mount Rainier, 14,408 feet high, is the third mountain in height in continental United States, being topped only by Mount Whitney in California and Mount Elbert in Colorado. Rainier is the loftiest of the huge extinct volcanoes which dominate the Cascade range of mountains. Its nearest rival, Mount Shasta in northern California, is 250 feet lower.

Name Bartholomew Means A 'Son of the Furrows'

The name Bartholomew in its various spellings is of Hebrew origin and has the picturesque meaning "son of the furrows," writes Florence A. Cowles in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, thus fitting a farmer or plowman. But many a farmer has plowed the waves rather than the fields. Less popular now than in the past when its bearers did great deeds, it is frequently heard as a surname.

St. Bartholomew was one of the 12 apostles, supposed to be the same one who is called Nathanael. Bartholomew Diaz (d. 1500), Portuguese navigator, discovered the Cape of Good Hope in finding his way around Africa.

Bartholomew Columbus (d. 1514), was a brother and co-worker of Christopher and a noted cartographer. Sailing to America in 1494, he came just in time to save his brother from the Spaniards and Indians. He founded the town of San Domingo. Bartholomew de Las Casas (d. 1566), sailed with his father on the third voyage of Columbus and later in life became a bishop in Mexico, where he was called the apostle to the Indians.

Fra Bartholomew (d. 1517) was a great Italian painter, many of whose works are in the Pitti palace in Florence.

Bartholomew Gosnold (d. 1607), English navigator, was one of the earliest explorers of New England. In 1602, with a party of colonists, he landed on the coast of Maine, then sailed south and discovered and named Cape Cod, Martha's Vineyard and Elizabeth island. In 1606 Gosnold was one of the settlers of Jamestown. Bartholomew Fuent, Portuguese, was said to have discovered the Northwest passage in 1640.

Bartholome Murillo (d. 1682), Spanish painter, was one of the great artists of all time.

Tubers, Bulbs, Corms, Referred to as 'Bulbs'

There is a difference between tubers, bulbs and corms, all of which frequently are referred to as "bulbs" for lack of more exact knowledge, notes a writer in the New York Herald-Tribune. A tuber is a fleshy underground stem and the common potato is a typical example. Here we have a modified stem which clearly shows bark, wood and pith, and it also has a terminal end, whereas the other buds are "eyes."

Bulbs also are underground stems, but of a different character. The common onion is a bulb with a cone-shaped center stem surrounded by a mass of fleshy overlapping leaves which either lie close together or may be quite loosely attached as in many kinds of lilies.

Bulbs always show this scale structure. Corms differ from bulbs in having no scales. They are in this respect more like tubers and like these are also underground stems transformed into storage organs to carry the plants from one season to the next. Corms, generally speaking, are flat, like those of the gladiolus. They bear the leaves on the top and develop a mass of roots on the bottom.

Belle Isle Not Part of Canada

Belle Isle has never been leased from Canada. It has never been considered part of Canada and the only time Canada may be said to have had a claim was after the War of the Revolution and before the boundary line between the two countries had been definitely settled by treaty, asserts a writer in the Detroit News. It was conveyed to Lieut. George McDougall in 1765 by the Indians for a few barrels of rum, some tobacco, vermilion and wampum. From McDougall the title passed to William Macomb, then to Barnabas Campau and to his children, who sold it to the city of Detroit in 1879 for $200,000. Belle Isle was originally Mah-nah-bee or Swan island; the French settlers renamed it Isle St. Clair. When hogs were brought to the island to destroy the snakes there, it became known as Ile aux Cochons or Hog island; this name was informally changed to Belle Isle on July 4, 1845, by resorters who had made it a popular picnic ground, honoring Isabelle Cass, daughter of Governor Lewis Cass.

Formed the Wisconsin Dells

Some thousands of years ago, when the Wisconsin river began its flow down to the sea, its course was shifted time and time again as it found its way over the flat limestone bed. As it rushed along it cut into the limestone, and the passage of the great glacier made other cuts in the rock, forming the weird shapes which are now known as the Dells. The Turk's Head, the Balanced Rock, the Needle and the Devil's Doorway are only a few of the descriptive names given these formations.

Park's Fame Due to Voice

South Dakota is unique in its possession of the only national park whose fame is due to its voice. Wind cave was first found because of the strange whistling noise that is caused by the passage of air in and out of its original entrance. The phenomenon is believed to be due to changing temperatures outside the cave, as the direction in which the wind blows through the entrance depends upon atmospheric conditions.

Trois Rivieres, Quebec, Grew From Trading Post

Trois Rivieres, Quebec, the French Canadian city, midway between Montreal and Quebec and 90 miles distant from each, first appears in history when Father Le Caron, Recollet monk, celebrated the mass at this point on the shores of the St. Lawrence on July 25, 1615. The city itself was founded in 1634 by Chevalier de Lavolette, and the name Trois Rivieres (Three Rivers) was given to it because the three branches of the St. Maurice river join the waters of the St. Lawrence at this spot, writes a correspondent in the New York World-Telegram.

The St. Maurice river received its name from Maurice Paulin, first owner of the Maurice Iron foundries.

Trois Rivieres during the Seventeenth century became not only an important fur trading post but also a meeting place for the making of treaties between the Indians and the French.

In 1652, on August 18, a large war party of Iroquois Indians ravaged the vicinity and massacred many of the inhabitants. A carved group representing the crucifixion of Christ, known as "Le Calvaire," on the Montreal-Quebec highway, commemorates this event.

Trois Rivieres was the birthplace of Pierre Gauthier de Varenne, Sieur de la Verendrye, who spent his life in exploring the great West; his two sons discovered the Rocky mountains in 1743.

In 1776 a detachment of American troops commanded by Capt. William DuRoi took possession of the town, but retired on May 20 of the same year.

Amethysts in Purples, Pinks and Lilac Shades

The most beautiful and probably the most important member of the quartz family, the amethyst varies in color from royal purple to the lightest shades of purple, and from brownish pink to light pink and lilac.

This stone was in great demand among the Greeks and Romans because of the belief that the wearing of an amethyst had the power to expel poison, make its wearer expert in business affairs and victorious in chase and battle, writes a correspondent in the Montreal Herald.

While the vogue of the amethyst has risen and waned in past years, there has never been a period when this beautiful stone has not been sought for by those who appreciate jewels for their artistic value. Under the dichroscope two images are generally seen in the dark violet colored amethyst—one reddish and one bluish purple.

The amethyst will not stand high temperature, as it loses its color and turns yellow; in fact, many of the quartz topaz are produced by "burning amethysts."

The greater number of amethysts come from Brazil and Uruguay, the commercial designation for the medium grades being "Brazilian amethysts," while the rich dark-purple stones are known as the "Uruguayan amethysts."

Some fine amethyst pebbles are found in the gem-bearing gravels of Ceylon, but these stones are not plentiful enough to have commercial importance.

Many Round Towers in Ireland

The most remarkable examples of early Irish building are the Round Towers, of which over a hundred remain in Ireland, though scarcely an example elsewhere. Tall, circular columns, rising to 80 feet high and averaging 15 in diameter, they were used as belltowers, as lookout posts and chiefly as places of refuge. The lowest opening was high above the ground, reached by a ladder which could be drawn up. Inside was a wooden framework of four or five stories, and in here the monks carried their treasures, vessels of price and chiefly written books, when marauders came. The masonry at the base was built to defy fire or the battering ram. These round towers are more than a thousand years old.

Treasures Buried Beneath Panama

In spite of the fact that Morgan and his men after having razed and burned Panama took away 195 mule loads of jewels, huge quantities of gold and silver, sacred golden cups, pearls and precious stones, the tradition is that beneath the ruins of that historical city are buried treasures, hidden by the natives in the hope of saving their riches from the greed of the pirates. A few years ago valuable antique jewels, altar pieces and gold ornaments used in churches were found in excavations made with the consent of the authorities.

Whiskers Mark of Strength

Whiskers have long been the mark of a real man. By nature, women, boys and girls can't grow 'em, observes a writer in the Washington Post. Elizabethan writers tell how men "wasted many hours" on their beards and mustaches, perfuming, starching, powdering and curling them. A few decades ago American dandies were careful to wrap their curled and waxed mustaches in tinfoil before shaving. And as late as 1907 French waiters went on strike because they had been forbidden to grow mustaches.

Exploration of Alaska Credited to Sea Otter

The sea otter, his silky, soft, dense pelt the most valuable known to commerce, was responsible for the exploration and early development of that part of the North American continent now known as Alaska. For on the throne of Russia sat a pretty, capricious lady who would and must have sea otter skins, as she found them most becoming. Her Imperial Majesty Catherine II, empress of Russia, said "bring me furs," and furs were brought, not only to Catherine the Great, and her court, but to the markets of Asia, recalls a writer in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. During the closing years of the Eighteenth century and the opening decade of the Nineteenth, it is estimated that from 8,000 to 10,000 sea otter skins were taken to Asia each year from the southern waters of Alaska.

It was Peter the Great and his empress, Catherine I, who first took real interest in discovering more about the great land, vaguely reported to lie to the eastward. Under their command, Vitus Bering, Danish captain in the Russian service, in 1728 discovered and named St. Lawrence island, sailed through Bering strait, and rounded East cape. Thus Bering strait was on the world's map 15 years before the first white man gazed upon the Rocky mountains. On a second voyage of exploration, Bering, in 1741, made the actual discovery of mainland Alaska, landing near Prince William sound. Bering died in the new country he had discovered, and after months of suffering and privation some of his men returned home bearing the first of those history-making sea otter skins, which they sold for nearly $30,000. As this news spread among the fur hunters of Siberia it caused an excitement second only to the frantic rush for gold that more than a century and a half later was to draw thousands to the mines of the Klondike.

Cloth Names Are TracedTo Some Other Countries

Many of our names for cloth come to us from the Orient. Calico is from Calicut, India, the city from which it was first imported. Doubtless at first the term used was Calicut cloth, but phrases often shrink in usage, and calico was an easy evolution, says the Kansas City Star. Madras, also in India, gave us the cloth which bears its name. This was first made from silk and cotton, but the name is applied to the same weave in cotton also, a fabric which is much used for men's shirts.

City of Pittsburgh Was Named for William Pitt

In the tall, imposing figure of William Pitt, earl of Chatham, the American colonies had a distinguished champion in the British parliament in the period before the American Revolution.

Much of Britain's dominance of North America, writes Leslie Hartley in the Washington Star, was due to Pitt's efforts and in a series of expeditions against the French he had cultivated the loyal co-operation of the colonists.

When England began a program of taxation which these colonists regarded as unjust, Pitt championed their cause. He secured the repeal of the stamp act passed in 1765 and protested again when a tax was levied on tea, glass, paper and other articles.

As the quarrel deepened, Pitt, in 1775 introduced a bill in parliament which declared the supremacy of England over the colonists in all cases except taxation and he added: "You cannot conquer the colonists."

Though he was never willing to recognize American independence, he continued to plead for conciliation. America did not forget his friendship and among others, the city of Pittsburgh is named in his honor.

Meaning of Red Herring Across Path

A red herring is a herring of special grade which has been heavily salted and slowly smoked to give it a rich brown or reddish color. "To draw a red herring across one's path, track or trail," means to attempt to divert one's attention from the real question by raising a side issue. The saying originated among sportsmen and was suggested by an old practice described as follows in "Gentlemen's Recreation" which was written by a man named Cox and published in 1686: "The trailing or dragging of a dead cat, or fox (and in case of necessity a red-herring) three or four miles. . . and then laying the dogs on the scent." Dogs have a keen scent for red herring, and if one is drawn across the trail of a fox it will mislead the hounds.

Changing Eras in Japan

For centuries it was the practice in Japan to change the era every time something epoch-making happened, or when there occurred some earthquake, drought, pestilence or famine which needed to be quickly thrust out of the present into the past. The ruler who changed his eras most was Godaigo, the ninety-sixth emperor. He was noted for his misfortunes. In his reign of 22 years (1318-1339 A. D.) he changed his year-name nine times. Emperor Meiji, ascending the throne in 1868, put a stop to this practice of frequently changing the year-name. He decreed that each emperor should use but one year-name, beginning and ending with his reign.

Chimes and Carillons

Chimes are produced on eight or ten bells usually with a range of only one octave that play only on the full notes. Carillons are played over two to four or five octaves, ascending the scale with sharps and flats by half tone notes. Twenty-three or more bells make a carillon. Few carillons in this country have more than 36 bells. The essential difference between chimes and carillons is the number of bells and the tonal range.

Mail Franking Privilege Held by Adams for Life

John Adams, as a member of congress, was among the first to be accorded the mail franking privilege and this he retained as ambassador to the various courts of Europe, as Vice President under Washington, as President and afterward, by special act of congress, for life. Aside from Jefferson, recalls a writer in the New York Herald Tribune, no other President has had the privilege as long as Adams and, curiously, both died on the same day, July 4, 1826, exactly 50 years after both had signed the Declaration of Independence.

In the first election of 1789 Adams received the second highest number of electoral college votes and was declared Vice President. He accepted the office, albeit with a bit of chagrin as he did not relish being second, and although he had great admiration for Washington, he felt that his own contribution to the cause of the infant republic had merited the greater reward.

In the vice presidency he served the two terms under Washington during the formation of the first political parties. The Federalists, led by Hamilton, believed in a strong central government, and the Democratic-Republicans, followers of Jefferson, in the supremacy of the states. Adams belonged to the former but begrudged Hamilton the leadership and as a consequence all but missed the presidency in the election of 1797.

Adams' term in the presidency was not happy. He was out of harmony with his party. The country came to the verge of war with France, which Adams' personal action evaded but at the expense of much of his prestige at home. Lastly the notorious alien and sedition laws which he had supported brought resolutions of disapproval from several of the states. He was defeated for re-election and in 1801 retired to his home in Quincy, never again to take part in public life.

Howler Monkey Is Noisy

The howler monkey, whose deep-throated voice echoes through the depths of the Panamanian jungles can be heard in the jungle day and night, and many visitors have mistaken it for the roar of lions. His voice, like that of the singing toad, is louder from a distance, decreasing in volume as one approaches. But even at close range it is unusual when compared with the bird-like notes of white-faced and other species of monkeys. Even though he is small in comparison to a lion, the mantled howler is the largest and heaviest of all New World monkeys. His fur is unusually beautiful, shading from very dark brown tones to light. He is of a gregarious nature, traveling in troops and swinging through the tree tops. He swings by his tail, a characteristic peculiar to New World monkeys.

Hawaii Has Largest Volcanoes

Colossal is just another adjective to rangers in the United States National park on Hawaii island. The most westerly park in America contains, the rangers report, these features: Kilauwa, the world's largest active volcano; Haleakala, the world's largest extinct volcano; Mauna Kea, the highest mountain in the world rising directly from the sea (13,675 feet). Mauna Loa (13,675 feet), the largest single mountain mass in the world, and the world's most symmetrical mountain; Halemauau, the world's only volcanic fire pit where one may safely drive to the very brink of the crater.

Hanging Gardens for King's Wife

The Hanging Gardens of Babylon were a system of terraced gardens near the Euphrates river, attached to the palace of King Nebuchadnezzar, which was 60 miles from the present city of Baghdad and not far from the eastern border of the Syrian desert of northern Arabia. It is said that Nebuchadnezzar constructed these prodigious gardens to gratify the whim of his wife, Amyitis, to have something of her native hills and forests near.

1928 he campaigned for Alfreed E. Smith for President, and in 1932 took the stump for Roosevelt. In 1933 he became associated with the Department of Labor at Washington and was subsequently largely responsible for the preparation of the Social Security Act. In 1935 he was made General Counsel of the Social Security Board, resigning that position when he decided to become a candidate for Congress. Because of his efforts in behalf of labor and social reforms, Elliot, naturally, is quite popular in labor circles. His followers have adopted the slogan that "Elliot is a Democrat from conviction and not convenience," referring to the fact that he has been a member of the Democratic party since attaining his majority, whereas his opponent did not register as a Democrat until 1934. Like Mr. Cronin, Mr. Elliot is also conducting a vigorous campaign for the nomination.

To those who contend that traffic beacons in squares or on streets are hazards, we refer conditions at Stoughton square. Route 138, the Boston-Taunton turnpike, passes through Stoughton square. It is bisected at an angle there by another heavily travelled traffic artery which runs from Canton and Norwood to Brockton. In addition several side streets enter the main thoroughfare at Stoughton's business section. There is a large amount of traffic passing through Stoughton all the year round, and during the summer months automobiles bound to and from Cape Cod points increase it to a great volume. There are no traffic signals at Stoughton; not a red light to stop any automobile. Traffic is guided entirely by two beacons located a couple of hundred feet apart at the intersections of the two main thoroughfares. And traffic moves smoothly and safely through Stoughton.

Another veteran employee of the Newton postoffice retired from the service this week. For over a quarter century John Maloney plodded the streets in the Hunnewell Hill section, intelligently and faithfully performing his duties. We worked with John Maloney for several years and we never met a more kindly, honorable man. He was unusually devoted to members of his family and always considerate of those with whom he worked. He might well be selected as a model by the young men who have lately, or in recent years, entered the postal service; some of whom ascribe superior wisdom to themselves.

This tour of Shirley Temple and her parents is strictly a private trip for recreation only. It is not for publicity purposes and great efforts have been made to keep it inconspicuous. The weather this week has been very cool.

Funny isn't it how hundreds of thousands of persons in humble circumstances will crowd to places like Revere and Nantasket on such scorching days as we have had this week, when such shadeless beaches, unless there is an East wind, are about the hottest spots one could find. It is an example of what is popularly termed "mob psychology."

At the last meeting of the Newton Board of Aldermen another instance of illogical action on the part of the Aldermen was manifested when a permit was granted for the conduct of business in a private residence zone. A petition had been presented for the use of a building by a contractor as a tool shed and also for the use of an office on the premises, under the non-conforming use section of the Zoning Ordinance, inasmuch as the Claims & Rules Committee for the past few years has, on the whole, been opposed to letting down the bars on the intrusion of business into residence zones, we inquired why the exception was made in this case. We were informed that the building on the property involved had been used as a tool house for some years past. As a matter of fact there were no residences built on this Newtonville street until 1926, four years after the zoning ordinance went into effect, so if the building had been used for business purposes since then, it had been illegally used. This is not the first nor the second time in recent years that the Board of Aldermen has granted a permit for some non-conforming business use, for a garage or for some other purpose, because the building involved had already been erected and in use, either in violation of the zoning ordinance or building ordinances. And persons who obey the city ordinances and make applications or enter petitions, in conformity with the law, are consistently turned down, while those who violate the ordinances get away with it.

"My dog understands every word I say to him." How often have you heard some one make that remark? But only if your own vocabulary is restricted to 60 words is it likely that he does understand every word you say.

According to statistics released by Dr. Wilfred J. Funk, famous lexicographer who made an extensive study of the subject, the average house pet responds to approximately 60 words. A normal year and a half old child is considered to understand about the same number.

A stray mongrel, Dr. Funk finds, knows the meaning of about 10 words. Many of the so-called trick dogs understand up to 300. If you want to spend the time, it is possible to teach a clever dog the meaning of about 350 words.

"Buddy" is the king of canine ho-hoes. In the last three years he has traveled over 12,000 miles, accompanying his master, Charles Boviar, a knight of the road.

Railway men are accustomed to all types of vagabonds, but Boviar and his 115-pound dog perched atop a swaying freight car is a rare sight. "Buddy" is adept in clambering to the top of a freight car. If the car is standing still he can reach the top himself after a lift to the first rung of the ladder steps. When the car is moving, he runs along side while his master climbs to the top. Then "Buddy" is pulled aboard by a rope hitched to his harness.

When an airplane replaces a dog team as a means of transportation, progress has taken a long jump ahead. Recently the government installed airplane service to carry the mail from Juneau to Fairbanks, Alaska. For more than 30 years dog teams have carried the mail over this 700-mile route. Perhaps during a prolonged stormy spell the plane will be grounded and the dogs will be missed, as they never failed to get through even in the most adverse weather.

At this time of year many requests come to me for information on how to cure a dog of mange. Many minor skin ailments are classified as mange, when in reality they are only skin eruptions that are not serious. It is advisable, however, to take your pet to a veterinarian if you notice any skin disorder as it is often the symptom of more serious trouble.

Let's look at what causes skin ailments among our pets. Worms, excessive exposure to heat, and improper feeding are three of the most common causes. Many animals are bothered all year round with skin diseases but the majority are afflicted only during the hot summer months. There is little chance that a human can contract any skin infection from a dog affected with mange of which there are three different types.

The first approach to a cure is to free the animal of any worms, cut down on his food and see that he has plenty of fresh water available at all times. Before applying any skin medicine, wash the affected areas with warm water and glycerine.

Personally I have found that sulphur mixed with crude oil is an effective remedy. The dog will have to be tied up outdoors for a few days after this treatment but it will in most cases bring results. Other good combinations to apply are zinc oxide and vaselline or sulphur and lard.

Well meaning friends may advise a sulphur dip. This is excellent but great care must be taken afterwards. Sulphur tends to open the pores and unless it is a very warm day with a little wind, your dog may catch a bad cold that may prove fatal. Sometimes weeks or even months are required to clear up stubborn cases of mange but a dog's gratitude is worth the time and effort.

I was greatly surprised on getting off the train recently at Elmira, New York, to find a statue of an Indian holding a dog on a leash. The statue is placed in a small park just outside the railroad station. This is, to my recollection, the first time I have seen a statue of a man with a dog in a public place. I am sure it causes a great deal of comment from those people who never before realized that our American Indians not only were great lovers of dogs but that almost every wigwam sheltered at least one family pet.

Question: What is a Normand dog? Could you give me some description of this breed?—E.W.

Answer: It is a French breed similar to a mixture of our hound and pointer. It stands about 28 inches high and weighs approximately 75 pounds. The skin on its face is loose and wrinkled, and it has a very coarse muzzle.

Unusual Bargains Being Offered In Ocean Travel

Never have been offered so many alluring ocean cruises and tours to Europe, the West Indies, South America, Bermuda, the Saguenay and other places both on this side of the Atlantic and in foreign climes, as the various steamship companies have arranged for this summer and the coming autumn. And in addition, the leading Trans-Atlantic steamship companies offer a round trip to Europe or the British Isles and return for 1 1/2 times the one-way fare, resulting in reductions which run as high as $100. To get this very low rate one must sail from this country between September 4 and October 2, and have the privilege of staying in Europe four weeks exclusive of the day of arrival and the day of departure. If the West bound sailing will be made before September 25th, the difference between half of the excursion rate and half the regular rate must be paid. One can travel third class for as little as $134.50 round trip to a British port, or $177 tourist class, and to Continental ports for slightly higher fares.

On September 7 the 11th annual Post Labor Day tours conducted by the United States Lines will leave New York on the S. S. Manhattan. Frederick J. Persons residing in Boston and vicinity will be given free rail transportation to New York and return. Make your reservation now and take advantage of this exceptional trip.

For persons who want much for little the tours conducted by the Merchant & Miners Line are acceptable. Each Tuesday and Saturday a boat leaves Boston for Norfolk and Baltimore. This trip includes a trip from Baltimore to Washington and a tour of the Capitol. One can take side trips from Norfolk to Virginia Beach for only 75c, or to Williamsburg for $4.50. The cost of this tour, including stateroom and excellent meals is but $42; six nights and four days on the water. The Savannah Line tours to that beautiful, old Southern city continue to be as popular as in former years. Boats leave Boston on 10 days tours to Savannah, including 2 days stay at the palatial De Sota Hotel, and the cost is only $71. Or one can spend 2 days at Hotel Cloister, Sea Island, Georgia for $7 extra.

For those who prefer to go North the Canada Steamship Lines offer 7 days cruises from Boston to Montreal, Quebec, St. Anne de Beaupre, the Saint Lawrence, Murray Bay and the Saguenay for $78. COOLIDGE CORNER THEATRE— BROOKLINE

Beauty is the immediate and all-inclusive definition for "Always Goodbye." Seldom does a story such as "Always Goodbye," which opens for a week's run on Friday, August 5th, at the Coolidge Corner Theatre, Brookline, come to the attention of the movie fans with as much understanding and fine sense of the value of dramatic minutiae.

In the capable hands of co-stars, Barbara Stanwyck and Herbert Marshall, "Always Goodbye" acquires the beauty of sheer simplicity in a story that is—on several occasions—conducive to a lump in the throat. Setting a beautiful tale of modern mother love before a kaleidoscopic background of occasional grimness, sporadic sorrow and vicarious, resplendent scenes on Fifth Avenue and in Paris, the film scintillates with the many facets of love that comes to its characters. Barbara Stanwyck, in love, waits for her eager young man, who is speeding to City Hall to marry her. He is killed as his car crashes into a trolley. Stunned at the tragedy, she wanders toward the river where Herbert Marshall, a derelict physician, sees that she is taken to a hospital, where her son is born. Marshall's sincere love for the brave girl; her love for her child (Johnnie Russell); the love of foster parents who adopt the youngster; the temperamental Parisian ardor of Cesar Romero and the ultimate love which brings the story to a suspenseful conclusion create a beautiful saga with a throbbing message for today's womanhood. Ian Hunter heads the featured cast including Cesar Romero, Lynn Bari, Binnie Barnes and John Russell.

In the co-feature, "Nurse from Brooklyn," the picture brings an unusual love story of the hard-boiled cop who woos a girl by reciting poetry. "Nurse from Brooklyn" also drives home the lesson that "crime doesn't pay" in a picture that is sheer excitement and heart-moving entertainment. Sally Eilers again wins praise for her highly emotional appeal as the nurse. Beth Thomas, who in spite of herself, finds her heart swaying to the policeman. Jim Barnes, the man she thinks has shot down her brother in cold blood. Paul Kelly, as the policeman, who keeps romance and sense of duty in separate compartments, brings life and action to the performance. The story deals with a beautiful nurse who is led to believe by her fiancé, a waterfront hoodlum raised with her in the Brooklyn slums, that her brother, whom he killed, was shot by a policeman just to earn a promotion. She makes the cop fall in love with her and when she is about to lead him into a trap to be killed, her own love for the man stymies her determination. Sally Eilers and Paul Kelly head the cast, as the nurse and the policeman. Others in the cast of "Nurse from Brooklyn" are Larry Blake, Maurice Murphy and David Oliver.

Included in this outstanding show of two features is a new musical comedy short called "Air Parade"; and of course the latest issue of the Coolidge Corner Theatre Newsreel, presenting world events.

TAXES!

The word "TAX" is derived from the Latin, Tangere, which means to touch. People who applaud any tax that touches those with high incomes, fail to realize that they too, are touched through UNSEEN TAXES.

- Out of every FIVE dollars that the average man earns, one goes directly or indirectly for taxes.
- There are 49 different hidden taxes on every loaf of bread he buys.
- The proprietor of the Corner Drug Store pays 17 federal taxes, 27 state taxes, 34 local taxes — a total of 78 taxes. Remember this the next time you buy ice cream or cough medicine.
- 4 cents on every gallon of gasoline used is paid by the automobile owner.
- A package of cigarettes daily yields $21.90 yearly in hidden taxes.
- A new suit of clothes absorbs 12 different hidden taxes.
- And rent—$160 out of every $400 rent is tax money.

The trend toward confiscation by taxation is causing great concern everywhere. Individual initiative, employment, business and industry are threatened by the wiping out of business profits by this trend.

The depressing results fall directly upon the common people when industry suffers from burdensome taxation.

Proposed Bond Issue For New Newton School

Aldermen Will Have Special Meeting Next Monday

A special meeting of the Board of Aldermen will be held on next Monday night for the purposes of drawing jurors and taking action on the authorization of bond issues to finance the cost of building the proposed new school at Newton, and the construction of a 30 inch main from the water reservation at Needham to the pumping station at Newton Upper Falls. At the last meeting of the Board of Aldermen Mayor Childs recommended an appropriation of $3000 to pay for plans for the new school and borings at the proposed site. The aldermen, however, did not authorize the appropriation because it was not certain, whether, or not, a PWA grant would be received for the project, and they desired to wait until such Federal relief had been allotted so that it might be used to partly defray the cost of the preliminary work. On Thursday news came to City Hall that the PWA had indicated it would give approval to the grant for the school.

The new school will replace the 84 year old Lincoln School which is located at the corner of Pearl and Thornton sts., and the 54 year old Eliot School which is on Pearl st., near Watertown st. Both these antiquated schools, of frame construction, have long been considered far inferior to the average Newton school building. Several years ago the School Committee voted that their replacement was one of the most needed things on the Newton school program. It is estimated that the new school will cost about $200,000 and the land for its site about $35,000.

Two sites have been mentioned for the school. One is on Pearl st., at the corner of Garden st. The rear of this site abuts the Boyd Park playground. It will be necessary to remove several dwellings if this site is selected. The other site mentioned for the new school is the former Stuart property bounded by Pearl and Green sts. and Jackson rd., and now owned by Harry Yanco. This property contains about 2½ acres and is used largely for used automobile parts and the storage of broken up cars by Mr. Yanco. If taken, the former Stuart homestead and several large frame buildings, including a large barn and sheds, would be razed. The proponents of the site at Pearl and Gardner sts. state that its proximity to the playground is highly desirable. The proponents of the other site state that a 450 frontage on Jackson rd., plus frontage on Pearl and Green sts. with room for a recess playground, makes this site quite desirable.

In addition to the bond issue for the new school, another will be recommended by the Mayor for the construction of a 30 inch iron main to extend from the water reservation at Needham under the Charles River to the pumping station on the opposite side at Upper Falls. The purpose of the new main is to eliminate the use of the long, wooden conduit which has been regarded as the source of impurities which have been present in the Newton water supply. The cost of the main is estimated at $105,000.

Steal Tires From Car Parked On Street

A car used by R. S. Moore of 219 Commonwealth ave., Chestnut Hill and registered in the name of the Liberty Mutual Company of Boston, had all four tires stripped from its wheels on Wednesday night. The car had been parked all night on Reservoir dr. and someone had jacked it up during the night and taken the tires.

Youths Arrested After Free Fight

Four youths who allegedly ended their observance of the Sabbath Day by indulging in a brawl at the parking space at Pearl st., Newton Corner about midnight last Sunday were arraigned in the Newton court on Monday charged with drunkenness and disturbing the peace. They were arrested by Patrolman Foley and Walker, and identified themselves as Thomas McWalters, 21, 14 Derby rd.; Edward Farrell, 23, 137 Morse st.; William Sullivan, 17, 135 Morse st.; all of Watertown; and Howard Cheney, 19, Winthrop st., Waltham. Their cases were continued until Wednesday and on that day McWalters and Farrell each was sentenced to serve 30 days in Middlesex County Prison for disturbing the peace. Cheney's case was continued until August 17 because he wanted to be represented by an attorney. Police testified that he and Sullivan were not drunk at the time of the arrests. The latter was placed on probation by Judge Mayberry on condition that he stop associating with his two older neighbors who were arrested with him.

Raise Funds For Italian Home

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Scipione, 146 Walnut st., Newtonville have been named local representatives for the statewide fund-raising campaign to benefit orphans at the Home for Italian Children in Jamaica Plain. The campaign, being directed by Prof. Joseph H. Sasserno of Boston, begins Labor Day.

In their recent announcement of the drive, the Home's Board of Directors, His Eminence, Cardinal O'Connell, honorary president; Rt. Rev. R. J. Haberlin, Vicar-General of Boston, president; set a minimum of $50,000 as their goal.

Eliot Broadcasts On Social Security

"Three Years of Social Security" will be the subject of a radio talk to be given over WAAB (1410k) next Sunday evening at 7:30 p. m. by Thomas H. Eliot of Cambridge, Democratic candidate for Congress from the Ninth Congressional District which includes Newton.

Eliot played an outstanding part in the framing of the Social Security Act which was signed by President Roosevelt on August 14, 1935. Shortly after, Eliot was appointed by the President as General Counsel to the Social Security Board and directed a staff of 90 lawyers who helped put the Act into effect. He later aided in the defense of the Act before the Supreme Court.

Activities At Camp Frank A. Day

Since July 8th the following boys have passed their beginners swimming tests, and are off the Sink-Easy list. They are now entitled to wear the beginner's button of the American Red Cross.

Charles Butts, 62 Arlington rd., Woburn; David Kidger, 376 Newtonville ave., Newtonville; Dick Hartman, 18 Hollis st., Newton; Geoffrey Chaffer, 73 Dedham st., Newton Highlands; Bill Blaisdell, 149 Arlington st., Newton; Harrington Cummings, 244 Dorset rd., Waban; Robert Brotherton, 28 Hibbard rd., Newton; Herbert Winter, 28 Raleigh rd., Belmont; Frank Bell, 80 Pinewood rd., Needham; Bob Foster, 91 Hunnewell ave., Newton; Douglas Berns, 33 Clinton rd., Brookline; Rolphe Hayes, 37 Lansing rd., West Newton; Robert Harris, 45 Hunnewell ave., Brighton; Leonard Mooney, 102 Warwick rd., West Newton; Charles Merrill, 12 Howard st., Belmont; Peter Doyle, 33 Middle st., Gloucester; Gardner Brown, 22 Caroline pk., Waban; Bob Wallace, 128 Warren st., Newton Centre; Tom Silliker, 121 Oakleigh rd., Newton; Stephen King, 217 Conant rd., Weston.

The staff and campers are making ready to welcome on next Sunday the Honorable Edwin O. Childs, Mayor of Newton. Mayor Childs has consented to deliver the sermon at Chapel-in-the-Pines, and to the boys this will be an auspicious occasion for Camp, since the Mayor of Newton is recognized as one of the leading speakers in the interests of boys of the Commonwealth. The topic for the sermon has not been announced, but there will be a message worthy of recall by all boys and parents who will be present. Morning Chapel will start at 11:15 this Sunday as on all Sundays.

The first three days of the past week were turned over to the annual Treasure Hunt. Practically the entire Camp, equipped with pad and pencil, rushed to the main bulletin board of each camp division directly after assembly call blew on last Monday, and there saw the first clue set out by the Treasure Committees. Within the hour boys after boy left the confines of Camp, and journeyed to the secret places where the next clues were located. This was one occasion during the camping season when campers could leave Camp Day boundaries behind them and, without counselors, walk to distant places.

Stanley Sumner and Jack Hancock organized the Senior Treasure Hunt and they used various symbols, codes and characters to make more difficult the location of the succeeding clues. Trees, bridges, signposts, rocks and fences were used by the leaders to hide their various messages. The Junior Hunt was conducted by Jack Hayward of Wellesley Hills and Arthur Coppleson of Haverhill, and the Midlet Hunt was conceived by Richard Kelley of Watertown and Larry Corbett of Dedham.

No mention of the winners will be made public by the Committees until the final banquet of the season, but close competition exists between the following boys of the Midlet Camp—the team of John Sager and John Beeten opposed to the team of Dick Smith and Carlo Soresina. But the "dark horse" team of Billy Kepner and Billy Bacon may be declared the eventual winner. The Senior Camp has its close finishers and there too nothing definite will be known until the final banquet night, but the winner will be one of the following teams: Ted Humphrey and Walter Stone as a rival to "Chuck" Berns and Bill Henn. Three teams are closely grouped in the Junior Camp with Dick Lane allied to Bob Mackintosh, closely pressed by Carl Needy and Albert Richards as well as Bob Tibolt and Howard Hatch.

The final three week period of the 1938 started in full swing on last Saturday when thirty-three new boys were welcomed to Camp by the veteran campers. Throughout the day Director Clyde G. Hess was busy with assignment of tents to these boys, greeting parents, and the many other details of a camp change. By nightfall the boys had slipped into their roles as campers that make one wonder at the system which brings such smooth developments.

Recover Loot From Newton Burglary

The recent recovery of stolen articles at the jewelry store of Abraham Marion in South Boston solved a burglary committed on June 19 at the home of Dr. Arthur Norley, 47 Park st., Newton. A few weeks ago Arlington police arrested three South Boston youths as they were burglarizing a house in that town. One of the three, John Sullivan of Knowlton st., South Boston, was sentenced to Concord prison. His brother, James Sullivan was sent to Middlesex Prison for the short term of 3 months. Charles McDermott of Webb Court, South Boston was sent to Shirley Industrial School. It is alleged that the trio also committed burglaries in Belmont.

As a result of their arrests Boston police raided Marion's store and seized a house in that town. One of the three, John Sullivan of Knowlton st., South Boston, was sentenced to Concord prison. His brother, James Sullivan was sent to Middlesex Prison for the short term of 3 months. Charles McDermott of Webb Court, South Boston was sent to Shirley Industrial School. It is alleged that the trio also committed burglaries in Belmont.

More Burglaries In Newton Homes

Over the past week-end Newton police discovered that three houses in this city had been entered and looted. While the family of Herbert Moore, 145 Beaumont ave., Newtonville, was absent over the week-end, someone forced open the cellar door and stole children's books containing about $8. On Sunday while the family of Lawrence Rogers, 62 Falmouth rd., West Newton, were absent from their home someone entered the house through an unlocked window and stole a child's bank containing a small amount of money. The home of Marion Coles at 393 Hammond st., Chestnut Hill, was entered over the week-end and looted. As the family is away, the extent of the loot is not known.

Want Report On Retirement Fund

At the meeting of Newton City Employees Local last Friday night it was voted to request that the Newton Retirement Board send a copy to each employee of the city who is affiliated with the retirement system. Heretofore if any employee desired to obtain a copy of the annual report, he had to go to City Hall to obtain one. Employees of the Street, Water and Forestry Departments will hold their annual outing Saturday at Maynard. Residents of those parts of Newton where rubbish is collected on Saturday mornings have received notice from Acting Street Commissioner McCarthy that this week the rubbish will be collected on Friday afternoon and early evening.

WPA Has Cleaned 1000 Catch Basins

The WPA project of cleaning and repairing catch basins along Newton streets has been making good progress. Already over 1000 catch basins have been cleaned in Wards 1 and 7 and many have been repaired. There are 8464 catch basins in the city. There are now 140 men employed on this project which is under the supervision of James Tully.

City Clerk Grant Has Broken Leg

City Clerk Frank Grant received a fracture of his left leg on Sunday evening about 6 o'clock when he slipped on a wharf at Monument Beach, Cape Cod. Mr. Grant and Ralph Vales of Newtonville had been spending the week-end at the Cape and they had alighted from a motorboat owned by Roland Goodwin of Boston when the accident occurred. A spiral fracture above the ankle was set by a physician at the scene of the accident, and later Mr. Grant was brought to the Newton Hospital in a beach wagon. Monday morning Dr. Howard Moore and Dr. Thomas Gallagher reset the broken leg.

Two Orchestral Concerts Next Week

The Newton Orchestra presented another outdoor concert at the "Shell" Commonwealth ave. and Lexington rd., Auburndale, Tuesday evening before an audience of over 4000 people. Miss Ruth Bearse guest soloist of the evening was well received by the large audience and sang Morning; L'Amour Toujours L'Amour; and for an encore Miss Bearse sang Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life, by Victor Herbert. Miss Bearse a resident of Auburndale is the possessor of a rich lyric soprano voice, and more than did justice to her artistic presentation of her part of the program, and was applauded again and again, by the appreciative throng of music lovers. Miss Bearse will be heard again with the orchestra at a later date, in a new presentation of songs.

The orchestra, under the supervision of Albert H. Webber, and Herman C. Sulzen conductor, played masterfully. Mr. Sulzen's interpretation of the Meistersingers was well received, also "Molly on the Shore" an Irish Reel, by Percy Grainger, and the popular character piece, "The Flight of the Bumble Bee," by Rimsky-Korsakov, was also presented at its best; Mr. Greene, flutist and Mr. Lynch, clarinetist, both were outstanding in their solos in the last named number.

There will be two concerts presented by this popular orchestra next week at the "Shell" in Auburndale, one Monday, and another Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. On Monday evening, the voice of the President will be broadcast, this day being the third anniversary of the Social Security Act, and the orchestra will present different programs each night.

The "Shell" has been enlarged and the latest amplifiers carry the music to all parts of the playground where those wishing may remain in their cars and enjoy the presentations. The Newton police are on hand to preserve order, also a detail from the Playground Department. The orchestra and the electrically lighted aluminum "Shell" present a pretty picture in this beautiful playground. The public are earnestly invited to attend. Much credit is due Mayor Childs of Newton and members of the City Government, for their interest and co-operation of these weekly concerts.

Old Purity Ice House Burned

The old building at Pico rd., Newton Highlands, near the junction of Beacon and Walnut sts., was the scene of a stubborn fire which was discovered just after midnight on Wednesday. An alarm was sent in at 12:06 a. m., and the firemen were at the place for over 2 hours. The building was formerly used for the manufacture and storage of artificial ice, but it has not been used for years. Recently the machinery in the building was being cut apart and it is thought that an acetylene torch might have caused the blaze. Partitions in the structure with cork insulation between made the fire difficult to extinguish.

Start Auburndale Street Project

Work was begun this week on a street project at Auburndale under which Freeman st., now a private way, will become a public street under the betterment law by which the improvement will be based upon owners of property fronting upon the street. The work is being done by the Street Department and about twenty men have been assigned to the job by Acting Street Commissioner Charles J. McCarthy. The cost of the project, including the paving of the street and the construction of a drain is estimated at about $11,000. Freeman st. extends from Lexington st. to Stanford st.

Local U.C.C. Office Paid $224,031

The Newton office of the Unemployment Compensation Commission during the first 6 months of operation, from January 30 to July 30, paid a total of $224,031 and issued 20,589 checks. The payments made to all recipients of benefits from the Mass. Unemployment Compensation fund totalled $15,773,476 for the 6 months and the July payments totalled $2,925,859.

Burglary At Fireworks Plant

Burglars entered the office building at the Masten & Wells Fireworks Company last Friday night and ransacked the place, but their only loot was a number of toy revolvers. Patrolman Hoyt and McCormick observed the gate at the property open on last Saturday morning and made an investigation. They found that entrance to the building had been made by forcing a window open. The safe in the office, which had not been locked, had been opened and its contents had been disturbed. Docks in the office had also been ransacked. Harry Davis of Winthrop, owner of the company, was notified and came to the place. He said that the only articles stolen were the toy pistols. The safe had contained no money. The other buildings on the property, consisting of a number of sheds where fireworks had been made in past years, had not been entered. For many years no fireworks have been manufactured at the plant.

End Smells Caused By River Flood

The recent flood conditions which caused the Charles River to overflow and become polluted with sewage from upstream towns resulted in health nuisances at the Charlestown section between Oak Hill and Newton Upper Falls. Decaying vegetation on the shores of the river, and dead fish, victims of the pollution, caused such a stench at Charlestown that Acting Street Commissioner McCarthy sent a group of city employees to remove some of the decaying matter and spread lime at the worst spots. All along the river somewhat similar conditions have prevailed, caused largely by the intense hot spell which followed the flood.

Newton Relief Burden Increases

The cost of relief in Newton to the city was $2500 more in July than in June and the number of cases increased from 662 to 685. Of the cases on relief, 176 were listed as "unemployable" and 182 were cases where the principal relief is being provided through WPA, but because of the size of families, supplementary aid must be given by the city as the WPA allotment is not sufficient. The demand on private charity agencies in Newton also increased considerably in June and continued heavy during July.

Three Dog Owners Must Restrain Pets

Three owners of dogs that attacked persons in Newton Wednesday have been ordered to restrain their pets by the police department. In two of the cases, persons were bitten and in the third the clothes of the victim were torn.

Summer M. Howard of 65 Grove st., Auburndale, is the owner of a dog against whom complaint was made by Thomas Fahey of 2073 Commonwealth ave., Auburndale, and Alfred Dixon of Jackson st., Newton. He is the owner of a dog against whom Patrick Tiberio of 11 Beecher ter., Newton Centre, made complaint. Mary Dunn of 97 Adams st. complained that a dog owned by Virginia Tocci of 127 Linwood ave., Newtonville, tore her clothes.

Dr. C. Arthur Boutelle, city veterinarian, was notified to keep the biting dogs under observation.

Enegess Trustee Bell-Murphy Fund

M. John Enegess, probator officer at the Newton district court has been named as the third trustee of the $8700 fund contributed by citizens of Newton for the dependents of Henry Bell and Lawrence Murphy, two Newton policemen fatally shot on August 1937 by the criminal Edward Simpson. Mr. Enegess was selected by Judge Mayberry of the Newton court. The other two trustees are William M. Cahill of the Newton Trust Company, selected by Mayor Childs; and Sergeant Thomas Leehan of the Newton police, selected by Joseph Lyons, president of the Newton Police Benefit Association.

Francis Presides At House Session

Representative Douglas B. Francis of Newton Centre presided over the informal session of the House of Representatives last week Friday, being designated for the privilege by Speaker Horace T. Cahill, who was unable to attend. The session was probably the briefest on record with only a small number of members present, due to the fact that no business was planned for the day. Acting Speaker Francis called the House to order and recognized Representative Everberg's motion to adjourn.

Speaker Cahill Address Newton Rotary Club

Talks On Growth of the Mass. Great and General Court

Speaker Horace T. Cahill of the Massachusetts House of Representatives was the guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Rotary Club, Lyngsam A. Bruce, a former president of the club, presided at the meeting and Rep. Douglass B. Francis of Newton, a Rotarian, introduced Mr. Cahill.

Mr. Cahill, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor, addressed the members as the Speaker of the House and gave a very interesting sketch of the background and growth of parliamentary government in Massachusetts. The Massachusetts Legislature, an theologically known as the Great and General Court, is the oldest deliberative body in the world which has functioned continually. Founded in Watertown 308 years ago, it has met annually since. But for the suspension of the British Parliament for a period of years under Charles II, that body would now be the oldest of its kind. In the early days the Massachusetts Legislature was comprised of all freemen of the country. As the years passed the number of freemen increased to 2,400, and it became impossible to provide facilities for their meetings. Also, as two sessions were held, one in the spring and one in the fall, it became impossible for the freemen to leave their farms in sowing time or harvesting time and a change was made delegating the powers of every ten freemen to one representative. This was the first great reform in our representative system. The second great reform came about when it developed that nearly nine of every ten residents of Massachusetts were bondsmen. Freemen at that time were those citizens or residents who owned land and personal belongings and who also possessed what is now termed as good credit. Bondsmen were those who had bonded themselves, and often their families for years to come, in order to pay off their creditors or to atone for various misdemeanors. Bondsmen were deprived of their citizenship and right to hold office. A change was then made conferring the right of citizenship and the right to hold office although bonded. Meanwhile, Massachusetts had become controlled by the dictatorship of the clergy. This dictatorship is the blackest spot on the history of Massachusetts and it was not for some years that it eventually became overpowered by public opinion for a reform of this nature. The fourth great reform came with the establishment of a two-house legislature, a House and a Senate. Unlike other parliamentary bodies, however, where powers and duties of the two branches were separate and distinct, the Massachusetts system provided for concurrent or joint action by both branches on all legislative matters and it also provided for the three-branch form of government with the administrative or executive, legislative and judicial distinctions. During these 308 years, Mr. Cahill pointed out, the right of free petition of every citizen for the righting of grievances through the passages of new laws, repeal of old laws or the amending of existing laws has remained unabridged. That right of free petition is sacred to Massachusetts citizens.

The speaker proceeded to outline the various processes by which our laws are enacted or changed. There are no less than ten stages of debate on each measure, five in each of the two branches. Thus, despite some criticism that our laws are unduly and hastily considered, he pointed out that due deliberation is given every measure. He added that this is constantly forgotten by those who expect a petition introduced on a Thursday to become enacted into law by the next Monday.

A third portion of Mr. Cahill's address was devoted to the present deadlock on Beacon Hill between the Legislature and the Governor over the appropriation of $5,000,000 of funds collected from motorists through the gasoline tax. In connection with this situation, Mr. Cahill stated that although as Speaker of the House and in accord with the House and the Republican stand upon the matter, he would confine his remarks to statements of fact. These facts were substantially as follows: first, that the present administration has already had more money appropriated for the conduct of the state's business than any other previous administration, including the high budget of Governor Curley together with a $13,000,000 bond issue of 1935. Secondly that the Department of Public Works has had more money than a year ago. Thirdly that about twenty-eight millions of dollars has been made available, either through state, county and city and town appropriations, state money matched with Federal money, and other allocations of funds and that much of this money is actually in the state treasury waiting to be put to use. Following the conclusion of his address Mr. Cahill answered a number of questions among them as to his belief as to whether or not that the Republican legislature would continue to stand by its position in insisting that the remaining highway fund money be distributed among the cities and towns. To this query Mr. Cahill replied that he felt certain that it would have already given a total of $3,500,000 additional to the public works department since the controversy was initiated when Governor Hurley vetoed a bill distributing $8,500,000 to the cities and towns.

TAMPERING WITH JUSTICE

Among the problems which are encountered in the promotion of safety is the attitude of many persons towards seeking influence and using influence to have their cases "fixed" before they are compelled to go before a judge. There isn't a police department, an office holder, or any other person who could be presumed to have some influence with the police in a matter of this kind that has not been importuned at some time or other to "do something for a friend of mine". In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the police officer has warned, ticketed or summoned to court the person at fault for just cause—infrequently it is done for spite or because the officer was feeling "grouchy". As soon as a ticket is given or as soon as the officer intimates he will seek a summons the culprit gets busy in one way or another to have the case "fixed" before he goes to court. What about the persons he seeks to have it fixed through. In a sense he is as guilty of tampering with justice as the jury briber and perjurer. The only way to stop this insidious evil, and it is insidious in that it promotes lack of respect for law, is through the awakening of both the culprit and the "fixer" that it is a misdemeanor which should not be countenanced. We understand that this is a matter which the Traffic Committee of the Aldermen is taking up and their efforts along these lines should receive the hearty endorsement of all citizens.

THE STATE'S LOSS—THE COUNTY'S GAIN

State Commissioner of Public Health Henry Chadwick has resigned his position as of September first and will accept the position as medical director and assistant superintendent of the Middlesex County Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Waltham. Dr. Chadwick is outstanding as a public health officer and in the opinion of most persons should not only have been permitted, but should have been given every reasonable inducement to remain. His term as head of the State Board of Health expired last April and for the past several months he has been serving only until his successor was appointed. Twice the Governor's Council has rejected Governor Hurley's choice for that position. Dr. Chadwick, in accepting the hospital position, returns to the field of special work in which he became famous. In either position the eminent physician would render valuable service and the State's loss will be the County's gain.

Union Service At First Unitarian Church

Although many people of this city are away on vacations, the union services of seven co-operating churches of Newtonville, West Newton and Auburndale, are drawing large congregations. Rev. Dr. Lynn J. Radcliffe, of Syracuse, N. Y., and radio minister for his city, will again deliver one of his inspiring sermons at next Sunday's service at 11 o'clock at the Unitarian Church, West Newton. Dr. Radcliffe is popular as a college preacher, having been heard recently at Wesleyan, Syracuse, and North-eastern universities, so the young people should be drawn to hear him. Music next Sunday will be by a mixed quartet, with the following program: "In Paradisum," Dubois; anthem, "To God on High," Debus; offertory, "Turn Thy Face From My Sins," Sullivan; postlude, "Nun Danket Alle Gott," Karg-Elert.

Although there were several withdrawals of candidates for various state and county offices before five o'clock last Friday afternoon there have been no important changes in the many contests. As the campaigns develop there will be greater interest in the major contests and for this reason this week we will confine our attention to some of the contests which at this writing appear to be practically settled.

That veteran campaigner and well-known Republican office holder, Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook, cannot lose re-election to office this year unless there is an unprecedented Democratic sweep in the November election. Unopposed for the renomination, and the only Republican candidate for state-wide office enjoying this distinction, he will again be a stalwart standard bearer for the G. O. P.

There is another of the so-called Big Six offices which seems definitely settled at this time. That is in the contest for State Auditor where Russell A. Wood of Cambridge should have little difficulty in receiving the nomination over Carl D. Goodwin of Boston. Mr. Wood was the Republican candidate in 1936 after winning the nomination from Richard Darby of Everett. Mr. Wood received the nomination following the sudden death of Oscar Dionne of Fall River after the latter has received the endorsement of the pre-primary convention at Springfield. Having been active in politics for many years and having campaigned throughout the state as a party worker prior to his own candidacy two years ago Mr. Wood's name is well-known to the voting populace. Incidentally it might be said that Mr. Wood's November opponent will in all probability be the present State Auditor, Thomas H. Buckley of Abington. A glance at the election returns of two years ago indicates that this is one of the offices which the Republican party may recapture this coming fall. In the 1936 election Auditor Buckley received $73,214 votes and Candidate Wood polled 101,296 votes—a difference of a little more than 60,000 ballots. A swing from Democratic strength, upon which many Republicans are counting and with some indications of well-founded belief and hope, of but 30,000 votes would give Mr. Wood success in his contest. And 60,000 votes is approximately but one and one-half per cent of the 1,800,000 total vote cast for governor two years ago.

A national tinge to the coming campaign will be introduced next week Wednesday at Nahant where a big out-going sponsored by Republican women of the state will be held. John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican national committee, will make his first Massachusetts appearance here since the Landon campaign of two years ago. The gathering is expected to attract a large and enthusiastic group of Republicans as well as Republican candidates for state office and for Congress. Hamilton will be the chief guest of honor and will be able to make the trip only by flying to and from Washington by plane. Other guests of honor will be the national committee women and vice-chairmen of state committees from all the New England states.

Meanwhile there are many items of political news which are current gossip in various parts of the state. Without making any comment as to the importance of these items or as to our opinion on their merit most of them are exceedingly interesting to those who are paying attention to political affairs. One of the most interesting bits of so-called gossip is the feeling in many parts of the state that Leverett Saltonstall will win handily the contest for the Republican nomination for Governor. A recent news dispatch from Salem brought out the fact that many friends of Candidate Frederick Butler were disappointed and downcast over the response they were getting to their efforts to promote their candidate. Incidentally these supporters of the Essex County Commissioner seemed to feel that they were getting the "run-around" from influential Republicans whom they had felt could be counted upon. As to the Whitcomb candidacy it seems to have quieted down considerably although this may be due to greater concentrated activity in some more remote part of the state or to a respite preparatory to more concerted and strenuous effort in the late weeks of the primary campaign. As for McMaisters, there is hardly anyone who takes him seriously as a Republican candidate but who realize that he may have considerable strength as an independent candidate in November, at least enough which might swing the election one way or the other.

Another interesting bit of gossip is that the politicians are eyeing Lieutenant Governor Kelly's campaign with their tongue in their cheek. It is said that many believe he has a "political" rabbit's foot in his pocket. Word from Lawrence is that Ex-Governor Curley has that industrial city sewed up as far as the Democratic nomination is concerned. And they are also talking Curley in a big way in several industrial cities of Bristol county. One of the best political billboards signs is seen approaching Boston from southern Massachusetts—reads Ex-Next and Best—Governor Curley. Another slight indication of Curley's masterful political wisdom and strategy.

Speaker Horace T. Cahill not only got a great reception but many substantial offers of support during a recent trip to Berkshire county. We are told. He also seems to be going to town in other western Massachusetts cities and towns particularly Holyoke, Northampton and Springfield. Incidentally this is despite the endorsement that former Judge Kenneth Johnson, also a candidate for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant governor, received public endorsement of his candidacy from John W. Haigis, 1936 Republican gubernatorial candidate. Some say, however, that this endorsement is not as important as it might be believed to be in that many Haigis supporters would be with him personally but could not be influenced by his support for others. It is also said that Johnson is a "grudge" candidate—that he did not enter the field until after Cahill and that the personal feeling between the two comes from the fact that Johnson was for Haigis and Cahill with Saltonstall at the 1936 pre-primary convention. Meanwhile Howard has been most active in Essex County. A gathering in Sudbury and other towns in that vicinity recently heard most of the candidates for the lieutenant governorship. We are told that Mayor Dewey Archambault of Lowell made the best impression and that Wilson should be rated as a candidate with ability to make a real fight. Howard was classed as the ablest and best informed on state finances but not regarded highly as an orator. Cahill, our informant says, will get a big boost if successful in the legislative fight on Beacon Hill but will lose strength if the Governor is the victor there.

An interesting comment upon the Russell candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor is that the W. P. vote is supposedly being lined up for him. As in other states notices have been given to W. P. workers to refrain from circulating nomination papers and otherwise taking part in political affairs but nevertheless, there is probably some political influence being brought to bear. Whether or not it actually is for Russell we do not know.

It is also whispered that Hurley would be the toughest opponent for Saltonstall to face in the election in November. Should the present Governor win a second term nomination it is believed the Democratic party and many independent voters would feel that a majority of Democrats endorse his administration of the past two years it would be O. K. to give him another two years.

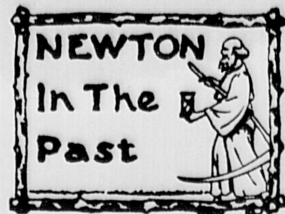

One of the surprises of the past week is the endorsement that local Democrats have given to Thomas E. Cronin for the Democratic nomination for Congress from the 9th district. Cronin probably feels pretty certain of a good vote in Newton, having successfully conducted several aldermanic campaigns in his own behalf and is more active at present in other parts of the district. Among his campaign advisers is John Cunningham of Cambridge who was a Paul Dwyer campaign manager. The Cronin forces also feel that the Eliot strategy induced several of the Cambridge candidates to get into the fight in order to cut down Cronin strength in several Cambridge wards.

The so-called Young Republicans are interesting themselves in the Governor's campaign. In the third district which includes Newton, Wallace Stearns, founder of the young republican movement, is managing the campaign of Dr. Seth Arnold of Boston against present Councillor Frank A. Brooks, one of the two most stalwart Republican members of the present Council. While Stearns will manage Arnold's campaign Roger Lutz of Newton Centre, a past president of the Young Men's Republican League of Boston, has accepted the chairmanship of the Newton district.

THE NON-SWIMMER TO THE RESCUE—SAFELY!

Even if all bathers were qualified swimmers with a full knowledge of safety practices, or if those who are indifferent, or non-swimmers, would confine their activities to safe and well supervised waters, there would still be considerable incidence of unavoidable accidents. This alone would make a knowledge of life saving almost a necessary requirement for those who frequent bathing places. A considerable number of those who seek recreation in and on the water are unable to swim, and do not distinguish between safe and unsafe practices because of lack of knowledge and skill. The frequency with which many such people get into difficulty makes some elementary knowledge of life saving almost a necessity to anyone, regardless of his swimming ability, or lack of it. It is not necessary to wait until one swim well before he undertakes to learn life saving. There are many ways of assisting or rescuing a drowning person which require no swimming ability at all, and still others in which a little swimming skill, or ability to handle a boat, is all that is needed.

There is a whole series of forms of rescue by which drowning persons may be aided with little risk to the rescuer. These methods are taught daily at Crystal Lake under the direction of Mr. E. M. Westgate, Red Cross Instructor for the Newton Chapter, American Red Cross. In the past two weeks the total attendance in the non-swimmer class has been 346; 40 boys passed the Swimmer's test, and more than a hundred passed the Red Cross Beginner's test. The third course in life saving began Tuesday, August 9th, with ten boys training for their Junior Life Saving certificates and badges; the fourth, and last course of the season will start in about three weeks. For information regarding the aquatic program at Crystal Lake phone the Newton Chapter, American Red Cross—Newton No. 2717—or see Mr. Westgate at Crystal Lake. These courses are free, and all citizens of Newton are urged to take advantage of this opportunity offered by the Newton Chapter, American Red Cross.

The Methodist Church at Newton is closed for frescoing, carpeting, etc., and will not be open for services until further notice.

An unknown man was seen to crawl out from under the 5:05 p. m. train from Boston when it reached the Newton station last Friday, having evidently stolen a ride on one of the undersiders. He left a bottle in his place of concealment. Its contents probably fortified him for his foolish act.

The Newton Baseball Team will take a two days trip this week, leaving Newton on Friday morning. They will play the Westfields at Westfield on Friday afternoon, and on Saturday will play two games with Holyoke at Holyoke. These two clubs are rated among the best in the State, and the Holyoke games will be on a championship basis.

As we went to press last week the B. & A. railroad was again putting up a fence at the foot crossing near the old Unitarian Church on Washington st., opposite Channing st., Newton. The previous fence had been torn down by owners of abutting properties, but the new fence conforms with the line of the last land purchased by the B. & A. for the widening of its right of way. The reason for the change was the persistence of the owners who have a right of way to the railroad line. A tunnel for pedestrians will probably be put under the tracks at this point, and the protestants will probably allow the railroad to build a fourth track now over the land now owned by them. A tunnel, if kept well drained and free from snow in winter, would be the safest means of crossing the railroad tracks. It would relieve the anxiety of parents who have disliked to send their children to school when they had to cross the tracks at this point.

Edward P. Burnham and wife started this week on a 10 days' driving trip to New Hampshire.

W. F. Knapp of Newton has been wonderfully successful on his English racing tour and in a 100 mile contest he broke all bicycle records from 30 to 100 miles. Horace Crocker of Newton served as one of his pacer-makers.

Mr. Francis Kendall of Park st., his wife and two other ladies, while out for a drive a few days since, were all thrown out of the carriage when it upset at the corner of Bridge and Watertown sts., Nonantum. They fortunately escaped injury.

Brighton Hill, Newton has been the scene of some pleasant evening concerts. They have been given on the grounds of Dr. Bartlett, Mr. Marshall and Mr. Sawtell, and last evening on the Claffin estate. An excellent orchestra furnished music and a large number of people were present, many driving from distant places. The three residences on the estate, occupied by Messrs. Wells, Allen and Whitmore, were tastefully decorated with Japanese lanterns.

A gentleman representing Milo Stevens & Company of Washington, D. C. can be seen during the day and evening on August 27 at the Newton House, Newton by persons desiring pensions, bounties, etc., for service in the Civil War, or having claims which they may desire to have prosecuted by said attorneys.

The Republicans of Auburndale threw out a Harrison & Morton flag in the square on Saturday evening shortly after 8 o'clock. The wire on which the flag is suspended runs from two poles, one on Lexington st., the other at the end of the railroad bridge. It was expected that the Newton City Band would furnish appropriate selections but for some unaccountable reasons the musicians failed to appear. When the flag was drawn out three cheers were given for the Stars and Stripes, and three more for Harrison and Morton. Hon. William B. Fowle, ex-mayor of Newton made a brief address. He said that he always believed that if the issues of protection and free trade were brought before the people, free trade would be sunk so deep that it never could be resuscitated. A large percentage of the labor vote will be for Harrison and Morton because the U. S. A. has attracted laborers from all parts of the world for the simple reason that laboring men are better off here than in any part of the earth.

Shirtless Men

A Newton woman started quite a controversy when she wrote a letter to a Boston newspaper last week complaining about some of her men neighbors mowing lawns unattired from the waist up. The letter was printed under the caption—"Protest Against Men in Deshabille." Some of the letters written in reply to the protest agree with the sentiments expressed by the Newton woman. Other letters ridicule the protest, and it is interesting that most of them were written by women who take the stand that men have been and are slaves to fashion and should be entitled to dress as comfortably as the female sex.

One letter written by a Braintree woman refers to the fact that while "modest women" can go abroad in hot weather attired (or unattired) in dresses low in front and back, stockless and wearing one thin slip under a muslin dress, men are expected to sweater under collars, neckties and coats. We agree with the contention that it is ridiculous for men to perspire in such weather as we have had this summer, wearing collars, neckties and coats, when the temperature is 85 and over, and very humid. We have displayed, in freedom from the restraints of polite standards by going about without a necktie, collar or coat. We believe that men have the same right as have women to dress sanely and comfortably.

But, we also agree with the protest of the Newton woman about the youths and men who during the past few years have adopted the habit of going "in the yards" on streets, tennis courts and other places. We have mentioned this subject in this column a few times, and stated that our objections were based not on moral grounds, but on esthetic. We commented that hairy chested, potbellied males are not things of beauty, and that few of them bear much resemblance to Apollo or Tarzan. Our sentiments, in part, coincide with those of a Cambridge woman who wrote a letter to the Boston newspaper which has been printing the controversial views. She said—"With many I think it is not so much shocked modesty or Puritanical Bostonianism, as the incongruity of the thing. Men, fundamentally vain, fail to realize how ugly and unattractive they are in their various stages of undress. A hairy chested male is not a thing of beauty, still he does not look much more like a monkey than those who go about in suspenders; simply the difference between an undressed and a dressed up monkey. Even the most handsome of our youth who go about in the high-hipped trousers and funny suspenders of today's fashion, only need a hasty-gully to complete the picture. Yet a man in a newiee shirt and belted trousers, looks not only comfortable, but attractive."

We coincide with the views of the Cambridge lady insofar as they refer to semi-nudity on the part of males. But, we differ from the lady on her phobia against suspenders. Years ago, when belts became fashionable, we attempted to be in style by wearing a belt. But at that time we were a thin and narrow-hipped that a belt would not hold our trousers up, and we had to pull it so tight that it caused intestinal trouble. In recent years we have grown stouter, until our girth at the abdomen is such that it is quite necessary to put so much tension on a belt, that it affects our males, 1; trespass, 1; violation of liquor law, 1.

Congressman Burnett was home for a vacation last week and stated that there is no doubt but that free delivery of mail will soon be granted for Wards 1 and 7, served by the Newton postoffice. Postmaster General Dickinson is away on a fishing trip with President Cleveland and that is the reason we have not heard from him before.

As E. M. Billings of Upper Falls was taking an early morning ride on his bicycle on Tuesday, he took a header, and consequently was considerably shaken up and bruised, but he escaped serious injury.

Intestines, and while we may possess intestinal fortitude, we don't want our innards continually punished. And if the Cambridge lady and others of her sex had a realization of the physical effects that "belts" have on a large percentage of the males of the species, she would not assert that sensible men who wear healthful suspenders look like monkeys. Personally, we can't see anything objectionable in a clean pair of suspenders, and we believe a man wearing them to be less obnoxious than some fat person whose trousers are continually slipping down under a belt, exposing the fall or the front of his shirt, and causing him to be frequently hitching up his pants.

As for the Cambridge lady's assertion that—"men are fundamentally vain," one might suspect that she is a man-hater. Some men are vain and others are not, and the same thing can be said of women. And the men—apart from pansies and abnormalities—don't resort to such manifestations of vanity as do a large percentage of women. The men don't smear their lips with scarlet, dab their cheeks with rouge, powder their noses, pluck their eyebrows, paint their fingernails and toenails, spend hours getting permanent waves and ruin their health by trying to reduce. And if they went out in public wearing such fantastic contraptions as women place on their heads, the men would look much more comical than they do wearing suspenders. Even though the women may choose to torture themselves in foundation garments trying to appear less obese than they really are, we men who are not vain, will continue to wear suspenders, although we might look more attractive inside of a belt. And if the ladies who are disgusted with the growing practice of youths and older males going about naked from the waist up want to stop this alleged nuisance, why don't they enquire of proper officials why the males are prohibited from appearing at public beaches without wearing a shirt, and yet are permitted to do so in thickly settled cities and towns?

Mosquitoes Biting

According to State officials, Massachusetts during the past two weeks has had a worse source of mosquitoes than it has had for years. Possibly you may have arrived at this conclusion yourself without being told by the late entomologist. You may have been one of the many who immediately after reclining on your innerspring mattress any night during the past couple of weeks, has heard the battle-cry of some mosquito as it was about to make a one-point landing on your phizz, neck or some other part of you, and you realized as you made futile swipes in the dark at your attacker, how helpless you were. There is not much you can do to escape from the prevailing mosquito nuisance. Even though your home is well screened, the tiny, pesky nuisances crawl into the house some way, or you may bring in a few on your clothes. And don't bother city officials by asking them to eliminate the mosquito nuisance in your particular neighborhood. The pests are all over the city. They are numerous in Newton, West Newton, Auburndale and the other villages, just as they are in Oak Hill. They don't require the Charles River or ponds to breed in. They have been breeding in any little bit of water, including catch basins, house gutters, and even partly filled, small tin cans.

In a court in this State the other day a motorist was found guilty of driving so as to endanger the lives of the public. This driver was also charged with manslaughter. The car he was driving had killed a man. The penalty imposed was a fine of $75. With the record of automobile fatalities published daily, and with all the publicity that has been given for years in efforts to promote safe driving, speeders and reckless drivers know full well that they are taking chances of killing or maiming someone. Yet judges continue to refrain from sending such killers of human beings to jail, even for a few months. Until see—

COLUMBUS BIRTH PLACE AND BURIAL PLACE UNKNOWN

ALTHOUGH THERE HAVE BEEN MANY CLAIMS FROM VARIOUS LATIN COUNTRIES THAT COLUMBUS WAS BORN IN THEIR TERRITORY, IT HAS BEEN GENERALLY ACCEPTED THAT HE WAS BORN IN NEAR GENOVA BUT IT IS NOT KNOWN EXACTLY WHERE. SHORTLY AFTER HIS RETURN FROM HIS LAST VOYAGE COLUMBUS DIED, AND HE WAS BURIED AT VALLADOLID (SPAIN) BUT SOON AFTERWARDS HIS REMAINS WERE MOVED TO THE CARHUSAN MONASTERY OF LAS CUEVAS, SEVILLE, IN 1556. THE BODIES OF COLUMBUS AND HIS SON WERE EXAMINED AND SENT OVERSEAS TO SAN DOMINGO AND INTERRED IN THE CATHEDRAL. IN 1795-56 WHEN THE FRENCH TOOK OVER THE ISLAND THE REMAINS (?) WERE AGAIN MOVED. THIS TIME TO SEVILLE. A FEW YEARS LATER IT WAS SUPPOSED BONES WERE MOVED BACK TO SEVILLE, BUT NO CONCLUSIVE PROOF THAT THEY WERE. THE BONES HAVE BEEN UNCOVERED, SEVILLE, HAWAII AND SAN DOMINGO MAY ALL LAY CLAIM TO AN UNKNOWN TOMB AND HAVE YET TO DISCOVER WHERE LIES THE REAL BONES OF THE DISCOVERER OF AMERICA.

Newton Archers Hold 5th Monthly Handicap

On Saturday, Aug. 6th the Newton Archers held the 5th monthly handicap tournament in honor of charter members. The club is celebrating its 25th anniversary this year. Winners of the tournament with handicap were: for the ladies, Mrs. Dorothy Matthews; men: Mr. M. E. Rich; Juniors, Scott Doten. Those having high score for the shoot without handicap were: ladies, Mrs. J. C. Wingett; men, Bob Goldich; Junior, Philip Spofford. Second places without handicap were taken by Mr. Walter Kimber, Mrs. Teresa Goldich and Scott Doten. The W. E. Long cup for members was won by Walter Kimber. Prizes were awarded by Miss Ruth Breier, vice-president of the Newton Archers.

DeStefano Wins First Junior Archery Contest

The archery classes held every morning at the Newton Centre playground under the supervision of Miss Cynthia Kenway are increasingly well represented. An average of ten newcomers register each week, making a total of sixty-seven to date.

Interest and eagerness are running particularly high now that the boys and girls are concentrating on certain achievements to win medals. Six different medals can be acquired, and the National Junior Archers' Association provides them at cost to those who meet the requirements. Six children have already earned either one, two or three of these medals.

Dunsmore Walsh is leading the field, having met the requirements for three medals, and well on his way for the fourth. Billy DeStefano and Scott Doten are close runners-up, with two medals each to their credit.

As was done last Saturday, the younger and less experienced archers shoot 30 arrows from the 30 yard line, to begin the morning's tournament. Josephine MacIsaac placed first, well ahead of all the other participants to score 26-147. Norman Stickney edged Arthur Abramson for 19-65 to 13-61.

The remaining contestants scored as follows:

Leonard Farwell	13-51
Roderick Clifford	11-39
James Manuvel	8-36
Junior MacCormick	6-34
Norman Brisson	8-24
Felice Edelman	4-22
Richard Eastman	4-20
Arthur Urrows	4-10
Arthur Edelman	3-7
John O'Neill	1-1

Following this, ten older boys and girls shot their first Junior American Round of the season, which is a total of 90 arrows, 30 each at 50 yards, 40 yards and 30 yards respectively. Those who took part in this shoot did exceptionally well, and any Junior Archer would be proud to have any one of the scores these children made. Competition for first place was keen and close, but William DeStefano proved to be the best man for the day. His high score was 82-384. Scott Doten was runner-up with 69-341, and Dunsmore Walsh was just behind with 72-333. The remaining seven scored in this order: Leonard White, 64-298; Roderick Clifford, 46-172; Sadie MacIsaac, 55-250; Allen Fallows, 40-160; Helen Wales, 44-182; Eunice MacIsaac, 27-131; Levinka Stickney, 37-129.

RUBBISH BREEDS MOSQUITOES

To the Editor of the Graphic:
Recently the newspapers have told of one of the worst infestations of mosquitoes in the last ten years, and have advised clearing of rubbish heaps and draining. I should like to call attention to two types of mosquito breeding places common in Newton.

Many people are in the habit of dumping the grass clippings from their lawns in empty lots. These piles in a short time not only give off offensive odors but make ideal breeding places for mosquitoes.

On most of the houses there are gutters which either sag or become clogged with dirt or leaves so that water stands in them practically all the time.

If our citizens will have their gutters attended to and will clear away their rotting grass clippings, two of our worst mosquito nuisances will be abated.

Ames to this! (Editor's Note—Referring to letter and reprinted editorial on noisy fireworks in our last issue.) I was in the Surgical Ward of Newton Hospital the past Fourth of July, and the noise up to midnight was nerve shattering not only to me but to other patients seriously ill. Quiet means so much to the sick that it seems as though any community as enlightened as Newton should guarantee it as much as possible.

LIGHTNING ON MT. WASHINGTON

To the Editor:

Thrilling recollections came to me on reading in last week's GRAPHIC the account of my father, Henry M. Burt's experience in being struck by lightning on Mount Washington 55 years ago. It was probably as narrow an escape from death in that manner as any one ever had, and he owed his recovery to the speedy and energetic care which he received.

The injury happened in the old Tiptop House, the ancient stone hotel built in 1853 and still in use, though much enlarged. We were at that time publishing in the old building the daily paper "Among the Clouds," started by him in 1877. Telling the story in the GRAPHIC of August 4, 1888, he stated that the mountain was in a cloud at the time and a drizzling rain was falling, but there were no signs of electrical disturbance. He was standing at a window between the editorial table and a stand of type, and only a few feet from a stove from which an iron smoke pipe led to the roof.

"Presently," he says, "I felt a severe thrust in the back and all being excited, I could not but imagine the cause; but instantly there appeared a large, dark red ball of fire in front and a little to the right. A terrific explosion followed and then all was explained. I realized that I had been struck by lightning, and was startled and confused in mind. I clenched the table on one side and the type stand on the other, endeavoring to hold myself up. I had the feeling that something had gone through my body and all being in a daze, I exclaimed, 'I am struck! Open the door and give me air!' and down I sank to the floor. My printers sprang to their feet and one of them replied to my exclamation, 'So am I!' and all then went plunging and reeling to the door and out of it toward the hotel. Such expressions of fear and surprise I had never before seen on human faces. In a few minutes they returned with help and as I lay outstretched on the floor they lifted me up and carried me to a room in the hotel where I was carefully and skillfully treated, and after two or three hours of hard rubbing my paralyzed limb was relieved. The electric current had taken effect in the small of the back, just left of the spine, and had passed down the left leg, between the toes and out through the sole of the foot, leaving unmistakable traces in its course."

"Had the current been a little larger or had it struck a vital point, life would have gone instantly out. . . . The thoughts that were flashed through the mind with the first shock were indelibly impressed, while all that followed is vague and uncertain."

It seems likely that the lightning descended the stovepipe, thence passed through a large coal shovel which lay on the floor, its blade toward the stove, splintering the wooden handle into two; then up an iron pipe which supported the lamps over the type case, finally, with force perhaps partly spent, jumping against my father's back. He was able to go down the mountain by the train next morning to join the family at the Mount Pleasant House, where with half suppressed excitement he startled us with the remark, "I've been struck by lightning." It was many months before he fully recovered.

An old notion prevailed in some quarters at that time that burying a victim of lightning in the ground would draw the electricity from his body. A fantastic tale crept into the press and traveled far and wide that my father was subjected to this treatment, being taken to the Base Station and buried up to his neck in the earth, and that the effects of the shock were thereby relieved. Needless to say, he fell into sane hands, to whom he no doubt owed his life. The congestion of blood in the veins of his back gave the appearance of a tree, which is sometimes believed to have been mysteriously photographed on a person struck in this manner.

Strangely, I had an escape from such an accident two years earlier, while standing in almost the exact position in which my father received his shock. Beyond the excitement caused by a terrific explosion like the

COOLIDGE CORNER THEATRE, BROOKLINE

Without doubt the most poignant and moving love story ever brought to the screen is "Man's Castle," co-starring Loretta Young and Spencer Tracy, and which opens for a week's run on Friday, August 12th, at the Coolidge Corner Theatre, Brookline.

Director Frank Borzage is equally responsible for the powerful appeal of a homey love story told mid town, squalor-filled surroundings, Borzage's deft touches and the artistry with which the two perfect players interpret their roles put into the production a pathos and moving force which sweeps the spectator along with it in a flood of emotional appeal. Tracy is seen as a shiftless, homeless vagrant, and Miss Young as a hungry, helpless waif whom he rescues from the streets and takes to his ramshackle tin shanty in the river side "dumps." Footloose and irresponsible, he soon becomes restless under the restraint of living so long in one place, and he tells the girl he doesn't love her and plans to leave her. She, happy in the home she has, sees her world crumbling beneath her. The girl announces that she is soon to become a mother. But that means nothing to the vagrant, except that he must now provide the money to care for both before he can leave. To get money he attempts a robbery and fails. But the results of that failure straighten out the tangled romance of these children of poverty. Exceptionally capable players support the stars. Marjorie Rameau, Glenda Farrell, Walter Connolly, Arthur Hohl and Dickie Moore are among the actors who add brilliant performances to a brilliant film.

The excellent co-feature on this program is "Rascals," starring Jane Withers, America's number one mischief maker, Jane Withers aided by Borrah Minevitch and his refugees from a musical madhouse, the harmonica gang, cavorts through the picture with the skill of a seasoned trouper and leaves her movie fans hysterical with mirth while Robert Wilcox and Rochelle Hudson untangle the skeins of a love that is hampered by a jealous tzigany and a title seeking mother. Rochelle, fleeing marriage to a titled fortune-hunter, stumbles into the camp where Wilcox, a college youth, is seeing the world from the romantic atmosphere of Romany songs and dances. Matchmaker Jane goes to work in this situation and any one with so much as a nodding acquaintance with her technique can judge the result. A riotous climax is the racial band barging into a society wedding to break up the ceremony, so that everything can end happily, if not hysterically. Others in the cast are Rochelle Hudson, Robert Wilcox, Borrah Minevitch, Steff Duna and Kathleen Burke.

In addition to the two outstanding features, there will be your latest issue of the "March of Time," presenting interesting and national subjects. Of course there will be the latest Coolidge Corner Theatre Newsreel.

Our cooling plant is in operation, making this theatre a weekly habit, and enjoy a good show here, every week in "cool comfort."

The Grandfather Clauses

The grandfather clauses were a provision in state constitutions by which a person's right to vote was based on his descent from a voter. Its purpose was to prevent Negroes from taking part in elections. North Carolina, Louisiana, Georgia and Oklahoma had such clauses in their constitutions. In 1914 the United States Supreme court declared the Oklahoma provision in conflict with the Fifteenth amendment. While there was no mention of race, color or previous condition of servitude, the court held the effect was to disfranchise the descendants of former slaves. In the other states the clauses expired of self-limitation. The grandfather clauses usually read, in effect, something like this: "No persons shall vote in this state if he is unable to read and write, unless his father or grandfather was a voter before 1867."

Marriage by Elopement Is Common in Bali Land

In Bali, prearranged marriage is in general the old-fashioned respectable way for the feudal aristocracy to marry; but marriage by elopement is much more common, writes Miguel Covarrubias, in Asia Magazine.

The average boy in love with a girl makes his marriage arrangements directly with her and, aside from his father, perhaps, and a few friends from whom he needs help, he keeps his intentions secret until the day, previously agreed upon between the boy and girl, when he will steal her.

Shy couples simply run away together to the house of a friend, as a rule in another village, where they spend their honeymoon in hiding. But the Balinese love spectacular kidnappings. The girl arranges for her clothes to be taken secretly to the future hideout, and on the appointed day she is captured somewhere on the road in the fields or on the river by the kidnaping party led by her suitor.

She is expected to kick and bite her abductors. Although there may be witnesses, they would not dream of interfering, unless they are relatives of the girl, in which case they are supposed to put up a great fight.

At her home, as soon as her disappearance is discovered her enraged father is supposed to run to the alarm drum-tower and beat the kulkul, asking who took his daughter, but, of course, no one knows. Even a searching party may be organized for the fun of it, but after a while they return breathless and empty handed.

The great marriage ceremony is supposed to take place within 42 days after the kidnaping, but in some cases it has been performed considerably later if there is not enough money immediately available for the festivities.

Gnome Rat Is Relative of Common Kangaroo Rat

The gnome rat is a close relative of the fairly common kangaroo rat of the West. It lives only in a very limited area in southern Idaho and Nevada, which is covered with wind-blown sand of a certain texture. In this sand the rat burrows at the feet of rare bushes. So fine is its adaptation to this peculiar environment—where hardly any other mammal can live, so that it is fairly free from enemies—that it cannot exist in a region where the sand is a trifle coarser or finer.

Its feet and toes are heavily furred. In other words, it apparently wears "sandshoes" to keep it from sinking into the drifts of fine sand. These are much the same principle as snowshoes.

Another peculiarity, according to a writer in the Washington Star, is that, living in a waterless desert, it "carries water bottles" around with it. About the only food is the seed of a tiny shrub that is scattered over this queer desert. This shrub bears pods, each of which contains a droplet of water. The gnome rat found this out, gathers the pods and carries them around in its cheek pouch and even stores them for the winter so that it will have water when needed.

Every now and then they are almost completely wiped out by starvation. They are strictly nocturnal in their habits, remaining crouched in their burrows during the day.

Training Elephants

In India, Burma, and Siam elephants have been domesticated since written history began, being used as beasts of burden and for hunting. The period of training lasts many years, says a writer in the Chicago Tribune, and a well-trained animal will frequently command a price as high as $5,000. Contrary to general belief, the big African elephants are about as amenable to training as their Indian cousins. The armies of ancient Carthage used African elephants in war, and, according to Vevers: "At Api, in the Congo, there were in 1928 fifty elephants in training, nineteen of which had completed the course and were working animals. The training is done by local natives who learned their business from Indian mahouts imported as instructors. Half-grown wild elephants are chosen for training, which is carried on for ten years before the animal is strong enough for regular work. Attempts to shorten the period of training in the past have always ended in the death of the animal."

"The Thinker"

The statue "The Thinker," is by Auguste Rodin, the greatest of French sculptors. His original idea was to employ the figure above a museum doorway he had been commissioned to make, and a study which had this use in view was displayed in Paris in 1889. But he did not use it for that purpose, and the huge bronze "The Thinker," was not exhibited until 1904, in Paris. Soon afterward it was shown in plaster at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in St. Louis. This plaster figure is now in the Metropolitan museum in New York. There are several bronze casts in this country—including the one at the entrance of the Cleveland Museum of Art, another in Detroit, and a third in Golden Gate park, San Francisco. The first cast of "The Thinker" is at the Rodin museum in Paris. Rodin was born in 1840 and died November 17, 1917.

Humming Birds Adorned With Moustache, Crest

If you were told that humming birds had moustaches, would you believe it? Yet that is true of some species. If told that they were pugnacious, would you still be skeptical? This also is true. These little birds, smallest of the feathered tribe, have many interesting peculiarities, observes a writer in Tit-Bits Magazine.

Hawks and crows often fly ignominiously before the onslaughts of these little creatures, and either sex will attack any bird that offends them or comes near their nest. Humming birds in many species have moustaches, chin pendants, fanciful crests upon the head, puffs on the legs and other adornments, which they display with delight and vanity when courting the plainer female.

There are approximately 500 species of humming birds and they are confined almost entirely to North and South America. Humming birds have tiny, light bodies, remarkably powerful wing muscles, long, narrow wings, and very short wing bones. This gives them speed at the expense of power and enables them to poise in mid-air before flowers while they catch insects that feed on the nectar, and to dart through the air so rapidly that they often elude the eye.

Their bill is frequently twice as long as their head. This enables them to delve deep into the recesses of the flowers they frequent.

The Helena humming bird of Cuba is believed to be the smallest bird in the world. It was discovered by Dr. Juan Gundlach in 1850.

Fingers, Hands, Arms and Feet as Measure Guides

Originally, measurements were based on portions of the fingers, hands, arms, and feet; horses are measured in "hands." The "hand" is the distance across the palm, including the thumb when it is kept close to the palm.

In England, says London Tit-Bits Magazine, the old inch was the distance across the base of the thumb, but in Scotland an ancient statute ordained that the inch was the average of three thumbs, that of a big man, a small man, and a middle-sized man.

The yard was the distance from the tip of the nose to the tip of the middle finger of an arm outstretched horizontally, and a fathom the length of a man's reach when both arms were thus stretched. The Roman pace or yard was the distance from the back of one heel to the back of one other, and 1,000 paces comprised their mile, which is 4,864 feet.

In old Bavaria, a foot was literally the length of a human foot clad in a shoe, and ten-foot poles were made by getting ten men of varying heights to stand in a row and cut the pole accordingly.

World's Largest Glaciers

A roll call of glacial giants would include the names of Pamiir, in the Himalayas, possibly 100 miles long; Hubbard, in Alaska, 90 miles long and in places 10 miles wide, and the ice cap of Svalbard, Spitzbergen. Glaciers flourish virtually on the equator—wherever peaks are high enough. The highest point in Africa—19,710 foot Mount Kilimanjaro, in Tanganyika—is girdled with no fewer than ten such phenomena, even though it is volcanic. South American glaciers are frequently tucked into the pockets of quiet volcanic peaks in the Andes, and at Cerro Alto, in Ecuador, one has taken possession of the second hand crater. The method of growth is more spectacular than the mighty oaks-from-little-acorns contrast. For the huge rivers are merely overgrown colonies of snowflakes, which have become compact, granular ice.

Woodpeckers Attack Dead Trees

The woodpecker has short, sturdy legs and his four sharp-clawed toes, two pointing forward, two backward. With them he clings tightly to a tree, balancing his body with his stiff tail. That allows him "free wheeling" for his chisel-shaped beak. No insect can escape him. After digging to a bug, his long, round tongue cleans out niches like an anteater's. Contrary to popular belief, woodpeckers do little harm to trees. They seldom attack a healthy tree, but they do clean diseased ones of harmful insects.

Use of Words In, Into, In To

Broadly speaking, in denotes rest; into, motion. William Knelt in the long grass; Herbert went into the house. But the two words should be written separately where their meaning is separate. The Smiths have moved into their new house; we all walked to the village hall, where we went in to hear the concert. Similarly with on and on to. Ethel danced on the table; Henry jumped on to the seat.—Tit-Bits Magazine.

Fifteen to a Bed

Fifteen guests could climb up to sleep in a community guest bed in one of the old Norwegian houses preserved in the famous open-air museum at Lillehammer, says Sydney A. Clark. If there were one or two more than fifteen, he writes, the host and hostess would take the extras into their own bed.

Car Hits Child; Driver Arrested

Arthur Cummings of 299 Centre st., Newton, was arraigned in the Newton court on Monday on charges of speeding and driving without a license. He was arrested by Patrolman Loughlin after a car he was driving had hit Lawrence Cetrone, 2½ years old, of 265 Adams st., Nonantum. The accident occurred at Adams st. and Lincoln rd. The child received bruises and cuts and was taken to the Newton Hospital for treatment. Cummings pleaded not guilty and his case was continued until August 13.

Fined $50 For Drunken Driving

A drunkenness charge was placed on file. Tuesday afternoon a car driven by the elderly Natick man hit a parked car on Commonwealth ave. near Manet rd. Pearce's car then collided with a car driven by Mrs. Tilda Epstein of New York, who received cuts and bruises. Mrs. Leah Rubenstein, 80, of 1423 Commonwealth ave., West Newton, who was riding with Mrs. Epstein, received injuries to her head and arms and was treated by Dr. Joseph Seltzer.

Praying Mantis Relative of the Busy Grasshopper

The praying mantis, which destroys harmful insects, is a relative of the grasshopper, according to an authority in the New York World-Telegram.

The grasshopper eats plants. But this does not suit the mantis—he must eat meat. The mantis is a cannibal. It thinks nothing of eating its own kind. The female has been known to eat the male after the mating is over and the male is no longer of any usefulness in preserving the race.

The female is larger than the male. It is claimed that the mantis can paralyze its victim with fright. This is easy to understand because of its enormous size in contrast to the size of the insects which make up its food supply.

The mantis rears itself by means of the hinges in its back and holds its arms aloft. It then remains motionless. When a luckless beetle flies past the mantis reaches out with surprising swiftness, in comparison to its usual slowness in motion, and strikes with one arm. Now, the arms are lined with barbs and have no difficulty in capturing and holding the choice morsel.

The luckless insect cannot get away, no matter how it tries. Sometimes the mantis sits as if in prayer. Suddenly it sees an insect approaching, rises to full height, puts out an arm, throws wide its wings. The mantis is thus so frightful to its victim that it is paralyzed and falls an easy prey to the powerful ogle. That the mantis feeds on other insects makes it a boon to man.

Tartan Is Usual Costume of Children in Scotland

It is only at the Highland games that visitors will see many Scots in tartans, although the tartan is the usual costume of Scottish children and is worn even by the younger princes and sometimes the older ones of the British royal family, writes a correspondent in the Los Angeles Times.

Highland costume is made up of two parts, the plaid, a piece of cloth four to six yards long and two yards wide, unfolded, one end of which is caught up over the left shoulder, with a brooch or pin, and the kilt. The Sporrán, one of the most conspicuous parts of the costume, is the shield-like piece usually covered with white horse hair and black tassels which hang in front of the kilt. It is both novel and useful, for it is in reality a large purse.

Tracing the ancestry of a Scot in Highland costume is an easy matter for one with a knowledge of tartans, for all Highlanders once belonged to clans and each clan had its own pattern for its tartan. Descendants of the old Scots determine what tartan they will wear in one of three ways: they may wear that of their mother's clan, that of their father's clan, or if they have served in a Highland regiment, that of the regiment. No Scot would think of wearing the tartan of another's clan, and in the old days the clans regarded their particular tartan so highly that they considered anyone who assumed it to be under their special protection.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Soul" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, on Sunday, August 14.

The Golden Text is: "Hear me speedily, O Lord: . . . cause me to hear thy lovingkindness in the morning; for in thee do I trust: cause me to know the way wherein I should walk; for I lift up my soul unto thee" (Psalms 143:7, 8).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit unto unfeigned love of the brethren, see that ye love one another with a pure heart (fervently); being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God, which liveth and abideth forever" (1 Peter 1:22, 23).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Life is the law of Soul, even the law of the spirit of Truth, and Soul is never without its representative. Man's individual being can no more die nor disappear in unconsciousness than can Soul, for both are immortal" (p. 427).

The King's Jewel House

One of the last acts of King Edward III in 1377—the year he died—was to acquire from the Abbey of Westminster a tower which became the King's Jewel House. This tower is perfectly preserved, but, being hidden by buildings on all sides, few people have ever set eyes upon it. Just to the west of the Jewel House, in a canon's garden, are some still more ancient remains, which very few people have seen. They comprise a wall, windows and parts of columns which belong to the Chapel of St. Katherine, built about 1150, as the chapel of the abbey infirmary.

Trees Sleep in Winter

Trees may be said to be sleeping in winter. They are alive, breathing, and slowly consuming their stored food supplies; but are not growing or manufacturing any food. In these respects a tree is very similar to the woodchuck which is napping in some well-protected den. Both will become active again when warm weather returns, although the tree probably will be at work first.

Amphioxus First Known to Have Had a Backbone

About 400,000,000 years or more ago Nature created the Amphioxus—the first animal that is known to have had a semblance of a backbone. Nature was a good craftsman in this work, for the Amphioxus has come down to us, through all these millions of years, in almost unchanged condition. It is found throughout temperate and tropical regions in just as primitive a form as it was eons ago, according to a scientist in the New York Herald Tribune. In American waters it is found as a slender, wormlike creature about two inches long, but in Japanese waters it reaches a length of ten inches.

Out of the Amphioxus came the sharks, the fishes, the reptiles, the quadrupeds, the mammals, the primates and finally man. If Amphioxus had failed in its duty as a link in the chain of evolution, or had differentiated itself in some other fashion, the human race might never have eventuated out of its primal protoplasm. Some other animal form might today be reigning as lords of this terrestrial ball.

Amphioxus, therefore, holds a key position in the evolutionary process of vertebrates and in the early days carried heavy responsibility for starting the whole group of beings with bones toward their ultimate destiny.

Although the Amphioxus is classed with the vertebrates, it has neither backbone nor cranium. Where these bony structures are found in the more advanced types of animals, the Amphioxus has only a cartilage rod. It is but a routine step from the cartilage to the bony structure.

Did Not Know "America"

Tune Same as "Save King"

When Samuel F. Smith wrote "America" in 1832, he did not know that he was writing a song to the same tune as "God Save the King." He found the tune in a German music book brought to this country by William C. Woodbridge and turned over by him to Lowell Mason, states a writer in the Detroit News. Mason had asked Smith to translate the verses or to write a few original poems to go with the music. As he glanced through the collection, he was struck by one tune which seemed to him simple and spirited and he noticed that the German words were patriotic. This gave him the inspiration to write a hymn for this country.

The origin of the words of "God Save the King" as well as of the tune is in doubt. Henry Carey and John Bull are both mentioned in this connection. The Encyclopedia Britannica says that 1745 is the earliest date assignable and that both words and music had been evolved out of earlier forms; also that Bull's is the earliest form of the air, Prussia, Denmark and other countries used this tune, but whether they took it from England or from older sources cannot be determined.

Naming Days and Months

Religion and romance, as well as considerable ingenuity, entered into the first naming of the days and the months. Although in more modern times we accepted the Roman names for the months, the names of the days of the week are, with one exception, directly derived from our Saxon ancestors, observes a writer in London Answers Magazine. Their days were dedicated to leading gods of the time. For sheer poetic descriptive titling of the months it is impossible to do better than those old Anglo-Saxons. Translated their month names meant, beginning with January: Chilly month, vegetation month, spring month, grass month, flower month, summer month, hay month, harvest month, autumn month, wine month, slaughter month (when cattle were killed and dried for winter larders), and winter month.

Two Things Certain

Benjamin Franklin is credited with being the first to make the statement that only two things are certain—death and taxes. Franklin mentioned this certainty in a letter to his friend, M. Leroy of the French Academy of Sciences, in 1789. He stated: "Our Constitution is in actual operation. Everything appears to promise that it will last, but in this world nothing is certain but death and taxes." Whether the expression was original with Franklin is unknown but it was natural for him to contrast the uncertainties of the newly adopted Constitution with these two certainties. Charles Dickens in his "David Copperfield," written 60 years later, has Barksis say: "It was as true as taxes is. And nothing's truer than them."

Our Ancestors

You have billions of ancestors. First you had a father and mother. Each of them had a father and mother. That makes six ancestors already. Again, each of them must have had a father and mother, and that makes 12. So we go on, back to the time of Christ, which works out at about 58 generations of 33 years each. The calculation shows, asserts a writer in Pearson's London Weekly, that 144,207,695,790,946,939 births must have taken place to bring you into the world. And all this since the birth of Christ only, not since the beginning of time.

Gaspe is reputed to be the oldest known part of North America and historians say it had been visited by adventurous white men from ice land and Greenland as early as the Twelfth century. President of U. S. Can

Not Be Legally Arrested

Theoretically the President of the United States can not legally be arrested for any act whatever, even the commission of murder, observes a writer in the Indianapolis News. His person is inviolable during his term of office and he is beyond the reach of any other department of the government except through the process of impeachment. If a President were impeached, convicted and removed from office he would then be subject to arrest as is any other private citizen.

Of course the President may be arrested by mistake, or he may submit to arrest voluntarily. President Pierce was arrested one night in 1853 while returning to the White House on horseback from the home of William Morgan in the southeastern section of Washington, when he accidentally ran down an aged woman, the wife of Nathan Lewis. A constable named Stanley Edelin placed Pierce under arrest, but knowing he was President, but released him when Pierce identified himself.

President Grant was once arrested in Washington for fast driving. O. C. Dallas, of Helena, Mont., an eye-witness, stated that the President was driving west on M street between Eleventh and Twelfth streets, a cloud of dust concealing the occupant of the buggy from view. William H. West, a Negro policeman, grabbed the bride and was dragged half a block before he brought the horse and buggy to a stop. When West recognized the President he apologized profusely, but the President stepped from the buggy, saying, "Officer, do your duty," and walked up M street toward the White House. No mention of the incident was made in the police records.

Guillotine Not Inventor

Of Decapitation Machine

Dr. Joseph Ignace Guillotin did not invent the guillotine and died peacefully in bed long after the French revolution, comments the Detroit Free Press.

Various means of inflicting the death penalty existed in different parts of France, at the time of the revolution, and what Doctor Guillotin did was to introduce in the Constituent assembly of 1789 a resolution providing that all capital punishment in France should be by decapitation and should be "executed by a machine."

The "machine" was perfected by a German harpsichord-maker by name of Schmidt but soon was popularly christened "guillotine."

The first decapitation machine is attributed to the ancient Persians.

Variations of it were employed during the Middle Ages in parts of Germany, Italy, France, Holland, Scotland, and England.

The gruesome glory which has so long attached in the mind of many people to a kindly French physician is thus effectively dispelled.

Music, Medical Science

Once Closely Connected

The connection between music and medical science is as old as history itself. In the earliest stages of mankind, magicians and medicine men effected cures of every form of ailment by means of music, and certain races still use their methods.

The Hellenes of ancient Greece employed music as a means of curing illness. Homer wrote that Odysseus could stop the flow of blood by playing music. Again, diseases rife in old Troy were swept away by music.

Galenus proclaimed that music was the best cure for snake-bites and scorpion stings, and, we are told, states a writer in Pearson's London Weekly, was successful in bringing about such cures.

Galenus tells us that Damon, the singer of Miletus, was able by singing certain songs to drive intoxicated young people into a frenzy. He could also quiet them with a different type of song.

In the Bible we read that before demolishing the House of the Philistines Samson acquired strength by playing on and singing to the harp. David with his harp charmed away Saul's melancholy.

In the Middle Ages pipers or flute-players used to perform in the street when a madman had one of his periodic fits. They accompanied him home, and in most cases were able to restore him to sanity.

Emerald Was Cleopatra's

Favorite Among the Gems

Emeralds were the favorite gems of Cleopatra, the embodiment of royalty and probably the most gem-bedecked queen of all time. Many of the green stones such as chrysoprase were often called "victory stones" by the old writers. Such a one was reputed by Albertus Magnus as having been worn by Alexander the Great in his girdle, according to Herbert P. Whitlock in Natural History.

The well known purple gem, the amethyst, as its Greek derivation indicates, was regarded as an amulet which would prevent intoxication. Dr. L. J. Spencer in his book, "A Key to Precious Stones," comments in a somewhat satiric vein on the use of this gem in episcopal rings. He says, "For this reason bishops, whose duties take them to public function of all sorts, wear an amethyst in the episcopal ring."

Without doubt the medieval connection of the amethyst with Bacchus, god of the wine cup, comes from the story of the nymph named Amethyst, one of those who followed in the train of Diana. Bacchus in order to fulfill a drunken vow was about to offer her to be devoured by the tigers that drew his car.

The goddess in order to save her protegee from this horrid death, turned her into a white stone. And Bacchus, repentant of his cruelty, poured the juice of the grape over the stone figure, thereby dyeing it a rich purple.

Reminder of Early Days

The following account, from "Readings in Indiana History," gives an idea of the conditions of the early times: "In 1817 there were no railroads, no canals west of the Allegheny mountains. There was no telegraph; fire was struck by the flint and steel; there were forests instead of cultivated fields; the shovel-plow was the only cultivator; there were no bridges. The only means of travel was by horseback, the husband mounted before on the saddle, with one to three of the youngest children in his arms; the wife, with a spread cover reaching to the tail of the horse, seated behind, with the balance of the children, unable to walk, on her lap."

The Laurentian Mountains

The Laurentian mountains stretch like a great crescent over a million or more acres between the St. Lawrence river and Hudson's bay and from the Ottawa river east toward Labrador. Over them hangs that mysterious fascination that belongs to great age. In comparison with them the Alps of Europe and the Himalayas of Asia are young. Geologists state that the Laurentians were among the first mountains to have their summits above the waste of water where afterwards continents were born.

Tungsten, Lamp Filament Wire

The use of tungsten as a lamp filament wire is based upon certain properties which make it a metal of extremes. Outstanding among these properties are a melting point of 3,400 degrees Centigrade, a low vapor pressure, and a tensile strength in the worked condition of 600,000 pounds per square inch. At one time tungsten was regarded as a brittle metal, but an expert succeeded in drawing a wire in such a way as to make it bendable at room temperature.

Toad Carries Eggs on Back

The breeding method of the Surinam toad is unique. The male of this strange species places the fertilized eggs on the female's back, spreads them evenly over the surface and presses them into the skin, so that each fits into a small pit. Within these pits the birth of the young Surinam toads takes place. Finally they emerge as small but perfectly formed specimens. There is no "tadpole" stage, as with other frogs and toads.

E-rolk, Pronunciation of Iraq, Name for Kingdom

Occidentals pronounce Iraq E-rolk, with the accent on the final syllable. Iraq is the Arab name for the kingdom which occupies practically the whole of the Euphrates valley—Mesopotamia.

It is a region about the size of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Ohio combined, but the boundaries are rather hazy. The country is a plain which lies between Persia, the Persian gulf, the Arabian and Syrian deserts and Kurdistan.

The climate is hot and rather unhealthy, but the Tigris-Euphrates region is wonderfully fertile and irrigation, says a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, would restore the land to the prosperity of the days when Bagdad was one of the world's great capitals and the deeds of the Caliph Haroun Al Rashid were weaving themselves into "The Thousand and One Nights."

Down from Mosul, which occupies the site of ancient Nineveh, to Bagdad, runs one of the links of the famous Berlin-to-Bagdad railway which was one day to have cemented the central powers. The British, who wrested Iraq from the Turks in 1917, extended this road to Basra, or Bassorah, near the gulf. The British mandatory rights, however, were formally renounced and the independence of Iraq recognized by a treaty signed at Bagdad June 30, 1930.

Iraq has great petroleum resources, ranking eighth in the world's supply. The country grows cotton, dates, tobacco, wheat, sheep, cattle and silkworms with equal success.

Gen. Winfield Scott Was

Prominent Military Man

Gen. Winfield Scott, born near Petersburg, Va., June 13, 1793, contributed almost half a century of public service to his country and for the last 20 years of his military career was commanding general of the United States army.

The soldier who was called "Fuss and Feathers" because of his severe discipline and dignity, won his greatest military fame in the brilliant Mexican campaign of 1847. However, he is credited with being a main factor in ending the War of 1812 as well as averting several others, recalls Leslie Hartley in the Washington Star.

It is of especial interest that while Scott was restoring order in the conquered Mexican territory he sent home from local revenues $118,000 to be applied to an army asylum which afterward became Soldiers' home.

Though his country paid him many honors for his military service, he was denied the supreme recognition he desired—the office of the presidency.

At the outbreak of the Civil war he remained at the head of the United States armies until November, 1861, and died at West Point May 29, 1866.

Giant's Causeway, a Wonder

The remarkable group of basaltic columns on the north coast of Ireland known as the Giant's causeway, or causeway, ranks as a world's wonder. These rocks project 300 feet out into the North channel near Bengore head, about eight miles from Portrush. The name originated from a legend that they were once part of a bridge or causeway over which giants passed between Ireland and Scotland. According to geologists this interesting formation has some natural connection with the basaltic formations on Staffa island, near the coast of Scotland, and is apparently the result of an upheaval of basalt during the Tertiary period. Ages of erosion have left a line of perpendicular cliffs 500 feet in height. The individual columns of the Giant's causeway, of which there are some 40,000, are cut as if by mathematical calculation and so closely are they connected that water cannot pass between them. It is hard for the spectator to realize they were not carved by human hands. Their height ranges from 15 to 36 feet and their diameter from 15 to 30 inches. Most of them are pentagonal and hexagonal.

First U. S.-China Trade

Immediately after the Revolution, in the year 1784, the famous Robert Morris and others fitted out the Empress of China to trade with China. The cargo consisted chiefly of gin-seng, and teas and other goods were brought back. When the American ship reached China the Chinese were told they were from America, and after some difficulty the Chinese finally understood the story and how they differed from the English that they knew of. "The New People" the Chinese called the Americans. The profits of the venture amounted to some $30,000, about one-quarter of the investment.

The Eternel

Over the triple doors of the Milan cathedral there are three inscriptions spanning the splendid arches. Over one is carved a wreath of roses: "All that which pleases is but for a moment." Over the other there is a sculptured cross, and underneath are the words: "All that which troubles is but for a moment." While underneath the great central entrance to the main aisle is the inscription: "That only is important which is eternal."

Right to Wear Amethyst

At Pleasure of the King

The amethyst was in days gone by, regarded as a royal stone of a regal color, the right to wear which was bestowed by the king on his "inspired men." Hence, the amethyst denoted royal dignity and was supposed to oppose evil, drunkenness and all intemperance, says a writer in the Montreal Herald.

The amethyst is supposed to have been the ninth stone in the breast plate of Moses. It was very popular among the Egyptians and was carved by them. A famous collection has a large pale amethyst engraved with the head of a Syrian king.

The amethyst is a species of transparent violet colored quartz supposed to oppose the effects of the fumes of intoxicants. To enjoy the full vibration, the amethyst must be worn on the third finger of the left hand. It is supposed to be a charm against death from arrows. Soldiers carried it on the field of battle in Egypt. This practice was also carried into the Middle Ages and many amethysts were worn for the terrible wars of the period.

There is a lovely allegorical legend telling that Dionysus, enamored of a graceful nymph pressed his love upon her, but Diana intervened, transforming her into a lovely purple amethyst. In respect for the transformed nymph, Dionysus vowed that whoever wore the amethyst would be protected from the evils of intoxicating wines.

This stone has always been regarded as symbolic of the pioneer in thought and action on the philosophical, religious, spiritual and material planes. It has also been long regarded as a charm against witchcraft, poison, and evil thought. It is also a charm for the securing of the favor of princes.

Lamerie, Silver Worker,

Was a Famous Craftsman

Paul Lamerie, the great silversmith, was of French Huguenot descent and was born in 1689, and died in 1751. He was one of a group of French refugee silversmiths who came to England in the first half of the Eighteenth century and settled there. These craftsmen brought with them a new refinement of style and delicacy of workmanship which had helped to pave the way for the beauty of the Queen Anne period. Lamerie, however, was considered far above his contemporaries in this work, notes Alice R. Rollins in the Los Angeles Times. His supremacy was shown not only in his creative genius but in his superb workmanship.

At the beginning of the Eighteenth century and through the Queen Anne period, silver was of high quality and was characterized by simple form and design. But following upon this appeared that form of ornamentation called the rococo which had its effect on all the arts. In England this desire for more elaborate adornment resulted in the standard of the quality of the silver metal being raised so that it was much softer and finer than the decoration of silver in repousse, engraving and pierced work; and resulted in the ornate designs we find in this period.

'Boy Stood on Burning Deck'

The battle of the Nile in August, 1798, is the episode memorialized in the poem "Casablanca." The lines first appeared in the second edition of "Forest Sanctuary," published in 1829. Louis Casablanca, French naval officer, was mortally wounded on August 1, 1798. His ten-year-old son, Giacomo Jocate Casablanca, was with him on board ship. Louis Casablanca was in command of the Orient, which bore the flag of Admiral Brucey. When the latter was killed, Casablanca, though badly wounded, fought the burning ship to the end and perished with most of the crew. His little son refused to leave him, and both were killed in the exploding of the ship.

Woman Made Lincoln Statue

Vinnie Ream was the first woman to be awarded a federal art commission by the United States government, to make Lincoln's statue. The contract was signed on August 30, 1866. Five thousand dollars was paid when the statue was completed. For many years it has stood in the rotunda of the Capitol in Washington. Lincoln sat every day for approximately five months for the young sculptress, who had little instruction. At the time she had a government position. Miss Ream was permitted to absent herself from her work on condition that her assignment not be affected by the execution of the President's statue.

The 'Fugleman'

The West Indian Negroes, such as one finds on the island of Jamaica, have a sense of rhythm that is amazing, and like the old-time deep sea sailors, they do their best work while singing. They are always led in their songs by a man known as the "fugleman," who receives higher wages than the other laborers. He starts each "song" which lasts only a few minutes, by singing a short phrase of the song, and the gang around him shouts in chorus. The fugleman must possess an extensive repertoire, as it is customary to start a new song every five minutes or so throughout the day.

Eternal Lamp to Man's Memory

In many parts of England, Wales and Scotland there are small gifts to the local poor, distributed through money left by some charitable gentleman. In many cases the idea was to prevent the gentleman's name from being forgotten. In Venice, however, there is a unique monument, says London Answers Magazine. In 1507 Pietro Tassari, a well-known Venetian, who was a baker by trade, was accused of killing a very close friend. He was convicted and executed. Soon after the execution certain facts came to light which clearly indicated that the dead man had in no way been connected with the murder. When it became public there were many riots and, to soothe the public, the authorities ordered an Eternal Lamp in his memory, to be placed in front of a Madonna.

Dictated "Paradise Lost"

John Milton composed "Paradise Lost" in a house on Artillery walk, Bunhill fields. His daughters wrote from his dictation.

vere prison sentences will be imposed on those who murder by means of automobiles, the slaughter will continue. Last week 19 persons were killed by automobiles in Massachusetts. Had 19 been shot to death, stabbed or bludgeoned to death, what a furore there would have been. Those killed by automobiles are just as dead.

Fashions in dogs change regularly with passing years, and in recent years they have changed more frequently than they did in the days of our youth. Breeds of dogs formerly unknown in this country have been introduced from Europe and Asia, and a few new breeds have been evolved. We can remember when the popular breeds of pet or small size dogs included the lazy pugs, the alert smooth-hair fox-terriers and the diminutive black and tan. The popular large size dogs in the gay 90's included St. Bernards, Newfoundlands and mastiffs. It is not so many years ago when it was not legal to issue a license for a Great Dane dog. They were so huge and supposedly possessed such fighting ability that they were regarded as too much of a menace to be allowed at large. The fact that animal trainers used to be accompanied into lions' and tigers' cages by Great Danes was to a large degree responsible for the fear of Great Danes. But for some years this breed has been legally licensed in Massachusetts and it has become more or less common. Many Great Danes are kind in disposition and will attack neither humans nor other dogs without provocation. But, should any of this breed be savage, its size and strength make it certainly a menace. Recently in the Newton court a Newton Centre resident was charged with allowing Great Dane dogs he owned to go unrestrained after he had been notified by the Newton police to restrain the animals. This person was found not guilty, and the complainant got somewhat the worse of the publicity in a Boston newspaper. What was not brought out at the trial or in the newspaper publicity was the fact that several other persons had previously made complaints of having been attacked by these dogs; these complaints having been made before the restraining order was issued.

That intrepid and unassuming young man Douglas Corrigan, received a great ovation in Boston and the politicians seized it as an opportunity for displaying themselves. That super-patriot, Thomas Dorgan, also used the acclaim of Corrigan as an opportunity to get some publicity.

We have been told that a certain individual who has been allegedly doing some sleuthing in uncovering gambling activities in this vicinity has been regularly "playing the horses" himself. We believe there is a passage in the Bible which tells of folks having been admonished not to throw any rocks at others if they are not perfect themselves.

"Loan Sharks" Got 100% From Egyptians 109 B. C.

That ancient Egypt was afflicted with the equivalent of "loan sharks" is revealed by a papyrus in the Egyptian archeological exhibits at Field Museum of Natural History, on which is written a promissory note. The specimen, which dates from 109 B. C., is the oldest promissory note of its type known, and is known as one of the most important of such papyri because of its elaborate legal formulae, which are strikingly similar to those found in many modern legal documents.

Quite startling is the usurious rate of interest, 100 per cent, specified in the note, while other harsh terms specified in it make their own commentary on the social conditions of the time.

From a literal translation the following interpretation is made:

"I, the peasant-slave Ensnakkomnoy, belonging to the Zemi cemetery, have borrowed from the woman Nokhutes 22½ artabas of wheat. I promise to repay this loan with 100 per cent interest, making the total due 45 artabas of wheat. Further, I promise to repay this loan with good, undiluted, chaffless seed-wheat, measured by the same standard as was used in making me this loan; and I further promise to deliver the said wheat to the house of the woman Nokhutes in the Zemi cemetery without transportation charges, by the last day of the ninth month of the year 9 with no extensions of time to be granted. Further, whatever I do not repay in wheat by the aforesaid date I will repay within the following month at the rate of 60 pieces of silver per artaba. Further, as long as this note is in Nokhutes' possession I cannot claim, unless I can show a receipt, to have made full or partial payment. Further, everything that I now possess or shall acquire is herewith pledged to Nokhutes until I shall have discharged my debt in full. Further, if Nokhutes brings suit against me for failing to meet my obligation, I admit additional liability for my damages. Further, the agent of Nokhutes is hereby authorized to deal with me and I promise to follow his instructions unreservedly and promptly at all times."

Because of a superstition that anything seen or done on the left foreboded ill, was to be shunned as unlucky, the left hand has been in disrepute for centuries.

A deep-rooted prejudice, use of this hand is confined by South African natives, for example, to all degrading acts. The Maori tribe of New Zealand considers it profane, uses it as little as possible. Romans had a word for it in the evil-sounding "sinister."

Conscious of an "ugly duckling" embarrassment in consequence of this perverse heritage, from 4 to 8 per cent of the world's population have, willy-nilly, served out their appointed days, often with no small shame to their right-handed betters. Far from being maladroit, barmy or queer, some have been great personages, states a writer in Literary Digest.

Many of Egypt's Pharaohs were left-handed. So were most of Rome's Caesars; the Biblical Benjamin, Alexander the Great, Charlemagne, Michelangelo. Leonardo da Vinci was so completely left-handed he wrote a backward stroke readable only with a mirror.

Virginia's Capital

Richmond, capital of Virginia, was once also capital of the Confederacy, and many things associated with the war between the states are to be found there. The White House of the confederacy is now a fascinating museum. The Capitol, the main unit of which was designed by Thomas Jefferson, is the meeting place of the oldest representative legislative assembly in the new world. Old St. John's church is famous as the place where Patrick Henry fired the flames of the American Revolution with his stirring oration ending, "Give me liberty or give me death!" Near the city are many battlefields of the war, which have been preserved as park areas.

Use for Spiders' Webs

Spiders' webs have a commercial value, and are used by a number of firms of scientific instrument makers. The strongest and finest thread comes from the webs spun by the species known as the "Eperira Dramata," found usually on gorse bushes. The thickness varies from 0.00015 of an inch to 0.000075, and often the thicker threads are split in half, says London Tit-Bits Magazine. The insect that spins these threads can easily be distinguished from any other of the eighty odd varieties in Britain as it has a beautiful cross on its back and spins webs of the "wheel" type.

Golden Apples

Spain was once the Mexico and Peru of Mediterranean exploitation, yielding gold, silver, tin, and copper for the greater glory of Greece and the grandeur of ancient Rome. It was believed to be fabulously rich when Greek myth-makers wrote legends of Hercules venturing Spain-ward for the golden apples of Hesperides. To Tarshish, around Cadiz, King Solomon sent for gold for his temple.

"Babe," a German shepherd dog, who makes it possible for her mistress, blind Hazel Hurst, to travel, is perhaps well known to many of you readers. "Babe" and her owner have been very much in the news of late, because the British government would not permit them to land in England, basing their reluctant refusal on the English law which demands that all dogs must be placed in quarantine before being admitted to that country.

It is a strict law, but it has succeeded in practically eliminating rabies from the British Isles. Even an Emperor and a former British King were unsuccessful in attempts to bring their pets into England without first placing them in the six months' quarantine required.

Haile Selassie, former Emperor of Ethiopia, when he fled from his country to England took with him his dog which had been his constant companion for many years. He was exceedingly disturbed when confronted with the law that was to separate him from his beloved pet. He appealed to King Edward and other high English officials but to no avail.

The former King of England who was also refused permission to land his dog on English soil was the Duke of Windsor. When Prince of Wales, and returning from his American visit, he attempted to bring in a dog he had brought from this country. The Prince was forced to place his pet in quarantine, but it is reliably reported he often visited the animal during its six months' period of confinement in the quarantine kennels.

In answer to the many requests that have come in lately for a diet for a newly acquired pet:

8 a. m. A glass of milk poured over dry cereal, or puppy biscuit meal. Add also a small amount of orange juice.

Noon. One quarter pound of chopped raw meat mixed with the yolk of an egg, and a little tomato juice poured over the top. Add a small pinch of iodized salt.

4 p. m. A glass of milk poured over dry cereal, or broth made by stewing meat bones with vegetables, poured over dry dog food meal or cereal.

8 p. m. Three quarters of a pound of meat either parboiled or raw mixed with a small amount of canned tomatoes or canned spinach. To this add a cup of dry dog food meal and every other day a teaspoon of cod liver oil.

From Oregon comes the report that a mortgage has been filed in which 20 sheep dogs are part of the security for a loan of $25,000. The dogs are entered at a value of $50 each and the man who borrowed the money stipulated that he had the right to pay back $50 whenever he wished and each time he did so one dog was to be released as security.

A dog which continually wags his tail against the side of a kennel, building or other obstruction until the tip is raw and bleeding presents a problem to its owner. Placing a bandage on the end does little good as it is soon knocked off. These slight wounds often take many weeks to heal. Just when you seem to have succeeded in healing the wound the animal knocks his tail against something and opens it up again.

A good method of treatment is to apply tincture of iodine daily to the affected area. For stubborn cases, once a week mix a small amount of alum and iodine and place over the open wound.

I can't explain the true story but here are the facts. A doctor of a small town in the south was disturbed in the dead of night by repeated scratchings and whimpering at his front door. On investigating he discovered a pointer dog at the door. His attempts to coax the animal inside were futile. The dog would go slowly down the walk and when the doctor followed a few steps behind he would continue on, but when the doctor stopped and turned to re-enter his house the dog would stop, start back and begin whimpering again.

Realizing that the animal wanted to be followed, the doctor quickly dressed and started out after the dog. For almost two miles the pointer led the doctor, finally arriving where an automobile had overturned into a ditch on a lonely road. Rushing to the side of the overturned car, the dog started to lick the face of the lone occupant who had been severely injured in the accident.

Yes, it was the injured man's dog. The animal had been in the automobile with his master at the time of the accident but in some manner had escaped unharmed. Neither man nor dog had ever been within 100 miles of the town before. It isn't unusual for a dog to seek aid for his master but why did this pointer go to the only doctor's house in the town, passing many other homes in doing so? It might have been only a coincidence but then—well I said I couldn't explain it.

Question: Are pedigrees given owners of seeing-eye dogs purchased from the training school in New Jersey?—T. L. N.

Answer: No, because the officials aim to discourage breeding or any other resultant interference in the primary use of the dog—that of being his master's eyes.

Question: Someone told me that fruit juices were good to feed a dog. Is that true?—L. M. Jr.

Answer: Fruit juices such as obtained from oranges, grapefruit, or others are an exceptionally fine addition to any dog's diet.

Fewer Cases of Tuberculosis in Newton Pupils

Reporting on the results of a six-month survey of the occurrence of tuberculosis in Newton school children, Dr. Harold B. Chope, head of the Newton Health Department, stated this week that a significant decline in the number of cases discovered has been shown. The number of children to react to the tests is so small that it is planned to discontinue the tests in the seventh grade during the coming term. For some years examinations have been given in the seventh, ninth, and eleventh grades and in dropping the seventh grade tests further consideration will be given to the advisability of giving the tests in another high school grade instead.

The figures announced by Dr. Chope revealed that 15.6 per cent of the pupils in the seventh grade, 22.7 in the ninth and 27.2 in the eleventh gave positive reactions to the tests. Only a small fractional part of those with positive reactions, however, are actually found to be tuberculin sufferers. Of the 2457 pupils examined last year only one was found to have an adult tubercular case. Sixty others showed suspicious symptoms and were placed under observation.

The fact that the percentage of positive reactions increases with age has given rise to the possibility of giving the tests in a higher school grade.

The investigation of the Newton police department, started several weeks ago by City Solicitor Joseph W. Bartlett, was resumed again on Tuesday morning. Several members of the police department were questioned during the morning and others were interviewed in the afternoon. Thus far more than half of the members of the force have been given the opportunity to tell of their observations of conditions of law enforcement and of the state of discipline in the department. Mayor or Childs stated that he was not prepared to say when the investigation would be concluded.

On Monday it was announced that the information gathered by the aldermanic committee which was appointed to investigate the office of the sergeant-mechanic in the Police Department had been turned over to Mr. Bartlett. No public report was made of the findings of this committee which was appointed last year. It is understood that the committee is waiting the city solicitor's advice before making a report to the Board of Aldermen. The committee was appointed to look into charges that the chief has been shorn of authority to make purchases and that that authority has been delegated to the sergeant-mechanic. The committee, however, widened the scope of its investigation and investigated other phases of that office which came to its attention.

The Tuesday session was the only one held this week as many members of the force who have not yet been interviewed are on vacation. These and other members of the force will be interviewed after the vacation periods are over.

Injured In Fall From Sandhopper

John Grandt of 4 North Hudson st., Boston, was injured last Friday afternoon when he fell a distance of about 20 feet from a sandhopper at the plant of the Highland Sand and Gravel Company at Oak Hill. With other workmen, he was engaged in loading a truck when he lost his balance and fell, his head striking on a rock. He was removed to the Newton Hospital in the police ambulance, where it was found he had suffered a severe cut on his head.

Tangle Over Appropriation Is Explained

At the special meeting of the Board of Aldermen on Monday night a recommendation of Mayor Childs for the appropriation of $848 resulted in some confusion. The appropriation was for materials for use in connection with the demolition of the buildings and the grading and filling of the land adjoining the Auburndale library. This property was recently deeded to the city by Frederick Plummer on condition that the buildings be razed and a small park created there. It was done as a WPA project and when it was reported that the work had been completed the Finance Committee of the Aldermen held up the Mayor's request for the appropriation.

Subsequently the situation was explained by Mayor Childs. Funds for the project were advanced by WPA officials in belief that the city would reimburse the Federal government. Under the procedure usually followed the city purchases the materials and the Federal government provides the labor. Mayor Childs declared that he had sent the recommendation for the appropriation to the Board at its July meeting but that action on the matter was postponed in order to obtain further information about the project. In the meantime WPA officials went ahead with the work. Thus, when the Board came to act upon the matter they found that the work had been completed. It is expected that the appropriation will be approved at the regular Board meeting next Monday night and that the Federal government will be reimbursed for its expenditure for materials.

Grant Nurses' Home Permit

Among the matters acted upon at the special meeting of the Board of Aldermen on Monday night was the granting of a permit for the construction of the new nurses home on the Newton Hospital grounds. The building will be three stories high and of first class construction. Chairman George E. Rawson of the Claims and Rules Committee stated that the building is classed as an "accessory to a hospital" and is one of the "permissible uses" of land in single residence zones.

The sum of $1850 was appropriated as an additional award for the "Dorr property" taken recently by the city as an addition to the Hawthorne street playground.

Final action on the bond issue for the 30 inch water main under the Charles river at the Upper Falls pumping station, as well as on the bond issue for the new school at Newton as told in another column, was withheld pending notice of approval from Washington of applications for Federal grants for 45 percent of the money to be spent as PWA projects.

Numerous private garage licenses were granted as was a certificate of incorporation to Leroy M. S. Miner and John W. Cooke of Newton.

The will of Miss Isabel Young, formerly of 71 Lake ave., Newton Centre, who died on Aug. 8th, was filed for probate on Monday. Angelo Terranova of 10 Pierce st., Waltham, who served as gardener and chauffeur for Miss Young for the past 14 years, was left $2500 in cash and a trust fund of $20,000. Other bequests were to Miss Anna Cooper, a nurse, $1000; Miss Alice Ross, a maid, $250; The Boston World Horse Relief Association, $1000; The Animal Rescue League and Red Acre Farm, $4000 each; The First Baptist Church, Newton, $2500; Newton Hospital, $3000; and the Andover Newton Theological School, $1000. There was a number of other bequests to relatives and friends.

To Hear New Cemetery Plea On Sept. 14th

The Newton Board of Health has set September 14th as the date for a public hearing on the revived petition of the Holyhood Cemetery Association for a permit to use land off Dedham st. for burial purposes. The original petition was rejected by the Board following the report from the State Board of Health that part of the land was unsuitable for such purposes because it is subject to flooding by the Charles river.

The new petition involves only that land which was designated as suitable for the purpose. It was accompanied by a petition to the Board of Aldermen that zoning restrictions upon the land be removed. It is now zoned for residential purposes. The Claims and Rules Committee will hold a hearing on this latter petition.

The land concerned covers about 60 acres known as the Esty Farm although much of the land adjacent to the river has been omitted from the new petition. At hearings held on the previous petition considerable opposition was expressed by the Oak Hill Improvement Association and officials of the Brookline Water Department.

To Survey New Route 128 In Newton

The Newton Planning Board has requested the State Department of Public Works to survey the proposed extension of Route 128 through the Lower Falls section of Newton. This request was made due to the uncertainty of the circumferential highway in connection with a proposed land development in that vicinity. The local Planning Board recently deferred action on the approval of a large real estate development plan by Woodland Homes, Inc., off Grove st. City Engineer Ernest H. Harvey, clerk of the Planning Board, conferred with officials of the State Department of Public Works in regard to the matter in order to ascertain whether or not the development would conflict with the highway route.

The State plans to take a strip of land 200 feet wide for the extension of the highway from Needham through Newton and that the route would come close to the proposed development. At a recent hearing before the Planning Board many property owners in the vicinity of the development appeared to approve the proposal. As soon as a report is received from state authorities regarding the location of the highway the Planning Board will act on the petition before it.

Storm Fells Trees, Floods Cellars

The severe electrical storm which swept over Eastern Massachusetts early Wednesday morning left many flooded cellars and numerous broken tree limbs in Newton. Despite the almost continuous lightning no places in the city were reported struck.

A large tree at the corner of Water and Eddy sts., West Newton, was felled during the storm. Two large branches were broken off trees at Arlington and Belmont sts., Newton and similar damage was reported in other parts of the city.

Washouts were most severe on California st., Jasset st., and Los Angeles st. The street department was requested to pump out two of the many flooded cellars, one a house on School st., Newton, and one on Oakdale rd., Newton Highlands.

More Dogs Are Ordered Restrained

Jeremiah Sullivan of 24 Garland rd., Newton Centre, was notified on Saturday by the police to restrain his dog after a complaint had been received that the animal had bitten a person. John McGrath of 1425 Beacon st. was the complainant. Leo H. Mackey of 67 St. James st., Newton, was also notified to restrain his dog after Charles H. Tilton of 31 Eldridge st., Newton, had been bitten by the animal.

Select Site for New School Committee Favors Land Near Playground

Selection of the site of the new school at Newton to replace the aged and inadequate Elliot and Lincoln wooden school buildings was announced this week by Mayor Childs following notice of action upon the matter by the school committee. The committee favors a site at Pearl and Gardner sts., abutting the Boyd playground and the Board of Aldermen is expected to accept the committee's choice. Another site under consideration was the property known as the former Stuart property bounded by Pearl and Green sts. and Jackson rd., now used for the storage of dismantled cars, auto parts and other materials.

The proximity of the site, accepted by the School Committee, to the playground is regarded as an advantage in connection with the new school. Several dwellings on the property involved must be removed if the city takes title to the land. A public hearing on the matter of taking land for the new school will be assigned for a future date.

At the special meeting of the Board last Monday evening no action was taken as expected upon the proposed bond issue for the school. Action was deferred as final approval of the application by the city for PWA grants for the school building and a 30-inch water main had not been received from action. Congressman Robert Luce's office announced on Tuesday that a telegram had been received there stating that final approval had been given. Thus it is expected that the matter will be taken up at the regular meeting of the Board next Monday evening.

The Federal grant of $105,750, is 45 per cent of the estimated total cost of $235,000.

WPA Check Stolen From Mail Box

Gennaro Mastromattei of 125 Adams st., Nonantum, reported to the police Tuesday night that his WPA check had been stolen from a mail box at his home. The envelope, containing a check for $13.55 was delivered about 9:30 a. m. on Monday according to the letter carrier on the route. Ten minutes later when Mastromattei went to get the mail it was gone. Patrolman George O'Neill, who was assigned to the case, questioned several neighbors but they were unable to offer any clues leading to the thief.

Broken Water Pipe Damages Houses

A water pipe in the attic of the home of Joseph Bryant, 221 Highland ave., West Newton, broke during the absence of the family and caused considerable damage to the interior of the house. A neighbor, who heard the sound of running water, notified the police and when Patrolmen Henry Loughlin and George Tobin went to investigate they found the water had soaked through the ceilings and floors into the cellar. The Water Department was notified and an employee was sent to shut off the water.

Fire Starts In Clothes Basket

A fire which started in a clothes basket in the laundry of the home of Howard Potter, 19 Loring st., Newton Centre, on Tuesday morning was quickly extinguished by firemen who responded to a telephone call. At 8:30 on Monday evening a false alarm was sounded from Box 317 at Orchard ave. and Adella ave., West Newton.

City To Buy McGlinchey Property—$6000

An appropriation of $6,000 was made to the Law department on Monday night at the special meeting of the Board of Aldermen for the purchase of the McGlinchey property on Elm rd., Newtonville, adjoining the high school athletic field. Acting Chairman Frank T. McCabe of the Finance Committee, which reported favorably on the recommendation of the Mayor on the matter stated that the city solicitor had been authorized to offer that amount for the property and that the offer had been accepted.

Negotiations for the purchase of the property and dwelling have been under consideration for some time but the original price asked by the owners was considered excessive and a compromise figure was finally agreed upon. According to present plans the dwelling will be removed although at one time it was considered possible that it would be remodelled for use as offices of the School Committee thus giving additional classroom facilities in the high school building which now houses the administrative department. Acquisition by the city of this property gives the school department control of the quadrangle bounded by Lowell ave., Elm road, Walnut and Hull sts. with the exception of four house lots on Walnut st. northerly from Hull st. As these properties are of considerable value it is considered doubtful if the city will ever take over additional land there.

Denies Stable Permit in Centre

Public Buildings Commissioner Arthur Campbell has declined to issue a building permit for the erection of a stable for six horses on Warren st., Newton Centre, and has notified the Board of Health to this effect. Commissioner Campbell took action following consultation with City Solicitor Bartlett who ruled that because the land covered by the petition is in a single residence zone the establishment of a business stable there would not be permissible. At a hearing held by the Board of Health on August 1st vigorous objection was expressed by residents of the vicinity and the Board laid the matter on the table pending the ruling on the zoning question. The petition was filed by Robert E. Wilson who is in the express business.

In view of the ruling in the matter it is expected that the Board of Health will reject the petition at its next meeting on Sept. 14.

Will Furnish Statement on Request Only

The Newton City Retirement Board has ruled that the request by the City Employees Union that each member of the retirement system be given an annual statement of the sums standing to their credit in the fund is impractical. Chairman Daniel A. White announced last week that any member may obtain a statement of his own standing upon request but that the Board would not publish a list of accounts of all members. Mr. White, city comptroller of accounts, was elected chairman of the Retirement Board to succeed A. Stuart Pratt who recently resigned. He is also serving as secretary pro tem. Other members of the Board are City Engineer Ernest H. Harvey and Frank L. Richardson.

Faculty Changes At Andover-Newton

Three new appointments in the faculty of the Andover-Newton Theological School at Newton Centre were announced this week by President Everett C. Herrick. Dr. Nels Ferre will become professor of the philosophy of religion at the opening of the academic year. Dr. Ferre has spent a year of study in Sweden and received his doctorate in philosophy from Harvard last June. He is a former Springfield resident, a graduate of B. U. 1931, and of Andover-Newton Theological School, 1934. He served as minister of the Village Congregational Church of Dorchester.

Clyde Yarborough takes a position as instructor of voice when the school year opens. He has taught in Hartford Seminary Foundation in Connecticut and has been a substitute teacher at the Yale Divinity School. He has been studying this summer at Columbia University.

The Rev. John Scamman will be librarian at Andover-Newton. He is a graduate of Bates College, A.B. 1927 and of Andover-Newton 1933. He will also instruct in Greek. Mr. Scamman has served as pastor of the Baptist Church in Weston.

West Newton Child Drowned

Shaun R. Maloney, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald M. Maloney of 452 Waltham st., West Newton, was drowned on Sunday at Humarock Beach, Seltunette. The child had wandered away from the summer home of his parents and was discovered by a neighbor in three feet of water in the North River. The coast guard crew from Brant Rock Station worked for two hours in an attempt to revive the child.

Aldermanic Committee Issues Lengthy Report on Several Of The Mayor's Suggestions

Advises Against Purchasing Agent, Public Works Director, Safety Commissioner, Redivision of Wards And Other Matters

A report of the Legislative Committee of the Newton Board of Aldermen at the special meeting of Monday night rejected changes in the set-up of certain city departments that had been suggested by the Mayor in his inaugural address last January. On motion of Vice-president of the Board Clifford H. Walker, chairman of the committee, the report was tabled until the next meeting in order to give members of the Board an opportunity to study it.

The committee advised against the appointment of a central purchasing agent, a public works director, and a public safety commissioner, and also opposed the separation of the offices of treasurer and collector. The committee also recommended no action upon the redivision of the city into wards nor upon state legislation regulating the registration and operation of bicycles.

Although disapproving the creation of the office of a purchasing agent the committee urged closer co-ordination between departments in the matter of collective buying and asked that a committee of three be named by the president of the Board to study possible improvements in this respect. The committee listed advantages of the plan most of which tended to support contentions of lower prices, better quality, the centralization of responsibility, and a standardization of policy. Arguments against the plan included a cost of nearly $8000 per year which would in all probability offset most of the savings affected, the inconvenience and delay of a central storehouse in a city spread as widely as Newton, risks of price recessions offsetting quantity buying in advance, and a tendency to load up with supplies which might be unsuitable or unsatisfactory.

The opposition to the consolidation of the water, street and engineering departments into a public works department was also tempered with recommendation for closer co-operation and co-ordination between the departments. Although the committee advised against the separation of the offices of treasurer and collector they suggested that the city treasurer be given an "energetic and efficient assistant" to whom would be delegated the work of collecting. The committee frowned on the creation of a public safety commissioner's position and gave numerous reasons for its position.

In its consideration of the redivision of the wards of the city consideration was given to the fact that it might mean a conflict with the representative districts and would necessitate the maintenance of two sets of voting districts which would bring about too great confusion. It was also pointed out that a redivision, based upon the 1935 census, could wait until 1945.

In addition to Chairman Walker the committee is comprised of Aldermen Albert P. Everts, Edward A. Fahey, Maxwell P. Gaddis, Charles E. Hughes, Henderson Inches and George E. Rawson.

The committee's report in part follows:

"After a survey of the pros and cons, your Committee advises against the adoption of a central purchasing office at this time. We believe that the existing arrangements give the City in general efficient and honest purchasing of supplies. We believe, on the other hand, that suggestions might well be made, as a result of conference and study, for closer co-operation by department heads in buying. We recommend the appointment of a committee of three, to be appointed by the President of this Board, preferably including the Chairman or one or more members of the Committee on Public Works, to study the co-ordination of the work of the several major departments, and to suggest methods for improving such co-ordination, generally as well as in the purchasing of supplies. More is said on this subject later.

Consolidation of Street Water and Engineering Departments Under a Public Works Director

"It is the opinion of your Committee that a consolidation of these departments under a Public Works Director is not advisable. These departments have been in general, and subject to substantial possible improvement as a result of the supervision and study hereinbefore suggested, should continue to be well and efficiently managed. It would, in the opinion of the Committee, impair the morale of the present department heads if they were relegated to subordinate positions under the direction of an immediate superior. As they are now established, these departments show a commendable degree of co-operation, and the morale in each is excellent and should not be broken down by any impairment of the authority of the department heads. While one important department will be under new direction, it may naturally be expected that the same policies of co-operation will continue.

"Mayor Not in Sympathy
"Notwithstanding the above conclusion, the Committee believes that some good might be derived from the creation of an agency which would assist the three departments in the co-operative planning and execution of the various projects under their jurisdictions. The office of Public Works Director which formerly existed was, in the Committee's opinion, of recognized value in creating a liaison between the three departments, and furthermore, in working out certain long-range planning of public works which require of work upon the head of each department made difficult of accomplishment. The appointment of a Public Works Director could be effected today without a consolidation of the departments under the Charter. The Mayor, however, is understood to be not in sympathy with such a proposal, and, furthermore, existing conditions and the necessity for strict economy make it desirable that further expense for additional salaries be avoided unless a financial advantage over and above the cost of the additional salary is reasonably sure to be obtained from the beginning. It is the belief of the Committee that the present is not the time to consider the establishment of the office of Public Works Director, notwithstanding the advantages of long-range planning of public works and better co-ordination which such an office would secure. The Committee, however, repeats in this connection its recommendation made above for the appointment of a special committee of three members of the Board, preferably including the Chairman or at least a member of the Committee on Public Works, and a member of the Committee on Finance to study into the questions of more complete co-operation between the said departments and better co-ordination of their activities, this committee to be a select committee of the Board to function throughout the year.

Separation of the Offices of Treasurer and Collector
Legally the offices of City Treasurer and Collector of Taxes are separate offices, though they may be and are occupied by the same individual. The Mayor believes that the duties imposed on the present incumbent of these offices are more than can be effectively carried on by one person and has suggested early action toward the separation of these offices. It is the opinion of the Committee that considerable advantages might be obtained by the City through the more vigorous and effective collection of various moneys due or becoming due to the City from different sources, primarily tax and water bills, with occasional amounts collectible for the welfare, library and other departments. It is, however, the opinion of the Committee that without separating the offices of City Treasurer and Collector of Taxes the City Treasurer might appoint an energetic and efficient assistant to whom might be delegated the work of collecting for the City Treasurer and Collector amounts due the City from various sources. If the report of the committee on this subject is accepted by the Board this Committee recommends that the Mayor be requested to communicate with the City Treasurer, after conferences with the City Solicitor as to any legal questions involved, to the end that such a policy of prompt and vigorous collection of receivables through the medium of a special assistant charged with such collection be forthwith put into effect.

Establishment of the Office of a Public Safety Commissioner

"Your Committee believes that it is inadvisable at this time to create the office of Public Safety Commissioner, for the reasons given above in connection with the discussion of the Public Works Director and for other reasons and does not recommend such change.

Redivision of City Into Wards

This matter has already been orally reported upon, but a formal report, as a matter of record, may be desirable. In his address last January, the Mayor suggested that the time was approaching for reconsideration of the problem of a change in the existing ward lines. For many years it has been apparent that a situation of substantial inequality existed in respect of the number of voters and the area comprised in the several wards of the City. In some instances the inequality is striking. Three wards, Wards 7, 1 and 4, contain each only about one-half as many, or less than one-half as many voters as does each of three wards, Wards 5, 6 and 2. Ward 3 occupies a midway position. The figures are as follows:

Ward 7 3154 Ward 5 6942
Ward 4 3495 Ward 2 6020
Ward 3 5209

The situation is further unbalanced because Ward 5 not only contains a much greater area than do other wards, but it contains sections which, according to present indications, are destined to a much more rapid growth.

The matter of the redivision of a city into wards is governed by statute. G. L. c. 54, sec. 1, provides that:

"In 1924, and every tenth year thereafter, in December, a city, by vote of its city council, may make a new division of its territory into such number of wards

A CITY PURCHASING AGENT

The report of the Aldermanic legislative committee which has considered at some length numerous changes in the conduct of our city government is one which should be of considerable interest to many citizens. A half dozen or more important matters are covered in the report, each of which can well be termed of major importance.

We have long believed that the creation of a purchasing agent would be of considerable benefit to the city. It is admitted that grouping of quantities needed would lead to lower prices, greater discounts and that the standardization of many supplies would lead to quantity prices and quality standards. It is also conceivable that central purchasing would lead to more intelligent and more simplified competitive bidding. And there is little room for doubt that the centralization of responsibility would be of considerable benefit.

As against this there would be some expense to the operation of such a department. The committee believes that such expense might run to seven or eight thousand dollars per year and would offset in great measure much of the saving made. It is also true that Newton now has definite policies and protections as to purchasing which tend to minimize waste and extravagance which other cities have experienced. We can readily see the disadvantage of a central storehouse for quantity purchasing, although we are not convinced that such a storehouse would be a necessary detail in the successful operation of a purchasing department.

It is our belief that many citizens have a similar feeling in regard to this matter. Namely, that the creation of a purchasing agent's position would be of benefit but that the savings to be made, in the end would not be as beneficial or as extensive as believed. In any event there is still no reason for haste and no harm will be done if the question is permitted to remain unsettled until a future time.

ANOTHER APARTMENT PROBLEM

Our city government will soon be faced with another problem in regard to apartment houses if information which we believe to be accurate, is correct. We were informed this week that a newly built apartment in Newton will let for tenancy a suite of rooms in its basement which it was believed would be used for storage purposes. The city ordinances relating to apartment houses, changed some time ago, were believed to have prevented the letting of suites of this nature where two other stories are constructed as apartments. Now that the building permit has been granted and the structure practically completed it is regarded as impossible to correct the situation as it pertains in this building.

However, it should be a simple matter for the aldermen to take prompt action in seeing that such a situation does not arise in other apartments that may be built in the future. Undoubtedly there are some who will say that in this instance that the aldermen have had one put over on them or that someone was asleep at the switch. Such is not the case. In the consideration of the enactment of any law it is frequently uncertain as to just what might take place under some of the interpretations that might be given to it or in what manner the intentions of the law may be circumvented. The chief function of our various legislative bodies is to correct and amend our laws to take care of situations that arise from the previous passage of other laws when it is found that legitimate grievances exist against any law or that undesirable actions are unknowingly permitted. However, there should be no reason for any great delay in the correction of this situation which definitely seeks to invalidate the spirit of the Newton ordinance in this respect.

NEVER GREATER UNITY

Once again the legislature has showed its unanimity of a majority opinion that the remaining sum in the highway fund, raised from taxation of gasoline, be distributed to the cities and towns for use upon additional local highway work as a measure of unemployment relief, or for use as an offset on 1939 highway appropriations in anticipation of a greatly increased state tax. The Governor's latest proposal, singling out 55 separate projects was one which entailed no benefit to Newton in the slightest. On the other hand it would not only deprive Newton of its share of the $5,000,000 that is available, namely $121,050, but would impose a similar amount as the additional burden to fall upon Newton taxpayers in meeting the state tax assessment next year. From every point of view, that of adequate consideration for the local unemployed—that of the most desirable manner of expenditure of gasoline tax revenues, that of consideration for the real estate tax payer, and that for just treatment of every city and town in the Commonwealth there can be no other settlement of the problem than that for which the Republican majority of the Legislature has been standing for many weeks. At some time or other it is probable that either the Governor must yield, or see his veto overridden, or that the Republican party will bow. We feel reasonably certain that the longer the situation exists the less likelihood there is that this latter event will occur. Never during a Democratic administration has a Republican Legislature been more unified in its attitude.

POLITICAL LIGHT

It was our intention to publish the column entitled "Political Light" each week during the current campaign season. Due to unavoidable circumstances, however, we are compelled to interrupt the series, which will be resumed in an early issue.

Alderman E. O. Childs and family are at the Sea View House, Kennebunk Beach, Maine.

The prohibitionists will unfurl a Fisk & Brooks campaigning banner at Newtonville square about September 1. They have already thrown out handsome flags at Newton and Auburndale.

During the past week 14 cases were tried in the Newton police court. Of this number 9 were for drunkenness, 2 for assault and battery, 2 for violation of city ordinances, 1 for cruelty to animals.

When the 3:35 train from Boston reached Auburndale on Thursday afternoon Patrolman Ryan, with the assistance of the conductor took two men into custody for drunkenness. Officer Ryan proceeded to put one of the drunks into a hack and Daniel Chamberlain, the baggage-master at the station, went to his assistance. Patrolman Soule, who was present in citizen's clothing, being off duty, thought that the baggage-master was making an effort to prevent the arrest and seized Chamberlain by the throat. The baggage-master, not knowing that Soule was a policeman, succeeded in breaking Soule's grip and gave the policeman a good right hander on the jaw. Station Agent Dooliver, thinking that Chamberlain was getting rough treatment, rushed to his rescue. Finally the participants realized the situation and explanations followed. Mr. Chamberlain, who is a special officer, wore his uniform, but Officer Soule did not notice the brass buttons on it. The drunken men were finally locked up.

Business at the Nonantum Worsteds Mills is rushing. All who apply for work are being hired and some of the male help are working overtime.

Mr. Henry E. Cobb of the banking firm of Brewster, Cobb & Estabrook, who has an elegant residence on Mount Ida, Newton, having a premonition that after Blaine's positive refusal to have his name used at the Republican convention in Chicago, that General Harrison would be nominated for President, built an old-fashioned, genuine log-cabin on the southwesterly slope of Mount Ida. It is situated in a dense wood covering 11 acres and lately purchased by Mr. Cobb. It is a genuine log-cabin such as old Tippecanoe lived in when he commanded the Western frontier.

Powers' Paragraphs

Streets As Garages

Recently automobiles which were parked all night on public streets, have had tires and accessories stolen from them. Owners of such cars will not get much sympathy from the average citizen. Public highways are not intended as garages and if the majority of automobile owners used them as such, the result can be easily imagined. Many cities in recent years have passed ordinances forbidding all night parking of automobiles on public streets, and enforce these ordinances. A couple of years ago the Newton Board of Aldermen passed such an ordinance but the police have not been enforcing it. Most of the cars parked all night on streets are not lighted, and this is a violation of a State law.

The use of streets for garages is becoming a more serious problem in Newton because of the erection the past year at Newton and Chestnut Hill of apartment buildings without any provision being made for off-street parking facilities or garages. As a large percentage of the occupants of these apartment buildings have automobiles, this means that the streets in the vicinity of such buildings will be used for garages unless the Newton police enforce the law and the city ordinance. A year or more ago occupants of an apartment building at Chestnut Hill petitioned the Board of Aldermen for the privilege of parking their cars all night on an adjoining street. As the Board had shortly before passed an ordinance for the purpose of stopping all night parking on public highways, it could not consistently ignore this ordinance and grant special privileges to any group. The petition was properly denied. Nevertheless, occupants of the apartment building from which the petition emanated, have been violating the ordinance and law by continuing to park their cars all night on streets. And the interesting thing is—that alongside of the apartment building involved, is a large, public garage.

The Worst Street

Having attended nearly every meeting of the Board of Aldermen for many years, we have been amused every now and then by hearing residents of this or that street, speaking in favor of the improvement and acceptance of their street, assert that—"It is the worst street in the city." We have been amused because the majority of those who made such assertions were persons who had resided but a comparatively short time in the city, and their knowledge of streets, not only in other parts of the city, but even in the section where they live, was very limited.

As one who is a life-long resident of Newton, and whose work has taken him regularly to all parts of the city, we have an unusual knowledge of street conditions in this burg. So, we can say with assurance that one of the worst streets in Newton, if not the very worst over a long period of years, is now being improved. We refer to Freeman st., Auburndale. In past years it was necessary for us to travel on this street occasionally. And when we drove our car over Freeman st., it was at a snail's pace, and decidedly zig-zag in order to avoid the bumps and hollows, and save the springs on the car. Had some of the folks we heard complain that their particular street was "the worst in Newton," driven a car over Freeman st., they would have encountered a really bad street.

Japan is like all bullies. Merciless when fighting a weaker opponent or victim, but quickly asking for peace when it meets an enemy well supplied with war machinery and equipment. And the hypocritical and disgusting feature of the war between China and Japan is that the two alleged leading champions of Democracy, England and the U. S. A. are providing Japan with much of the arms and munitions which have been and are being used in the slaughter of the Chinese.

Some persons believe that Harry Bridges, the labor leader and alleged Communist, who was largely responsible for raising havoc with U. S. shipping and the cessation of operation of two important American steamship lines between Pacific and Atlantic ports of this country, may be working in the interests of foreign shipping interests. He is not a citizen of the United States.

With only the approval of PWA officials holding up the immediate start of a beginning on the preliminary work of building a new school at Newton to replace the old Lincoln and Eliot schools, elderly men and women of this city who attended the two old schools many years ago are recalling some of the incidents of their school days. At that time discipline in public schools was maintained under much harsher methods than have prevailed since the start of this century. Men who attended the Eliot School in its early days told us of one occurrence there. When the school was first started it numbered among its pupils some boys who mischievously made life miserable for several teachers, and caused more than one to quit. But a tall, muscular young man was put in charge of the school and he quickly gained control when he proved to the unruly element that he could be rougher than they were. In a free-for-all in a school room one day, this teacher threw one of the boys over two rows of seats, severely injuring the youngster, who, incidentally did not live very long after the fracas. Imagine what an uproar there would be if such a thing occurred in a public school today. And we remember one of our boyhood chums telling of having his mouth swabbed out with a piece of soap by a woman teacher in the Lincoln School as punishment for uttering a naughty word. Teachers in those days didn't use Angelo Patri methods.

While opponents of President Roosevelt may criticize his methods and principles in attacking Senator George of Georgia, they can't deny that he showed courage in doing so, even if it is not the type of courage they admire. The President is certainly determined to eliminate from Congress if he can do so, those who have taken a prominent part in opposing his "New Deal" measures.

The primary election will be held on September 20. It is a foregone conclusion that Newton will give a big majority to Leverett Saltonstall in the contest for the Republican nomination for Governor. And while it is generally conceded that Mr. Saltonstall will get the nomination, his fellow citizens of Newton should assist by working in his behalf among their friends throughout the state. The "strange candidacy" of his principal opponent, Mr. Whitcomb, is being pushed all over the Commonwealth, with plenty of campaign funds, apparently to finance it. Mr. Saltonstall's supporters must not make the mistake of being over-confident.

During July folks were complaining about the unusual number of rainy, sultry days and wishing we could get some real summer weather. For the past couple of weeks we have had weather summery enough for anyone, and most folks are complaining about the heat. Three months from now they will be saying—"Isn't it cold? I shall be glad when warm weather comes again."

On one of the hottest days we saw a woman at Newton Corner with a heavy fur neck-piece wrapped tightly under her chin. On another sizzling day a rugged looking youth walked along Centre street wearing a heavy overcoat.

Rotary Club

Dr. Edward Mellus whose classification in the Newton Rotary Club is "Psychiatry," gave a very informative talk to his fellow members at the Braeburn Club on Monday on his experiences as a psychiatrist both in his own private hospital conducted for a number of years and as consultant in state institutions. In doing so, the doctor traced the change of attitude toward mental diseases from the time that that remarkable reformer Dorothea Dix began her crusade a hundred years ago here in Massachusetts against the barbarous conditions then prevailing. Incidentally the speaker referred to the excellent biography of Miss Dix by the West Newton minister Dr. Francis Tiffany, published in 1890, still the standard life.

The speaker was introduced by Mayor Childs who has charge of the programs for the month. Ten guests, one of them coming from South Dakota, were present.

MISS ROSALIE CARROLL

An Appreciation

The many pupils and friends of Miss Rosalie Carroll of the Carroll School in West Newton will learn with sorrow and deep regret of the sudden passing at her home on Tuesday, August 16th, of one who had devoted her life to the training and guidance of youth.

Miss Carroll came to West Newton fifty-four years ago to be associated with the work in the Carroll School under her aunt, Miss Kate Carroll, after whose death she continued to carry on the work, keeping steadfastly to the high ideals for which the school has always been known, and adding a large measure of devotion to the work which endeared her to all who had the opportunity of knowing her. She was an educator in the true sense of the word, always keeping young in spirit, yet never wavering in her convictions or efforts to point the way of life at its best and highest to all who came under her teaching and influence.

Words can only fail to pay proper tribute to such a spirit as was that of "Miss Rosalie,"—the name by which she was known to so many. Though she has passed on, in the years that lie ahead the memory of her consecrated and beautiful life will live on in the hearts and lives of all who knew and loved her. To have been blessed by the influence of her simple dignity, her genuine personality, and her serenity of spirit will be looked upon as a rare and lasting privilege by the many who loved to call her teacher and friend.

Several More Newton Breaks

Thieves entered the home of Chester C. Butts at 84 Hancock ave., Newton Centre, while the family was away for a week-end and ransacked the upper part of the house. Several articles of jewelry were reported missing. Entrance was evidently gained through a kitchen window which had been jammed. This is the second time within a year that the Butts home has been broken into.

Golf bags containing clubs, golf balls and other equipment were stolen from two automobiles parked near the Brae Burn Country Club last week. Mrs. Charles Swickles of Forest St., Wellesley Hills, reported the loss of articles valued at $45 and T. R. Olson of Holman rd., Auburndale, valued articles stolen from his car at $50. The police have also received a report from Edwin H. Day of 240 Winslow rd., Waban, that a reflector globe and a quantity of apples were stolen from his yard on Sunday.

Several more Newton homes were entered by burglars over the week-end while unsuccessful attempts were made to enter another house and a restaurant. Two burglaries of Newton Centre homes were believed solved when Belmont police arrested the alleged thief in a similar crime there. When confronted by Sergeant Patrick J. King and Thomas J. Burke, the thief confessed that he had entered the homes of Donald B. Wheeler at 45 Daniels st. and Arthur T. Bulling at 497 Boylston st. A paid of shoes, a child's bank containing $4 and a watch were taken from the Wheeler home, and a radio, typewriter and several suits of clothes from the Bulling home. It was the second time within a week that the latter home had been burglarized, and, according to police, the man under arrest in Belmont confessed that he committed both burglaries.

The home of Eugene Paillet at 23 Prospect Park, Newtonville, was entered some time between Saturday and Monday morning. Police were unable to determine the extent of loss, as occupants of the house were away. The thief gained entrance by breaking a pane of glass in the porch door.

Another Large Audience At Auburndale Concert

An audience of over 5000 people enjoyed another outdoor concert at the Auburndale playground. Commonwealth ave. and Islington rd., Auburndale, Tuesday evening, presented by the Newton Orchestra, Albert H. Weber, supervisor, and Herman C. Sulzen, conductor, of the Federal Music Project, Mr. William Haddon, State Director.

Although the evening was very warm, the playground was packed with cars, and people lined along the fence bordering the playground, and both sides of Commonwealth ave. filled with cars. The audience was very enthusiastic in their appreciation and applause for this popular orchestra.

New amplifiers installed this season carried the music so that all might hear distinctly, and those wishing remained in their cars. The electrically illuminated aluminum shell presented a pretty picture in this beautiful playground for a background, among the trees, and with its natural amphitheatre making an ideal spot for these concerts.

Another attractive program has been arranged for next Tuesday evening.

Vets Organize for Saltonstall

Edward Edmunds was elected chairman of the first unit of a statewide Veterans' League for Leverett Saltonstall, Republican candidate for governor, at a meeting Tuesday night in the Women's Workshop, Newton Highlands.

Other officers include Andrew B. Sides, vice-chairman; Arthur A. Hunt, treasurer; and Rudolph F. Whitelegg, secretary.

Saltonstall, who is an overseas World War veteran and a member of the Newton Legion post, addressed the meeting urging a change in the type of leadership on Beacon Hill.

Chairman Edmunds discussed plans every city and town in the state.

Several Motorists Pay Small Fines

In court on Wednesday morning Edward P. Gray, 4 Franklin farmer, was fined $5 for speeding on Commonwealth ave. and $3 for failing to observe the stop sign at the intersection of Centre st. and the avenue. He pleaded guilty to the stop charge but claimed that it was impossible for him to break the speed law with his farm truck. Maxwell Shain of 1209 Centre st. was fined $10 for driving without a license and $3 for not stopping before entering a through way.

A half dozen first offenders failing to observe the law in respect to stop signs had their cases placed on file. At a session of the Newton District Court last Friday several motorists were fined by Judge Lloyd W. Allen on various charges of violating the motor vehicle laws.

Fines of $5 each for speeding were imposed upon John J. Craig, 22, of Natick; Wilfred Geoffrion, 27, of Warren; Walter S. Melrose, 42, of North Bellingham; and Richard C. Sluzas, 22, of Dorchester. Francis J. Werners, 23, of Jamaica Plain was fined $3 for failing to stop before entering a through way while a charge of speeding was filed. Fines of $3 each were also imposed upon Carl Venuit, 22, of Somerville and Bro. J. Janson, 41, of Cohasset on charges of failing to stop before entering a through way.

Automobile Accidents

Miss Stella Gedraitis, 22 of 19 Lathrop st., Brighton, suffered a fractured skull and the loss of several teeth when the roadster in which she was riding with George E. Cahill of Brighton, driver of the car, Walter M. Burdick and Edward J. Cusack, Jr., of Allston, skidded and overturned on Commonwealth ave. near Prentice rd. early last Friday. They were all removed to the Newton Hospital where the men were treated for minor injuries and discharged. Two passing motorists, who went to the assistance of the occupants of the overturned car, succeeded in lifting the roadster on its side so that the men were able to crawl out and help extricate the girl. Police investigation revealed that the car had skidded about 150 feet before it overturned.

Radcliffe will take "Words with Wings" as the subject of his sermon Sunday morning at 11 a. m. at the West Newton Unitarian Church, where union summer services for seven co-operating churches of Newtonville, West Newton and Auburndale are being held. The musical program is as follows: Prelude, "Pastorale," Bach; and "Chorale," Scheldt; solo, by John Diamond, "In Native Worth," Haydn; offertory, "Prayer," Beethoven; postlude, "Toccata," Bach. Dr. Radcliffe is minister of the First Methodist Church of Syracuse, New York, where during the regular season his entire Sunday morning services are broadcast.

Legislators' Records Shown On Major Matters

Compilation of the roll call voting records of the 1937-1938 legislature on six important measures has been completed by the Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers Associations. Distribution of this compilation is being made to hundreds of thousands of homes throughout the state in accordance with a practice instituted by the Taxpayers Federation two years ago. An exhaustive examination of the House and Senate journals was made by a research staff. Six of the 562 roll call votes were selected as of major importance to taxpayers. These votes, as well as the Federation's stand are shown on the reprinted tabulation.

In order to simplify and make legible to the recipients a separate form was printed for each of 91 districts showing votes cast by Legislators in those various districts. In no case does the number of names on each form exceed 12 and in many cases only two, three or four names.

The six measures which the tabulations are based are: (1)—Biennial sessions of the legislature on which final approval of the 1937 session was necessary to bring the matter before the people on the ballot at the State election in November. (2)—Distribution of $6,000,000 of gasoline tax revenue to the cities and towns for highway expenses in the 1937 session which was passed in both branches, vetoed by the Governor who later forced diversion of this sum to the general revenues of the state and subsequently bringing a Federal penalty of $472,000. (3)—Diversion of $4,000,000 of gas tax revenues in 1938, urged by the governor but defeated. Enactment of this legislation would have disguised the actual state tax (as in other years), would have brought a Federal penalty of $1,000,000 and would have increased public works departmental appropriations far in excess of previous years.

(4)—1938 budget bill, increasing highway appropriations five million more than in 1937 and adding nearly one dollar to local tax rates. This bill totaled $76,000,000, passed the House by one vote but was killed in the Senate by the votes of 21 members, saving the increased five millions for road money. (5)—Proposal to create nine tax-supported Liberal Arts Colleges in bill permitting Normal schools to grant general college degrees at an ultimate capital cost of millions, plus high maintenance costs through the creation of a State university. (6)—A ten million dollar bond issue to be spent under the public works department, making total highway appropriations of $22,750,000 (1937 total of $9,950,000).

The Taxpayers Federation favored the first two of these measures and advocated the defeat on the other four. Senator Arthur Hollis, Representative William B. Baker, Warren K. Brimblecom, Douglas R. Francis and Clarence S. Latwiler were recorded on all six measures in accord with the Federation's stand with the solitary exception of Rep. Luitwiler's vote against approval of biennial sessions. On this matter Senator Hollis and Representative Brimblecom are known to be opposed to the adoption of biennial sessions but voted to put the question on the ballot for the people's decision. During the debate on the matter there was considerable argument as to whether the issue was one of putting it before the people or one approving biennial sessions of the Legislature.

To Start Using New Playground

First use of the newly acquired land at Watertown st. and Albemarle rd., Newtonville, for playground purposes will be made during the forthcoming horseshoe pitching matches. Announcement was made this week by Supt. of Playground Ernest Hermann that the horseshoe courts now at the Horace Mann School will be moved to the Watertown st. end of the new playground. When completed for use as a playground the area will be used also for athletic activities of the Frank A. Day Junior High School.

Officer Proves Boxing Ability

Motorcycle Officer John Bagley of the Newton police force had an opportunity to use his prowess as a former amateur boxer and titleholder in the light heavyweight class on the West coast during the arrest of a drunken driver on Tuesday night. The incident occurred when Officer Bagley stopped David E. Richards, 33, of Holliston, at Commonwealth ave. and Fuller st. when he noticed the car the latter was driving carried a cardboard number plate.

Asking to see license and registration papers as well as a permit to carry the temporary number plate, the officer was finally shown a road map. Richards then set upon Bagley, ignorant of the latter's boxing skill. After a brief but furious struggle Richards was subdued and taken to headquarters in the patrol wagon. The patrol wagon was summoned by the telephone call of one of nearly a hundred spectators attracted to the scene of the fracas.

Richards, who is 5 ft. 6 in., suffered a cut on each ear and one under his right eye, while the six-foot police officer came out of the fray with a badly torn shirt and tears in the knees of his uniform trousers. In court on Wednesday, Officer Bagley presented the torn clothes as an exhibit before Judge Mayberry.

Richards, charged with drunken driving and drunkenness was fined $100 on the first charge and was told that if restitution of $15 is made for the officer's uniform the latter charge will be filed on August 31 to which date the case was continued.

Third Anniversary Of Social Security Act Shows $48,000,000 Here

Federal old-age insurance protection amounting to at least $48,053,250 has already been accumulated by Massachusetts wage earners, it was announced today by Walker V. Daly, manager of the Social Security Board's Cambridge field office.

This sum represents 3½ per cent of wages reported for Massachusetts employees covered by Federal old-age insurance during the first 16 months of the program's operation. In no case, under these provisions of the Social Security Act, will the benefit payable be less than 2½ per cent of the employee's total wages, according to Mr. Daly.

Highlights of old-age insurance were summarized as follows by Mr. Daly, in connection with the third anniversary of the Act, signed by President Roosevelt August 14, 1935:

All payments are based on wages for work after 1936, by persons under age 65, in jobs covered by old-age insurance. Monthly benefits will be payable to retired employees at or after age 65, beginning in 1942. A lump sum is payable now to employee reaching 65 and employee does not have to quit job in order to collect this type of payment.

Gladioli Exhibit Now On At Little Tree Farms

Hundreds of flower lovers in this vicinity are making a pilgrimage this week to the shrine of the Gladiolus—this month's "Queen of the Garden"—at Little Tree Farms, Framingham Centre, as their annual Gladiolus Exhibition opened in full glory today and will continue through the 29th.

Few outsiders realize the enormous strides made in the last year or two in the development of this popular flower. The range of colors is superb; delicate pastel tints of rose, ivory, shell pink, salmon, pale yellow and lavender, contrasting with flashing reds, rich purples and the subtle bronze shades impossible to describe—in short, an epitome of the tender tones that reflect the dawn and the glowing splendors of sunset.

When one considers that all this intoxicating beauty is combined with a dramatic grace of form unknown in any other species; that the flower can be grown outdoors to perfection by any amateur at slight expense, it is no marvel that its circle of admirers increases by thousands every year.

Out of the literally hundreds of varieties produced, a selection of over fifty of the latest and best gold medal varieties in almost every shade of the rainbow except blue, and including some of the choicest primulinus or orchid varieties, will be shown at the Farms—a breathtaking pictorial display of colorful beauty!

In addition to the mass displays of this beautiful flower, gladiolus fans will have the opportunity to study each variety separately, and purchase bulbs of their favorites if they so desire. Arrangements of gladioli and other flowers in vases will also be shown in profusion as its popularity as a cut flower is phenomenal.

Little Miss Peggy Anne of Framingham, this year's Queen of the Show, will be present on several afternoons during the week and present each feminine visitor with a spray of the new gladiolus recently named in her honor. There is no admission charge.

In Hospital After Assault

Rocco Murrillo, 32, of 7 Lucas ct., West Newton, was taken to the Newton Hospital on Monday afternoon after receiving a terrific beating at the hands of his brother-in-law, according to the police. The brother-in-law, Angelo Brino, 28, of Pearl st., Everett, was arrested by Patrolmen Joseph B. Lyons and Lawrence Dungan on charges of assault and battery. Murrillo was taken to the hospital in the police ambulance by Patrolmen Charles Marden and Patrick J. Burke. Several of his teeth had been knocked out, his lips and mouth split and cut and 13 stitches were required. The victim joined his wife as a hospital patient she having been confined there by illness for several weeks. It was her husband's alleged treatment of her that formed the basis of the argument between Murrillo and his wife's brother. Brino was arraigned before the Newton court on Tuesday and his case continued until August 23rd after he entered a plea of guilty.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Mind" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, on Sunday, August 21. The Golden Text is: "Behold, God is mighty, and desiseth not any; he is mighty in strength and wisdom" (Job 36:5).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "If there be therefore any consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellowship of the Spirit, if any bowels and mercies, fulfill ye my joy, that ye be likeminded, having the same love, being of one accord, of one mind" (Philippians 2:1, 2).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "When the divine precepts are understood, they unfold the foundation of fellowship, in which one mind is not at war with another, but all have one Spirit, God, one intelligent source in accordance with the Scriptural command: 'Let this Mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus' " (p. 276).

Newton, Kansas, Was Named For Newton, Massachusetts

Newton, Kansas, division point on the Santa Fe, city of 12,000, was named in honor of Newton, Mass., suburb of Boston, where many of the original rockholders of the Santa Fe lived.

When they visited the new prairie town, the representatives of the railway must have received a good impression of the possibilities, for otherwise they would not have selected the name of their own home city for the new town.

This Cow Town was incorporated August, 1871, and Thomas J. Peters was the first president.

The grasshopper plague of 1874 brought these little red headed engines of destruction in such numbers as to blot out the sun—they gave the impression of low-flying gray-black clouds from the northwest; a mass formation everywhere that persisted for three days until nothing was left, not a blade of vegetation. There were numerous stories of how the "hoppers" worked, how cornstalks were bent almost to the ground under their weight, how they ate the green window shades of some of the hardy pioneers.

Out from the city was Boots Hill, a notorious burial ground, for when the city was a Cow Town, shootings were so numerous that burials were consummated in the shortest time possible, boots, sombrero and all clothing left on the victim.

Some notes from the Kansas Republican of those years:

"An ordinance prohibits buffalo and other wild animals from running at large within the corporate limits of the city."

"The bed bugs in Santa Fe are terrifying, having driven the entire population to the sidewalks."

"Tuesday afternoon Harry Ainsworth, while at home playing around the house, was bitten by a rattlesnake."

Reports Against Numerous Proposals

as may be fixed by law. The boundaries of such wards shall be so arranged that the wards shall contain, as nearly as may be consistent with well defined limits to each ward an equal number of voters."

Opposed in 1934

"In accordance with the provisions of the above statute an effort was made in 1934 to obtain a redistricting of Newton into wards. A plan was worked out which was mathematically, and from the point of view of utilization of main highways and important thoroughfares as boundaries, a good plan. Under it the number of voters in the various wards, approximately equal. This plan, however, met with a storm of protests, largely because it drew ward lines irrespective of community or village lines. The experience then met indicated that any plan for new ward lines, to be acceptable to the voters, must, to the greatest degree practicable, preserve unimpaired community or village districts. An effort was made to revise the original plan along such lines, but the time remaining particularly in the year 1934 was too short, and the problem was complicated with various suggestions for changes in the structure of our city government. During the course of such revisions there was evolved largely through the efforts of Alderman Colby, a proposal which obviated many of the objections to the original plan, and provided other opportunities for eventual equalization through anticipated increases in the population in certain districts. A great deal of work and thought went into the preparation of this plan, but, as stated, proposals for changes in the structure of the municipal government, and the suggestion of still another plan involving a greater number of wards, so complicated the situation that within the allotted time nothing was agreed upon. Interest in the matter was renewed, however, and a study given to the subject, mainly by reference to Alderman Colby's general scheme, and in 1936 a bill was introduced with the Massachusetts Legislature for authority to make a new division into wards in December of that year. When the matter was discussed with the Legislative Committee on Cities however, it was pointed out that the establishment of new wards at that particular time would meet or give rise to difficulties connected with the constitutional provisions regarding the establishment of state representative, senatorial and council districts. By the 1930 amendment of Article XXI, of the Constitution of Massachusetts, which amended article is set forth in Massachusetts Acts and Resolves of 1930, p. 608, it is provided that in 1935 and every tenth year thereafter a census of the inhabitants of each city shall be taken, and a special enumeration shall be made of the legal voters therein, which enumeration shall specify the number of legal voters residing in each ward; that such special enumeration shall be the basis for determining the representative districts for the ten-year period beginning with the January following said special enumeration; provided, however, that the districts established in the year 1936 shall continue in effect until the first Wednesday in January in the year 1939. A similar amendment to Article XXII was adopted at the same time with relation to senatorial and council districts. The text of these two amendments is appended as Exhibit A hereto.

Impracticable in 1936

Consequently, it was pointed out that a new division into wards in 1936 would be impracticable, since representative senatorial and council districts, as established in 1926, were, by the constitutional provision, to continue until 1939, and since the constitution provided that in establishing such districts no ward of a city should be divided. It was suggested, therefore, that the appropriate time for a redistricting of Newton into wards would be just before the year 1939, when the redistricting for state representatives, senators, and councilors will take place. Such redistricting, it was then thought could then be based upon our new wards.

Upon further investigation by your Committee and after discussion of the matter with officials of the Election Department of the Secretary of State, it appears that because of the constitutional provisions above mentioned, which cannot be overridden by any legislative enactment, no action regarding ward lines can be taken, unless such provisions should be amended, for a number of years. The reason is that the Constitution provides that representative senatorial and council districts shall be established upon the basis of a decennial state census, which for each city shall enumerate the voters in each ward, no ward to be divided in fixing such districts; that, as the last census was taken in 1935 and no new census will be taken until 1945, there will be no such official enumeration of voters by wards again until 1945 and until that time (after January, 1939) the state representatives, senators and councilors will have to be elected on the basis of the 1935 census and wards; that changing wards for city voting and having them remain unchanged for the election of state senators and representatives would be obviously impracticable even if it were legally possible. The question of a change in ward lines, therefore, would seem to require postponement until just before the 1945 census when the new lines might be established in season to be the basis of the new census and the new districts. As conditions may change greatly by that time it is inadvisable to comment upon any past plans for redistricting. Your committee reports, therefore, that upon this subject no present action is necessary or possible.

State Legislation Regulating the Registration and Operation of Bicycles

There was referred to your Committee Senate Bill No. 132, entitled "An Act Further Regulating the Operation of Bicycles upon Public Ways and Sidewalks, Rendering More Difficult Their Theft, and Promoting a Greater Degree of Care in Their Operation." This bill was before the Legislative Committee on Highways and Motor Vehicles of the Commonwealth. Two communications from Edward E. Keeney to our Board with relation to this bill, were similarly referred to your Committee. A subcommittee of our Committee on Legislation was appointed to consider what position, if any, the City of Newton should take with reference to this bill, and after discussion of such subcommittee's report, your Committee reported upon the subject matter as follows:

The bill adds certain new sections to G.L., c. 140, by inserting after sec. 187 of said chapter, under the caption of "Bicycles," seven new sections. The first prohibits the operation of bicycles upon public ways or sidewalks unless registered, with a registration plate attached, and unless the operator is licensed as in the new statute provided. The second section provides for registration and licensing of bicycles by local police and statewide filing of registration lists. The third section provides for registration plates and for establishment by the Commissioner of Public Safety of rules and regulations to govern the operation of bicycles upon public ways and sidewalks. The fourth section provides further details regarding registration plates and license certificates. The fifth section provides that every licensee shall produce his license for examination upon demand therefor by a police officer or other authorized person. The sixth section provides a penalty for violations of the Act and in addition for suspension of licenses and registrations. The Police Department of each city or town to advise minors within his district as to the requirements of the law.

Referred to 1939

Senate Bill 132 was by the Committee on Highways and Motor Vehicles of the House of Representatives abandoned, and House Bill 1861 substituted for it. This merely provided for city and town registration of bicycles, without provisions for regulation of their operation. For House Bill 1861 there was substituted by the Committee on Bills in the Third Reading a similar bill (House Bill 1885). Final action by the Legislature on the latter bill consisted of referring it to the next annual session.

Considerable attention is being devoted to the question of the operation of bicycles, their registration and regulation and to incidental matters by various bodies and organizations (such as the Newton Safety Council, the Boy Scouts, the Newton Teacher-Parents Association, the Newton High School Student Council) and by the school authorities of our city. Your Committee is advised that difficulties exist as to local regulation of their operation on the highways and there are practical and other objections to statewide registration and regulation. In view of the disinclination of the Legislature to act upon the subject at present, the study which is being devoted to it by other organizations and the possibility of the problem being largely solved by school clubs or other voluntary organizations, your Committee believes that no action is now necessary on this subject, and so reports your Board.

There is noticeable championship material in many of the children and it is hoped that these boys and girls will continue archery practice, perhaps as members of the Newton Archers Club, after the playground season closes.

CAMP F. A. DAY ACTIVITIES

Final Minstrel Show on Saturday

The traditional Minstrel Show of Camp Frank A. Day will be held this year as in past years on the last Saturday of the camping season, Aug. 20th, in the Assembly Hall of the camp. For the past two weeks chorus try-outs have been conducted and rehearsals held while the endmen practiced their jokes and gags. The results have been more than gratifying to the two coaches, Director Clyde G. Hess and Prescott Coan. Popular melodies as well as a college medley mixed with quartette and solo singing will furnish the campers and their friends with a pleasant evening.

Endmen for the show are men popular with the boys for their slapstick humor during the course of the season as members of the Hawkshaw-Murgatroyd Dramatic Company; Alan Smith of West Newton, Roger Cotting of Newton, David Ashton of Somerville, Bob Farley of Brooklyn, Malcolm Howe of Watertown, and Russell Wigh of Hackensack, New Jersey. Mr. Thomas F. O'Donnell of Norwood will act as Interlocutor.

A temporary stage will be set up in the Assembly Hall for the production to bring all the entertainers in full view of the audience. Special lighting effects have been prepared by Mr. Sydney Roberts of Dorchester with the aid of Mr. Robert Pennell of Portland, Maine. Costumes and make-up are in the control of Mr. Gerald Sullivan of Newtonville, while musical arrangement is supervised by Taylor Smith of Newton.

A chorus of 30 voices has been selected, and will feature the voice of George Roope, the boy soprano. Members of the chorus are: Counsellors Gerald Sullivan, Pres. Coan, Jack Hayward, Kenneth White, John Hancock, Sydney Pond, Richard Kelley, Larry Corbett, Phil Hamlin; Campers George Roope, Larry Howe, Bob Connolly, Ted Simpson, Bill Henn, Doug Smith, Dick Lane, Chuck and Don Berns, Bill Kaiser, Dick Wright, Dick Bramhall, Bob Briggs, Tom Siliker, Bob Tibolt, Howard Hatch, Bus Richards, Jack Callaghan, John Neilson, Ross Humphrey, Leonard Mooney, Malcolm Morse and Barrows Whittemore.

Final Canoe Regatta on Sunday
A display of the aquatic ability of the boys of the camp will be given on Sunday afternoon when the annual Canoe Regatta for the benefit of on-looking parents and friends is staged. Trials for the boys who will take part took place on Thursday afternoon, and the finals promise real competitive thrills. The entire meet is directed by the Waterfront Committee which will award ribbons to the winners at the final banquet on Thursday, Aug. 25th.

Entertainment Features
The past week has been full of evening entertainment for the camp members, beginning with the weekly Council Fire on Sunday where Chief Hess conducted services in accord with the day. On Monday an educational film with sound was shown, after which a raffle was conducted with the boys reveling in the water after a warm day. Tuesday the Brookfield Hills Billies caused tremendous applause with their song and jokes, an engagement planned for the past two weeks. Thursday night the weekly feature movie was held by "Father Brown, Detective."

Final Swim Meet Last Saturday
The best of the three swimming meets of the Camp Day 22nd season was conducted on last Saturday afternoon, featured by the entry of more than three-quarters of the campers necessitating several heats for each event. Surprise results occurred in the Senior Camp when Doug Teschner, perhaps the smallest Senior, showed the way to the rest of the camp by winning the High Individual score with two firsts in the high-board dives and the backstroke as well as a second in the breaststroke. Chet Munnie and Walt Stone closely pressed him by taking two first places in their own right.

In the Junior Camp, Carl Needy gained highest honors with a first in the Distance Swim, a second in the Dives and a third in the 25-yard dash for a total of nine points. Ross Humphreys and Ed Hawkes were tied for second honors with eight points each. Alan Bates topped the Midget Camp with six points gained by a second in the Distance Swim and a second in the 25-yard dash.

Mayor Edwin O. Childs Addresses Camp Day

"The job of a man or boy in this life," stated Mayor Childs of Newton in his chapel talk to the boys of Camp Frank A. Day on last Sunday, "is to grow mentally, physically, and spiritually. We fade away when we stop growing just as a tree planted by a river withers when its roots grow. Further, we must grow in these three ways, mentally, spiritually and physically if we are to prosper."

The entire camp of two hundred boys and counsellors, as well as numerous parents and friends of the campers, listened attentively to the development of the address. The Mayor opened his talk by informing the assembly that he was not present in his official capacity as Mayor of Newton, but as a member of the Board of Directors of the Newton Y. M. C. A., a position he has served since 1889, and also as a charter member of the Boys' Department of the Newton "Y." He recalled the early beginning of the Boys' Department when he was but a boy in the eighth grade of the Bigelow School.

Enlarging upon his central thought he stated that there are many organizations in America which aid the man or boy to grow. Such an organization was the Newton "Y," and its Camp Day.

Preceding the sermon of Mayor Childs, Scriptures were read by Mr. Clyde G. Hess, Director of Camp Frank A. Day. Two trumpet selections were rendered by a quartette composed of David Ashton of Somerville, Stanley Sumner of Cambridge, William Skidmore of Glenwood Landing, Long Island, and Taylor Smith of Newton.

Letters To The Editor

STOP "FIXING" FOR SAFETY'S SAKE

August 17, 1938.

Editor, Newton Graphic.

Dear Sir:

I was greatly interested in your editorial in last week's GRAPHIC regarding "fixing" cases of traffic violations. It is a problem that is having the attention of the Traffic Committee of the Board of Aldermen.

There are times when minor traffic violations are, and should be, dealt with courteously and Newton officers are to be commended for their fairness to motorists. Many reports come to me voluntarily from people who have been stopped and warned by our officers.

It is the cases of drunken drivers, or men under liquor influence, or the man who is a speeder, or goes through traffic lights, or does not stop at Stop and Enter streets—those are major cases that should not be "fixed" nor should their cases be dealt with lightly.

Any man with a so-called "pull" or a man "higher-up" or a politician or an officer or anyone else who attempts to fix or does in any manner fix a major traffic violation is, in the minds of the Traffic Commission, as guilty as the violator and is tampering with justice, is promoting a lack of respect for the law, and promotes traffic violations in that an officer hesitates to issue a ticket for a violation knowing some "fixer" will be on the job.

Let's stop fixing cases in Newton and we will have fewer traffic violations, fewer accidents, and continue an already good record of 137 days without a fatal accident.

An almost fatal accident happened last Friday morning around two a. m. Four young people in a car were speeding on Commonwealth ave. The car turned over. Three of the people are now out of the hospital and one young lady is still there badly injured. Speed was the cause. We are watching to see if anyone tries to fix this case.

We are also getting all information possible and names of anyone who fixes or tries to fix any traffic violations.

In an effort to reduce both major and minor accidents in Newton every agency, Women's Clubs, Men's Clubs, Fraternal organizations, Churches, Church schools, Improvement Associations, our schools, are asked to urge drivers of cars and pedestrians to "spend a moment and save a life" by frequently bringing this subject to the attention of their audiences that more and more people will catch the spirit and have a personal pride in helping to make Newton a safe place to live.

Ever since the first American car took to the road in October, 1892, accidents have been on the increase reaching a record high last year. However, up to July 21 of this year there has been a net reduction in fatalities of 135 in Massachusetts and a reduction of 1056 in personal injuries; this record caused largely because of a state wide public interest being aroused.

Of the approximately 36,000 fellow men who lost their lives last year, records show that 20,000 were killed at night and 11,000 between the hours of 5 and 9 p. m. and the death rate is nearly 100 per cent greater in winter when it is dark than in summer when it is light, and that 69 per cent of those who are killed at night are pedestrians.

Night driving is dangerous. Some say they have good lights and can see as well as in the day time. However, even with good lights the uneven topography bounces the brilliant beam over an excessive range causing eye and brain strain and nervous fatigue. Therefore, the answer to night driving is less speed and a stop for a moment's rest at frequent intervals.

Excessive speed on such streets as Washington, California, Waltham, Beacon, Boylston, Centre, Commonwealth ave. and Lexington as well as the turnpike which carry so much traffic should be curbed and steps are being taken along this line. Pedestrians crossing these thoroughfares should do so with extreme care.

Errors in judging the speed of on-coming motor cars, stepping on to the street from the sidewalk without looking, mind being concentrated on other matters, walking in the street or highway, and crossing streets at other than appointed places are the cause of many pedestrian accidents.

In some places the speed of 30 to 35 miles an hour is not excessive, whereas in others a speed of 15 to 20 miles per hour is too fast. Our state laws call for a safe speed and our officers should continue their efforts to see that a safe speed is used by all motorists and a ticket or a warning be given when, in their opinion, a driver is going too fast.

Traffic lights have been placed at most strategic points in our city. Stop and Enter signs, authorized by the State Department of Public Works, have been placed on streets where most needed. Broad white lines have been painted on streets to warn motorists to slow down, or stop, or keep on the proper side of the street.

A lady brought to my attention last week the traffic hazard of property owners placing large shrubbery in corner lots. This shrubbery, after growing, shuts off the view of motorists and many cause serious accidents. Property owners have a right to beautify their homes, but where these traffic hazards exist it would be the part of a good citizen to trim the shrubbery to eliminate the hazard.

May I thank you for your weekly publication on the front page of your paper the notice of days in Newton without a fatal accident and for your editorials promoting safety in our city.

Sincerely yours,

MAXWELL P. GADDIS,
Chairman, Traffic Com-

The annual outing of the Newton City Employees, Local 75, was held last Saturday at Indian Hill Grove, Maynard. A dinner was served shortly after noon at which A. Leslie Moriarty, president, presided and urged 150 members that were present to obtain additional signatures for the purpose of placing the question of obtaining two weeks' vacation for city employees upon the ballot. McCarthy, acting Street Commissioner.

The highway-playground team was the victor in a baseball tournament against the water works team and the forestry team. Burns, Drennan, DeLahanty, P. Murphy, Beecher, Foley, Gregorio, Bradley, Hayward and pitcher Joe Scrooc, comprised the winning outfit.

A spirited tug of war contest was won by the team comprised of A. Blakely, S. Murphy, P. Murphy, N. George, A. Guzzi, J. Scroos, John Foley, N. Vassalotti, Bill Nolan and Coffey.

At bocce, Italian bowling game, the winners were Loreto Cuchi, Loreto Tramonozzi, Rosario Vesochi, and Nunziato Tempesta. Woodrow won the 50-yard dash with N. George second and John Foley third. Woodrow also won the 100 yard dash with Foley second and Coffey third.

Misunderstood, Default Removed

A default warrant was issued in the Newton District Court last Saturday for the arrest of Frank L. Todino, 22, of Waverley ave., Watertown, following his failure to appear in court Friday on a charge of obtaining $53 from Louis Fried, a Nonantum merchant, by means of a worthless check. Todino was arrested in Belmont on Saturday and arraigned in the Newton court on Monday. Todino told the court that a misunderstanding on his part as to the date he was due in court was the cause of his failure to appear on Friday. He was released on bail on August 4th after the original charge in the case had been continued to last Friday. On Monday the default was removed and the case continued to today with the understanding that the defendant is to make restitution in the amount of the check.

CONCERT AT THE MOTHERS' REST

A most entertaining concert was given Thursday evening for the mothers who are being benefited by vacations at the Mothers' Rest Home in Oak Hill, by a group of the most talented children from the CHILDREN'S SINGING GUILD, under direction of Mrs. Russell.

Struck Child, Arrested, Fined

In the Newton District Court last Saturday morning, Arthur F. Cummings, 27, of 299 Centre st., Newton, was fined $10 for speeding and $20 for driving without a license. On the previous Saturday the car which Cummings was driving struck Lawrence Cetroni, 2½ years old, of 265 Adams st. The child was taken to the Newton Hospital where he was treated for cuts and bruises. Cummings was arrested by Patrolman Laughlin who told Judge W. Lloyd Allen that after the accident Cummings had admitted he had been driving at a rapid rate of speed. The defendant testified in court that he was driving slowly at the time and that the child had run from in front of another machine into the path of his car. According to the police Cummings' license had been suspended several years ago and had never been restored to him.

Richard H. Childs, 17, of Lexington was fined $4 on a charge of speeding when he pleaded guilty in the Newton court on Tuesday.

The examination will be open to foremen, assistant foremen and clerks in the department. The position has been vacant several years. It was formerly held by the late Charles A. Mahoney, until he became street commissioner and subsequently was not filled although since that time Foreman Frank Ward has been acting division foreman.

Camp Frank A. Day Season Ends With Gala Banquet and Awards of Many Prizes

Two Hundred Campers and Friends Participate In Annual Festivities at Y.M.C.A. Camp

Last night was the climax of the Camp Frank A. Day 1938 season as 200 campers and friends sat down to enjoy the final banquet. After the boys had stuffed themselves with the best of Chef Nils Johnson's menu there were the long-awaited awards, ribbons, and camp statistics to thrill the many recipients.

Chief Hess opened the proceedings with a short speech congratulating the campers for their work during the year, and the boys for their remarkable spirit during a season made difficult by the inclement season. C. Evan Johnson read the choices by written ballot of the boys in their respective camps. Ranging from "most popular boy" through camp mama's boy and including such long-standing favorites as best sport, best athlete, most improved camper, noisiest camper, sloppiest camper and thirteen other "bests," alternate laughter and cheers greeted the winners of the polls. This has always been an enjoyable part of the evening's entertainment, and is taken with the best of sportsmanship by all the campers.

Numerous ribbons, blue, red and white, were given to the place winners of the final competitive events in the athletic life of the camp. One hundred and sixty ribbons were included in this total, and more than three-quarters of the campers were the recipients as a result of the policy of the Athletic Directors to limit the entrance of the boys in this final competition. The boys who were members of the winning teams of the various leagues received in addition emblems in the form of triangles with the letter "D" inscribed.

One of the highest awards that can be received is that of the Camp Banners which are given to the tent in each of the three camps, Senior, Junior and Midget, as a result of season-long competition in tent neatness. Each tent is inspected daily by directors and points are assessed against tents which fail to meet standards, as well as on assigned camp duties. In the Senior Camp, Tent Eight, led by Max Stone as counselor, gained top honors, and the following boys proudly received the cherished banners: Larry Howe, Tom Silliker, Morris Dew, Charles Bray, Loring Kidder, Bob Seaward and Walter McDonald. In the Junior Camp, Counselor Sid Roberts led forward his group for the same award; tent members: Ross Humphrey, David Kidger, John Wilson, Bruce Hawley, Manning Chellis, Norman Whittaker and Wilbur Noyes. Counselor Richard Kelley and the members of his Tent 20 won the Midget Camp prizes, and this tent was composed of: Everett Brimblecom, Bob White, Bud Wages, Alan Bates, Otto Amann and Billy Stickel.

Attractive tie clasps adorned by the Camp Day seal were presented to the winners of the camp tennis tournaments which were conducted over the last two weeks of the season. In the Senior Camp, Kenneth Chesley of Newton was declared the champion after his two straight set triumph over John Nason on Tuesday morning, and similar honors were gained by John Nielson of Watertown who vanquished Carl Needy in two straight sets on the same day. Treasure Hunt winners were also given tie clasps as their rewards, and the following boys were the recipients: Walter Stone of Wellesley and Ted Humphrey of Wellesley in the Senior Camp; Dick Lane and Bob Mackintosh of Needham in the Junior Camp, and John Sager of Roslindale and John Beeten of Belmont.

Don Howe of Watertown was selected by the Nature Study committee as the outstanding camper in that activity, and was presented with same type reward as the above winners. The final award made was the most anxiously awaited event of the evening as the boys waited for the announcement of the most outstanding Camper in each division of Camp Day. For three nights the Counselors in secret session discussed the merits of the leading boys in each division before arriving at the names of the boys whom they wished to call the best camp representative, and their difficulty in making a quick selection was due to the unusually large number of boys who were eligible for the honor. Tremendous was the applause which greeted the announcement of the Director that the winner in the Midget Camp, Richard Smith of Waban was a true camper all season, and contested in all sports, graduating from the non-swimmer class to the canoeist class, gaining the green triangle which is the highest possible emblem award in the Midget Camp, and the Wanton Certificate for excellent work in Nature Study.

In the Senior Camp and the Junior Camp many ballots were cast before the following two boys were selected. The coveted trophy in the Senior Camp went to Walter Stone, Jr. of Wellesley, and in the Junior Camp to Gilbert Tibolt of Newtonville.

Annual Minstrel Show
Paced by a laugh-provoking group of endmen the 17th annual minstrel show of the Camp Frank A. Day was presented on last Saturday night in the Assembly Hall before three hundred campers and friends. With nine solo numbers and seven chorus songs, the musical portion of the show was more than complete, and endman jokes interspersed filled the evening with gay humor.

Outstanding in songs were the rendition of "A Tisket, A Tasket" by Alan Smith; "Ride, Tenderfoot, Ride," a solo by George Rooper; and the humorous song, "Somebody Got To Get Them Cats" as portrayed by Associate Director C. Evan Johnson. A surprise soloist was Tony Hawks of Framingham, who up to the first part of the week was a member of the chorus, but "discovered" by the show-leaders to possess a pleasing tenor voice, then proceeded to steal the spotlight with his interpretation of a favorite, "Marie," accompanied by the chorus of thirty voices.

Roger Cotting of Newton, who was expected to be the star of the night, was confined to the Camp infirmary with a throat ailment three days before the show was to be performed, and his loss was extremely serious to the directors. Fortunately, Prescott Coan was able to substitute for him, and Coan performed in unusually good form, combining with Alan Smith and Malcolm Howe of Watertown to sing and dance in upturnous fashion. Mal Howe of Watertown was another endman who received much applause. Mrs. Clyde G. Hess coached the soloists in the week preceding the show and she accompanied each of the mu

Legion Drill Team Wins State Contest At Worcester

The Newton Legion Guards, the Drill Team Unit of Newton Post, No. 48, American Legion, won the Championship Drill Team Contest held at Worcester Polytechnic Institute, Worcester, Mass., on Saturday last, August 20.

The drill team, captained by J. Joseph Ward, is now both National and State Drill Team Champions of the American Legion. The team won the American Legion National Title at the Polo Grounds, New York, in September, 1937. The Drill Team Contest held at Worcester was a very gruelling competition, for pitted against Newton was the crack Watertown Drill Team, and the former National Champion Drill Team from East Lynn, Mass. Among the spectators who witnessed the drill contest was Everett Saltonstall, prominent member of Newton Post, Mr. Saltonstall congratulated the Newton team, and expressed his admiration for the splendid exhibition of intricate maneuvering displayed by the various drill teams.

The Newton Legion Guards will put on an exhibition drill at Manson's Field, Holliston, Mass., just off Route 126, on Sunday, Aug. 28, at 2:30 p. m. This exhibition will be part of a program sponsored by the Charles F. Dufford Post, No. 47, American Legion, at their Annual Field Day. On the same program will be the Marlboro Drum and Bugle Corps, the Bessie Edwards Cadets and Bugle Corps, and the Saxonville Legion Band.

The Newton Legion Guards are now planning their trip to Los Angeles, Calif., in September, where they will defend their National Championship Title. A Citizen's Committee of prominent Newton residents is now endeavoring to raise funds to defray the expenses of this long journey across the continent. This committee is headed by Everett Saltonstall, Chairman; Charles B. Floyd, President of the Newton Board of Aldermen, Secretary, and Frank L. Richardson, Treasurer.

Confirm Derow as City Physician

Dr. Sidney Derow of Rice st., Newton Center, who was recently appointed City Physician by Mayor Childs to succeed the late Dr. Alvah Cummings, was confirmed to that position by the Board of Aldermen on Monday night. The vote was 16 in favor of confirmation and 1 against. There has been considerable criticism of the appointment in the city because of the fact that Dr. Derow has been a resident of Newton only 4 years, and a number of physicians who are either life-long residents of Newton, or who have resided here for many years were candidates for the position. Dr. Derow had served as assistant to City Physician Cummings for a few weeks before the latter's death.

Dr. Derow, who is a native of New York City, graduated from Columbia University in 1926 and Boston University medical school in 1930. He served as an interne at Mass. General Hospital and Newton Hospital and had been on the staff of the latter since he has resided in Newton. He is 31 years of age.

Newton Girls Don't Want Dental Job

The State Civil Service Commission has certified as eligible for appointment to the position of Dental Assistant in the Newton Health Department the names of Frances Palmer, Tremlett st., Dorchester; Ruth Cutler, Andrew st., Everett; and Beulah Sullivan Ridgeway st., Cambridge. The salary is $65 per month for 10 months of the year. Last year an examination for this position, restricted to Newton residents, was held and only a few Newton girls took it. Two qualified, but did not accept the position. Recently another examination was held, open to residents of any part of Massachusetts. Fifty-two took the test and twenty-three qualified. An Auburndale girl was 17th on the list.

Automobile Kills Aged Woman

Mrs. Elizabeth Springham, 83, of 132 Oak st., Newton Upper Falls, was instantly killed on last Saturday night at 8:30 on Oak st. near her home by an automobile driven by Thomas J. Sullivan, 21, of 114 Dedham st., Newton Highlands. Sullivan told the police that the aged woman stepped off the sidewalk into the path of his car and that immediately after another automobile ran over her as she lay in the street, and the other car did not stop. Witnesses of the fatality stated that they did not see any other car. Mrs. Springham's body was identified at the Newton Hospital morgue about 10 o'clock by her son, Henry Springham, with whom she resided. She was the first person to be killed by an automobile in this city in 140 days and the second this year.

Stop Trucking on Dedham Street

Last Friday the ban on heavy trucking on Dedham st., Oak Hill, became effective. The preceding afternoon Mrs. Springham's body was identified at the Newton Hospital morgue about 10 o'clock by her son, Henry Springham, with whom she resided. She was the first person to be killed by an automobile in this city in 140 days and the second this year.

Uninvited Guest at Chestnut Hill

One of the most hospitable members of the Newton Board of Aldermen is Henderson Inches of 41 Middlesex rd., Chestnut Hill. Last summer Mr. Inches was co-host with Alderman Bacon to their fellow members of the Board at Marion. Probably Mr. Inches' reputation for hospitality traveled because over the past week-end some person invited himself into the Inches home at Chestnut Hill, and placed a guest chamber there and placed a 38 calibre revolver owned by Inches under the pillow on which he laid his head, apparently for protection, as he left the weapon there. Mr. Inches and his family have been at their summer home in Wareham during the summer, so were not present to welcome or speed the parting guest. The visit was discovered by Patrolman McCormick on Sunday afternoon when he observed the rear door of the Inches home open.

Last Saturday Patrolman McCormick discovered a window forced open at the home of Ernest Skinner, 78 Beacon st., Chestnut Hill. Investigation showed that the intruder had rested in a bed at the house, and before doing so had consumed a bottle of whiskey. He also had tampered with a motion picture projector, but did not take it from the house. The Skinner home had also been entered the preceding week-end, the burglary having been discovered by Mr. Skinner when he returned to the house on Monday, August 15. Entrance had been made by breaking the glass in a door.

Second Fire At Old Ice House

Monday afternoon at 1:33 Newton firemen were again called to fight another fire at the old plant of the former Purdy Ice Co. off Beacon st., Newton Highlands. It is supposed the fire, like the fire which occurred at the place a few weeks ago, was caused by workmen who have been dissembling machinery at the place by means of acetylene torches. The flames worked into the cork insulation between partitions and the fire was difficult to extinguish.

Mayor Childs Names William E. Earle St. Dept. Head

At the meeting of the Board of Aldermen on Monday night Mayor Childs sent a communication informing the Board that he had appointed William E. Earle of 18 Maple ave., Newton as Street Commissioner to succeed the late Charles Mahoney. Since Mr. Mahoney's death several weeks ago Charles J. McCarthy, for many years a division foreman of the Street Department has been acting Street Commissioner.

Mr. Earle was born in Newton 51 years ago, the son of William T. and Louise (King) Earle. He has been a resident of the neighborhood where he was born. He graduated from Newton High School and for many years was engaged in the automobile tire business. During the World War Mr. Earle served at Camp Devens and later was commissioned a Lieutenant in the 58th Field Artillery. In 1921 he was elected a member of the Newton Board of Aldermen and served from 1922 to 1929 inclusive. In 1929 he was a candidate for Mayor against Sinclair Weeks and was supported by Mayor Childs.

Mr. Earle has been prominent in fraternal orders. He is a Past Exalted Ruler of Newton Lodge of Elks, a Past District Deputy of the Elks, and served as President of the Massachusetts Elks Club. He is also a member of Dillhouse Lodge of Masons of Newtonville, Getsemane Commandery, Knights of Templar; Newton Royal Arch Chapter, and was for several years Captain of the 1st platoon of Aleppo Temple. He is married. Mrs. Earle was formerly Edna Whitaker of Belair, Maryland. For some years Mr. Earle has been engaged as a salesman for highway construction and maintenance equipment. He is associated with the E. W. System Company.

City Asks PWA Help For N'ville Library

At the meeting of the Board of Aldermen on Monday a communication was received from Mayor Childs recommending that the Board favor a PWA application for funds towards the construction of a branch library on Walnut st., Newtonville. The project will cost $10,000 of which 45 per cent will be contributed from PWA funds if approved. The library will be located at the corner of Walnut st. and Highland ave., on the property formerly occupied by the Newton Club. A few years ago Newtonville residents organized to promote a public donation of funds to purchase the land and turn it over to the city. The sum of $30,000 was raised towards the cost of the land, which is valued at $37,000. The largest single contribution to the fund was made by John R. Prescott, clerk of the Board of Assessors, through the sale of his book, "The Story of Newton." The entire proceeds from this source amounted to $1504.

Playground Comm. Asks for $9250

The Newton Playground Commission has asked Mayor Childs to co-operate in releasing the sum of $9250 which was allocated in the annual budget last April for playground purposes. The sum of $7000 was requested for new tennis courts at the Newton High School athletic field, and $2250 for building benches for public parks. These are the WPA projects, with the city paying for materials used. So far the Board of Aldermen have refused to authorize the expenditure of money for such purposes. The Aldermen contend that other and more practical WPA projects would make better use of the money.

Heavy Thievery At Auburndale

Leroy Collins of 25 Orchard ave., Waban, reported to the Newton police last Saturday that when he visited the house at 9 Bertrand rd., Auburndale, on that day, preparatory to moving into it, he found that an oil burner had been stolen from the cellar and an electric range from the kitchen. Both were valued at about $800. Collins had been to the house the preceding day and both heater and range were there then.

Big Truck Hits Wall at Turnpike

A large trailer-truck owned by the Beacon Fast Freight of Boston and driven by Charles Eckert of Brooklyn, New York crashed into the granite wall at the overpass where Quinquin rd. passes under the Worcester turnpike at Newton Upper Falls on Tuesday morning. The big vehicle knocked a slab of granite off the wall, broke six concrete posts and about 20 feet of a fence on the opposite side of the roadway, and the rear wheels on the trailer were smashed. Eckert told the police he had to suddenly swerve the huge vehicle when the driver of an automobile deliberately cut in front of the truck.

City to Receive $121,050 for Roads

Newton will receive the sum of $121,050 as its share of the $5,000,000 of highway fund money to be distributed among the cities and towns of the state as the result of the signing of a bill for such distribution by Governor Hurley this week, ending the prolonged struggle between the Governor and the Legislature.

Under the terms of the legislation, the money may be used in one or two ways. It may be expended forthwith or later upon local highway projects, together with any federal funds which may be allocated for the purpose or it may be held until next year and used as an offset against regular appropriations for street department work. In the former instance, it is calculated to relieve, to some extent, relief in such localities as may find such a burden excessive. In the second instance, its use would offset the increase in the state tax. In this connection deficits in every city and town will occur this year due to the fact that local tax rates were based upon an estimated $8,000,000 state tax which became pegged at $17,000,000 with additional appropriations being made for state finances.

The act also provides that special projects to be entered into must have the approval of the state department of public works with the right of appeal to the state emergency finance board if such approval is withheld. Another section of the law permits the employment of persons on such projects on the basis of need and not subject to civil service regulations.

Family of 13 To Be Evicted

Raymond Costa of 120 Adams st., Nonantum has appealed to Mayor Childs and to State officials for assistance in finding a new home for himself, his wife and their eleven children. The Costa family has been living in a house owned by Nicolo Gregorio of 403 Watertown st., Nonantum, father of Mrs. Costa. On August 15 Mr. Gregorio was granted an eviction order by the Newton court. A constable has since informed the Costas that unless they obey the court order and vacate, their furniture will be taken out of the house this week. Costa, a painter by occupation, states he has been unemployed and has been unable to find another dwelling because of the size of his family.

Two Inspectors Will Keep Jobs

When the annual budget was passed last spring by the Newton Board of Aldermen it was decided that there was no need of six inspectors in the Newton Building Department and provision was made to reduce the number to four on July 1. The Board relented, however, and in June voted to retain the force of 6 until October. At the meeting of the Aldermen on Monday night the Finance Committee recommended the approval of a communication from Mayor Childs that the present number of inspectors be retained, and the Board so voted. The Mayor contended that because several new public buildings are being or shortly will be erected, six inspectors are needed.

West Newton Youth Saves Drowning Boy

James Powers of River st., West Newton, rescued Alvin Rodenhizer, 12, of 162 Lowell st., Waltham, from drowning in the Charles River at the Forest Grove bathing beach in Waltham on Monday afternoon. The boy had recently learned to swim, got into deep water about 20 feet from the shore and sank to the muddy bottom. Young Powers dived and brought the boy to the surface, where a lifeguard took Rodenhizer to the shore. The boy had been under water about 3 minutes and was in a critical condition. He has since been confined to the Waltham Hospital. Firemen of Ladder 1 assisted in resuscitating the boy at the scene when they rushed an inhalator to the beach in response to a call from the Metropolitan police.

Italian Voters For Saltonstall

On the evening of August 25th at Columbus Hall, the Italian voters of Newton organized a branch of the Italo-American Voters' League of Massachusetts which is an organization principally to promote the election of Leverett Saltonstall as Governor of Mass. The meeting was presided over by John Finelli, a Newton attorney, who is a member of the executive committee of the League of Massachusetts. After giving a brief talk about the candidate, Leverett Saltonstall, he explained the purpose of the League and stated that plans were under way and that before September 11th there will be 92 branch organizations of the League in different cities and towns throughout Massachusetts. The work of this League is to procure pledges for Saltonstall from Italian voters who would pledge themselves to vote at the primaries and finally at the election; to stimulate registration and procure workers for the election day.

Aldermen Approve School Site Near Boyd Pk. Newton

At the meeting of the Board of Aldermen on Monday night it was voted to approve an offer of a PWA grant of $105,750 toward the cost of a new school which will be built at the corner of Pearl and Gardner sts., Newton. The Aldermen also voted to authorize a bond issue of $141,000 to finance the city's share of the cost of erecting the school building and for payments on several parcels of property which will be taken for the school site. It is estimated that the damages to be awarded for the seizure of these properties will total $13,700, and the building will cost about $235,000.

The site of the new school extends about 150 feet on Pearl st. and 110 feet on Gardner st. and adjoins Boyd Park playground. The properties to be taken include a small, frame building at 133 Pearl st., owned and occupied by Patrick Murphy as a store; the residence of Michael Eustis at 191 Pearl st., and three small dwellings at 109, 111 and 113 Gardner st. owned by Attilio Prola, Domenico Bianchi and Mary MacKenzie. A small parcel of land owned by Mary Grace and abutting Boyd Park will also be taken.

The school will be of Colonial design and of brick construction. It will be two stories high and on the side nearer Boyd Park will have a basement which will be above the level of the playground there. The building will contain seven classrooms, a kindergarten, two play rooms and a small assembly hall in addition to a teacher's room, principal's office and a physician's room. It is expected that the buildings now on the site will be removed within the next three months and that specifications will then have been prepared for bids.

The architect selected for the new school by Mayor Childs is Maurice B. Biscoe of 595 Boylston st., Newton Centre, who is a member of the firm of Andrews, Jones, Biscoe & Whitmore with offices at 50 Congress st., Boston. Mr. Biscoe has been a resident of Newton for about 12 years. He has started to prepare plans for the proposed structure. The new school will replace two small school buildings, the Lincoln School at the corner of Thornton and Pearl sts., and the Eliot School on Pearl st., near Watertown st. The Lincoln School was built in 1854, the Eliot in 1884.

Health Officials Prosecuting

Inspector Henry Mossman of the State Division of Foods and Drugs and Inspector Irving House of the Newton Health Department have been active the past week in enforcing sanitary requirements in this city at bakeries and other food providers. They inspected 16 bakeries in the Newtons and found sanitary conditions at four unsatisfactory. Three of the places were warned to correct conditions and the owner of the fourth was ordered into the State House for an interview with Herman Lythgoe, head of the Foods Division of the State Health Department. As a result Inspector Mossman obtained a complaint against Robert Buttiner, owner of a bakery at 293 Washington st., Newton. He will appear in the Newton court on Friday.

Inspector House obtained a complaint against Raymond Miller, owner of the Nonantum Dry Cleaners at 10 Hawthorn st., Nonantum. Miller appeared before the Board of Health a few weeks ago and was warned to stop having cleansing and other fluids from his place drain onto the Hawthorn street playground. He failed to obey the warning.

Shaw's Dog Bites Another Person

John McLaughlin of 76 Langley rd., Jamaica Plain, was bitten on the right arm by a Great Dane dog owned by Paul A. Shaw of 600 Beacon st., Newton Centre. According to the report given the police the boy had entered the Shaw property through a gate to look at some roses. He was treated by a physician. Shaw was ordered to restrain the animal and Dr. Arthur Boutelle, city veterinarian, was notified to keep the dog under observation. Some weeks ago Shaw appeared in the Newton Court on complaint of a neighbor charged with violating an order from the chief of police to restrain his three Great Dane dogs but was found not guilty when he told the court that he had built a fence around his estate at considerable expense to keep the dogs within his property.

Two more victims were added on Tuesday of this week to the large number who have been bitten by dogs in this city the past several months. A dog owned by Detlaw Snyder of 102 Webster Park, Auburndale, bit Winslow Tisdell, 4, of 6 Rowe st., Auburndale, on Tuesday. A dog owned by Alfred J. Jackson, 15 Jackson st., Newton Centre, bit Alexander Murray of Heath st., Brookline. Both dogs were ordered restrained.

Francis P. Donovan of 97 Washington st., Newton, was also notified on Monday by the police to restrain his dog which had bitten Richard Wood of 66 Gramere st. Mrs. Kate Thornton of 43 Clinton st., Newton, has been notified by the police to restrain her dog which had bitten a neighbor. Elizabeth Delaney of 53 Clinton st. was the complainant.

DESERVING OF SUPPORT

The Newton Post 48, of The American Legion has for some years been recognized as one of the leading veterans' organizations, not only in Massachusetts but throughout the United States. In more recent years state and national honors have been conferred upon units of the post. It is generally known that the Newton Post Drill Team are national champions, having won this honor at the New York national convention last summer after having been close to top honors for several previous years. The team also is the state champion unit.

At the State convention in Worcester last week Newton Post was awarded two first prizes. The Claudius Pendell trophy as the outstanding Legion Post in the State in the field of community service. Newton Post members made voluntary donations of blood where transfusion was necessary in 59 cases where the patient was unable to pay for such service. The first prize for the post sponsoring the best drill team in the state was also awarded to Newton Post.

Next month the 1938 annual national convention will be held in Los Angeles and the Newton Post will head the entire Legion parade. The drill team, known as the Newton Legion Guards, will escort the National Commander and the Colors. In an endeavor to help defray the cost of the journey of the Legion Guards to Los Angeles in order that they may defend their national title a citizens committee has been organized to raise funds. This committee, comprised of well-known citizens has undertaken a worthy task. Their efforts should meet with a ready response upon the part of the public. Newton Post has brought nation-wide and creditable prominence to its city. We know that Newton will support them in recognition of their service to their city.

ARE YOU TAX CONSCIOUS?

In these days of extravagant governmental spending almost everyone is tax conscious. But there are many who are not as fully conscious of the taxes they pay as perhaps they should be. And, too, many persons are not conscious of the devastating results of excessive taxation.

Fundamentally taxation is for the purpose of conducting government. As the population grows governmental functions grow. And, as lack of purchasing power falls, business drops off and more public relief is necessary. During the past eight years of depression it has become evident that social security and relief are governmental functions which must be maintained. To what extent, at what cost, and under what conditions, constitute the major problems which furnish us with political issues.

Chief among the political issues is that of the spending of public funds. When public funds are not available it is customary to borrow against the expected income of the future. To what extent can such borrowing be done? No one knows, although many estimates are given, at what point the national credit will be stretched to the point where confidence in its future will be destroyed. Continual and extravagant spending must, of necessity, result in increased taxation. And when taxation becomes destructive the danger point is at hand. The safer way is to encourage business and industry so that more persons can be privately employed, greater purchasing power be stimulated, and taxation will become less burdensome.

There is but one remedy. That remedy is to elect to public office those persons who are tax conscious. With November elections in the offing it is not too early to begin to study any candidate's attitude on questions of this nature.

LET'S START ANEW

Newton's record of 140 days without a fatal accident in which an automobile was concerned was broken last Saturday with the accident in Newton Upper Falls which resulted fatally to an aged woman pedestrian. Efforts were redoubled this week to continue the promotion of safety upon Newton streets. The campaign of the past few weeks has undoubtedly been of immeasurable success and although we must start anew there is nothing to prevent exceeding the 140 day mark.

The promotion of safety is largely a campaign of education. Motorists are becoming educated to the fact that the speed of their vehicle must be kept down to meet the conditions of traffic. Many pedestrians are becoming educated as to the necessity of caution. It is more difficult to educate the pedestrian than it is the driver because the driver knows that he has a vehicle of destruction in his care unless he drives properly. The pedestrian usually feels that he can avoid being hit. But as age advances our senses and reactions become less acute and less spontaneous. The elderly pedestrian must use extreme caution. The driver, too, must be made aware that an aged person or an unthinking child may step in front of his car with greater danger than a more active and quicker thinking person. It is obviously a situation for more patient pedestrians and more merciful motorists.

Politicallight

By THE EDITOR

Some very interesting stories have been told around various candidates for public office during the present campaign. One of the most amusing and entertaining is that regarding Ex-Governor James M. Curley who is said to have been passing by 11 Beacon st. where Richard Whitcomb, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, recently opened a large and pretentious campaign headquarters. It is said that Mr. Curley, his attention having been attracted to the offices by the large blue and white signs painted on the windows stepped inside. Speaking in a friendly manner to some of those who were present working in behalf of Mr. Whitcomb the Ex-Governor expressed his interest in the attractiveness of the offices. He admonished them to take good care of the desks and other furnishings and concluded by saying that he would be taking them over as his headquarters after the primaries.

Another tidbit centering around the former Governor is his alleged remarks at some of his rallies relative to his suit against a prominent Boston newspaper. He declared that it is his intention upon winning the suit for $500,000 to turn half of the sum over to charity and will use the remainder to "give Saltonstall the worst political defeat he ever suffered."

Meanwhile, although the Republican campaign is becoming more active in preparation for the final wind-up during the last two weeks, the Democratic contest for the gubernatorial nomination is attracting the greatest attention of the politically minded. At the city writing Governor Hurley, insofar as the city of Boston is concerned, is rated third being led by both Curley and Lieutenant Governor Kelly. There are some who contend that the trial of Frederick H. Graves, set for about the middle of September, may have some bearing on the political fortunes of Mr. Curley on primary day. In radio broadcasts Curley has claimed that his defeat for the United States Senate and Mayor of Boston were due largely to the "whispering campaign" carried on against him based on the charges of the same Graves. Should Curley receive sympathy in the form of a larger vote from Boston residents it would, in all probability, react against Mr. Kelly. In this event it is pointed out that Mr. Hurley may run second in the city of Boston.

All of the Democratic candidates are appealing to the voters on the basis that the nomination of another would bring about a defeat of the party on election day in November. It has been quite a few years since the Democratic party has had such a bitter struggle within its ranks. All of which gives added hopes to the Republicans in their attempt to defeat the major offices in state government. Two years ago the G. O. P. regained the State Treasuryship to add to its hold on the Secretary of State's office. And from all parts of the state come evidences of excellent prospects of regaining the governorship, and the lieutenant governorship. It is generally conceded that the Democrats will retain the office of attorney general and probably that of state auditor, although as we stated two weeks ago, there is a possibility that Russell Wood may be successful in unseating Auditor Thomas H. Buckley.

In connection with the attorney generalship there are Republicans who contend that the nomination of Clarence Barnes, almost a virtual certainty, may handicap the entire ticket to some extent. Although their argument would probably have little appeal to Newton Republicans the fact that Mr. Barnes, an attorney, has been active as counsel for utility interests will have some effect upon those who listen to the blarney of Mr. Kelly, Mr. Sullivan (candidate for the Democratic nomination as lieutenant governor) and others.

Indicative of the feeling which gives Republicans assurance of greater success than at any time in the past eight years are such incidents as the one that follows and which was told to us by a friend. Two well-dressed men, from their conversation almost certainly customary Democratic voters, were overheard casually discussing political questions in the public room of a restaurant. Without undue criticism of any Democratic candidate they were talking of Governor Hurley, Mr. Curley and others. The highlight of their conversation came, however, when Saltonstall's name was brought up. The gist of their talk pertained to his ability as a prospective governor and to his probable chances of being elected. When the topic came that their conversation was beyond hearing it seemed apparent that they were quite seriously considering casting their ballot for the former Speaker of the House. This is but one of many incidents that are happening which may indicate the trend of many Democrats who are disgusted with Hurley and who have forsaken Curley.

Reports from Springfield are that Saltonstall will carry the city over Whitcomb, a resident of that city. It is pointed out that Whitcomb, although having worked and lived in Springfield is not much better known to the voting public than he is in the eastern part of the State. However, observers in that section of the State insist that he will in all probability have a slight margin over Saltonstall in most of the western counties, perhaps as great as 3 to 2 but that as the scene comes eastward the Whitcomb strength wanes. When it is noted that but twenty-seven percent of the vote in Massachusetts is west of Worcester there does not seem to be much hope of the Whitcomb candidacy making any great inroads on the Saltonstall strength.

With this situation existing it is only natural that Republican interest is becoming centered upon the lieutenant governorship campaign. Mayor Dewey Archambault of Lowell, whose name will be first on the ballot in this contest is largely a so-called "favorite son." His campaign is probably making some progress as he is a forceful speaker and makes a good impression upon his audiences. J. Watson Flett of Belmont is another favorite son. He has shown exceptional ability as a town official and through his work has considerable support from other members of the Selectman's Association throughout the state. Robert G. Wilson, Jr., of Boston is the third favorite son in the field although like Archambault and Flett he has some support scattered in other places. The race seems to be between the remaining three candidates: Horace T. Cahill, Charles F. Howard and Kenneth D. Johnson.

Two months ago it was apparent that Mr. Howard was running a front race but at the present time it is practically nip and tuck between all three with the possibility that Johnson has a slight advantage. However, the Cahill campaign, handicapped by the prolonged session of the legislature has not really begun to function with much efficiency and it is common knowledge that the Speaker of the House will depend upon a "fast finish" to bring him through. His nomination, of course, is far from a certainty, but it unquestionably will benefit from the Governor's submission to the Republican controlled legislature. There is no person that deny that in this respect much of the credit goes to the leadership of Speaker Cahill. It is no easy task to listen to the views of one hundred and forty Representatives, most of whom have local political interests to which they have to give individual attention, and to get such a group together and to keep them together, despite opposing political efforts, when the issue is falsely belabored by an employment relief and the like. With no desire to be partisan towards Mr. Cahill's candidacy, it should be said that in the past eight years there has been no better leadership in the Legislature than during the two years Mr. Cahill has presided. There was loyalty to Speaker Saltonstall during the Ely and Curley administrations. And it is no reflection upon Saltonstall that his loyalty was more personal than practical. In the Curley administration this was apparent when slight Republican majority yielded to practical political pressure. The loyalty to Cahill in the past session was one of principle which, continually held up by the Speaker, wouldn't yield despite attempted practical pressure. We are going to suggest to our readers that it will be interesting to follow the developments in this contest during the next three weeks of the campaign.

Can former Judge Johnson retain his present advantage is another question which is being asked. And here again only the next three weeks can tell the story. Mr. Howard has been doing a diligent amount of campaign work. He started early, is covering the ground quite thoroughly, and his margin of two months ago considerably. If not altogether cut down, the question to be answered as to his chances depend upon the fruits of his previous labors. With but three weeks remaining can his supporters not only hold what they have but can they add new strength to offset that which they may lose.

Another intense and probably a more bitter struggle is on in the Northern district where Robert Bradford is striving to obtain the nomination for District Attorney from Warren L. Bishop. Mr. Bishop, the present D.A., is claiming that the Republican strength in Middlesex County is largely due to his personal following and that unless he is renominated the County will definitely be lost to the Republican party. On the other hand it is interesting to note that many Republican leaders in many of the cities and towns in the district, are not only endorsing Bradford but they are practically going to almost any length in their efforts to oust Bishop. They claim that Mr. Bishop, once a Democrat, has shown his favor for Democratic assistants, that his office is inefficient, and that he is no longer an asset nor a desirability of the Republican county. Generally speaking it is seldom that prominent Republicans have gone as far in criticizing anyone holding political office as a Republican. The last instant where this occurred, we believe, is with State Auditor Alonzo B. Cook.

Incidentally Newton residents have commented to us on the fact that Mayor Childs was toastmaster at a recent banquet for Mr. Bishop. Subsequently Mr. Childs is said to have informed Bradford supporters that he would take no active part in the contest. Former District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell has publicly stated his criticism of Mr. Bishop. He has also criticized the latter's appointment of an assistant with a name quite similar to that of the former D. A. and intimated that was attempted political strategy. Not only is this contest one of the bitterest it is also replete with "dynamite," politically speaking.

Another county contest which Newton people will hear more about during the next few weeks is for the County Commissioner post. Four years ago, during the Democratic sweep, the Democrats elected a County Commissioner in Middlesex County for the first time in history in the person of Thomas B. Brennan of Medford whose term expired in January. Mr. Brennan defeated Victor Jewett of Lowell who has since died. This year, for the Republican nomination, there are several candidates of whom the two best known are probably Senator Thomas B. Braden of Lowell and former Senator Charles C. Warren of Arlington. One of the many angles to this contest is that residents of the

Two thousand dollars is a pretty good price to pay for about 300 square feet of land, but when it brings the railroad train so near as to shake the very foundations of one's house, perhaps it is not so very unreasonable.

Dr. Field started on Tuesday for Bethlehem, New Hampshire. He visited the dentist who pulled so hard that the doctor needs absolute quiet and rest. He says he will soon have some teeth of his own by right of purchase.

H. M. Burt of the GRAPHIC went to the Summit House at Mount Washington on Monday for the first time since he was injured by the lightning stroke. He is slowly recovering from its effects.

Harry Butler while loading ice at Howard Brothers house at their pond on Watertown st. last Thursday afternoon received a severe cut on his right leg when an ice hook slipped. He was treated by Dr. Hunt of Newtonville and taken to his home in a hack.

Miss Dolly Chamberlain of Walnut pl., Newtonville, who is 91 years of age, has just returned from her first visit to Plymouth and greatly enjoyed the trip.

"While the bicycle is very generally used by boys and young men in this country we are far behind Western Europe and especially England in the use of the tricycle. Over the other side women make extensive use of the three-wheel vehicle. Tricycling is said to be particularly valuable to women. It supports the weight of the body and there is little jolting while the muscles exercised are those which are apt to be neglected in the ordinary movements of the gentle sex. Long journeys are undertaken in England and on the continent on tricycles. It supplies the place of, and is far cheaper than a horse and wagon. The Royal family of England have set the fashion of using the tricycle. The Queen, Princess of Wales and Princess Mary Teck have made Christmas presents of these vehicles to their younger relatives."

The rain and wind of Tuesday night tore the names of the candidates from the big flag raised by the Republican City Committee at Centre st., Newton, and the flag has been taken down for repairs.

One of the teams used by William Mague in collecting offal for the city was driven between the fence and the gate at the Washington st. railroad crossing on Monday noon to get into Brook st. One of the wheels caught between the plank and the rail. Members of Engine Company 1 and Patrolman Henthorn assisted in extricating the wagon. The 12:38 inward train to Boston was delayed.

The new rubber company which has northern part of the county contend that they are entitled to one of the three positions. On the other hand the majority of the county vote is centered in suburban Boston and many feel that a well-known candidate from the southern section of the county has a better opportunity of winning the nomination as well as a better opportunity of taking the election. The two other County Commissioners whose terms do not expire until 1941 are Walter C. Wardwell of Cambridge and Nathaniel I. Bowditch of Framingham.

Powers' Paragraphs

In one of his front-page stories in the BOSTON GLOBE last week John Barry described a recent hot night at Belmont where he resides, and referred to the rivetting of the cicadas. During the hot spell of the past few weeks we frequently observed that cicadas, like the mosquitoes, appeared to be unusually numerous this summer and the noise they made was in proportion. As we drove by any place where a cicada chorus was especially loud, we wondered what those sensitive persons who are greatly disturbed by the croaking of a lone bullfrog would do if they had to listen all night long to the monotonous croaking of a big tribe of cicadas? Most persons rather like to hear the chirping of crickets. The Japanese, in fact, catch and sell crickets to customers who keep them in tiny cages. But there are few who obtain pleasure from listening to the racket made by an orchestra of vigorous cicadas.

Frank Hawks, one of the greatest aviators this country has produced, a veritable daredevil, met the end that we thought he would meet. Hawks specially was flying at terrific speed in small planes which he operated with uncanny skill. But, one can't tempt fate too often, especially in airplanes. The millions who admired the expertness and courage of Hawks regret his tragic end.

It is a preposterous proposal that was made by Mayor Lyons of Cambridge and which met the approval of Governor Hurley, also a resident of that city. In order to give employment to a large number of men in Cambridge and save that city from the burden of supporting many of its residents, Mayor Lyons would have a subway built along Massachusetts ave., there, the cost to be over $5,000,000 and Cambridge to pay none of it. He planned to have about half of the cost donated by the Federal government and the balance paid by the Boston Elevated Railway Company through an annual rental of $122,000. It is common knowledge that the Elevated has been "in the red" for many years and its huge deficits had to be paid by taxpayers of communities which the Boston Elevated serves. Newton is one of the communities affected and only a small percentage of its citizens use the "Elevated" regularly, or at all. Boston, which is in dire financial straits, would have to pay most of the big, yearly rental which Mayor Lyons of Cambridge and Governor Hurley of that city would foist on neighboring cities and towns in a selfish attempt to impose the welfare burden of that place on other communities which have troubles of their own. And the interesting thing is—that for some years past electric street cars in Cambridge have been largely displaced by busses. Boston built an unnecessary, extremely expensive tunnel under the harbor at the instigation of politicians, some of whom benefited financially through real estate manipulation, and now wants the Metropolitan District to pay for it. Governor Hurley did not add to his prestige by urging such a ridiculous scheme.

Persons who believe in the doctrine of Democracy established by the founders of this country cannot consistently condone either Fascism or Communism. We agree, however, with the sentiments expressed by Congressman Joseph Casey of Clinton who told the delegates at the recent convention of the American Legion at Worcester that too much attention is being given to Communist activities in this country with the resultant great increase in publicity, which really helps rather than hinders the cause of Communism. Some of those who are engaged in bailing the "Reds" are sincere, honest, well-meaning persons. Communism is a serious threat to the U. S. A., and that the movement should be militantly combatted. Others who are attacking the real or alleged "Red menace," are professional or pseudo patriots. If fraternal and veteran organizations want to do this country a real service, let them devote part of the time they give to attacking Communism to a campaign for the purpose of purging this nation from vagabond, grafting men and women who hold public office. Many of this type are among those most assiduous in frothing against the menace of radicalism. This country is really threatened more by the cancer of corrupt politics than it is by "the Reds," and we refer to State and local political bodies as well as national. And when we observe grafting politicians attacking communism, we believe they are throwing a smoke screen to conceal their own sordid activities.

For the past 7 or 8 years a large number of men have been employed at Edmonds Park in the former Cabot Woods section at Newton on ERA and WPA projects. The amount of money received in Federal grants to keep the men employed at this place has reached into hundreds of thousands of dollars, and the appropriations made by the City of Newton for materials in connection with the projects at Edmonds Park have totaled many thousands of dollars. Now another "project" is being commenced.

Rotary Club

"After my recent trip to the Kiwanis convention in San Francisco, I have greater respect than ever for those who developed the West," said James P. Gallagher, Newton lawyer and Clerk of the Newton District Court, in his address to the Rotarians at last Monday's luncheon meeting at the Bradburn Club in West Newton. "But," he added, "after seeing large stretches of the western country, I love New England all the more." Mr. Gallagher, who is now an international director of Kiwanis, may, according to his friend, Mayor Childs, who introduced him on Monday, possibly be a candidate for the presidency of the organization when it meets next in Boston in 1939.

The speaker told of the interesting time the Kiwanians had in San Francisco and of the impression which both the Rotarians and Kiwanians made coming as their conventions did so close together. He emphasized especially the three important resolutions passed by the Kiwanians, the first being for the deportation of most aliens who have not become citizens after six years of residence in this country. The second places Kiwanis on record for strong action in enforcing the narcotic law, and the third is the extension of Kiwanis clubs to all English speaking countries, thus widening their influence beyond the United States and Canada.

Mr. Gallagher lamented the lack of knowledge in the East concerning the tourist trains that offer reduced fares, a third less than the regular Pullmans, affording a very comfortable trip to the West Coast. Had these trains been advertised, many more would have availed themselves of the journey to the conventions.

"Jim" Gallagher is always a welcome visitor to the Newton Rotary Club. He has probably done more than any one else to link the two clubs more closely together.

James Melcher presided at this meeting, welcoming the half-dozen guests from other clubs. The next meeting will again be in charge of Mayor Childs with speaker not yet announced. There will be no meeting on Labor Day but in place of it, the Newton men are guests of the Waltham Club on Wednesday, Sept. 7.

At the completion of the third course in Life-Saving and Water Safety, held at Crystal Lake under the auspices of the Newton Chapter of the American Red Cross, the following boys successfully met the requirements: Theodore Bolter, John Brady, Joseph Brady, Harry Lane, Fred Wood, Joseph Maloney, John Walsh, Jack Walsh, Philip Walsh, Leo Watters, George Watters and William Maloney.

The fourth and final course will start on Monday, August 29th, at 10:30 a. m., and will continue until September 10th. This is the last opportunity for boys interested in learning the latest method of life-saving and water safety, to receive this training. The only requirements for those entering the course are an average ability to swim and determination to see a worthwhile piece of work done as well as possible.

UNION SERVICES

The season of union services of the seven co-operating churches of West Newton, Newtonville, and Auburndale is drawing to a close with only two more to be held. Rev. Lynn J. Radcliffe, summer preacher, will take for his subject for next Sunday at 11 a. m. at the West Newton Unitarian Church, "Trail Climbing." There is good music by a mixed quartet. Dr. Radcliffe has a gift for stating his topic in brief and picturesque words which arouse interest, as his last Sunday's subject, "Words with Wings," indicate. He closed last Sunday's sermon with an original and eloquent picture of the power of the spoken word which thrilled his audience.

Rich Wins City
Tennis Singles Title

In a most interesting and exciting 5-set match, which was held at the Burr Playground on Sunday afternoon, Paul Rich defeated Ernest Johnson in the final of the Men's tennis singles, 6-1, 2-6, 1-6, 6-3 and 6-1, to win the title, and thus gain the right to represent this city at Hartford, Conn., in the New England Public Parks Championship.

The match was featured by the brilliant playing of each player. Johnson's steadiness was a most potent factor in his winning so many games. His flawless court cover, coupled with his brilliant base-line playing, and seemingly impossible gets at the net were instrumental in his taking so many games.

Leading 2 sets to 1, and having Rich 3 love in the fourth set, it seemed at the time Johnson would go on to victory—but Rich rallied to make it 3 all, and then went on to capture it at 6-3.

In the final set experience counted, and Rich took it after many gruelling rallies in the hot sun. His ability to keep the ball in play, and away from the base line in this set, was the deciding factor in his ultimately gaining the victory over a real sportsman, a young man of 16, from whom much will be heard in the future in the realm of tennis.

Waban Youth
Breaks Record

Clinton E. Ferguson, 19, of Waban who has won fame the past few years in winning outboard motor-boat races, established new world records in the class boats he operates at the National Sweepstakes held last Saturday and Sunday at Red Bank, New Jersey. On Saturday young Ferguson won a contest and made a mark of 53.4 miles per hour over the course. On Sunday he attained a speed at the rate of 61.23 miles per hour, which is some going for a small boat with an outboard motor. George Schrafft of Centre st., Newton was also a participant in the races at Red Bank.

WALCH OVERTAKES DeSTEPHANO
IN ARCHERY COMPETITION

The seventh week of archery at the Newton Centre playground saw two days of exciting competition in tournaments.

The first of these took place on Friday, August 19, with four children competing in a Junior American Round. The reason for this Friday shoot was the anticipated absence of Billy DeStephano and Margaret Davenport on Saturday, the regular tournament day. From the beginning of the shoot it was apparent that first place would be a toss-up between Billy DeStephano and Dunsmore Walch, for both were in top form. At the end of the 40 yard distance shooting the score was tied, and each went to the 30 yard line determined to win, but just a little worried. Dunsmore gradually gathered a few extra points, and the total scores read 84-438 to 80-430. In his favor, bettering Billy's record of last week by seven points.

Dunsmore is the second archer in the daily archery classes at the playground to break the 400 mark and also the second to merit a gold medal, in the Fall he is expected to capture Junior honors as a member of the Newton Archers Club.

On Friday, also, Margaret Davenport made the fine score of 67-312, and LeVinka Stickney, 51-235. Sixteen children participated in the regular Saturday morning tournaments. Dunsmore was present again and took first place in the Junior American Round with 78-372. The other two prize-winners, placing second and third respectively, were Leonard White with 71-319, and Helen Weisse with 53-279.

The remaining contestants scored as follows:

Winifred Smith	56-238
LeVinka Stickney	45-185
Sadie MacIsaac	46-180
Letitia Doten	39-155
Alden Fallows	34-142
Eleanor Leahy	29-117
Josephine MacIsaac	28-106

In the shoot of 30 arrows at 30 yards for the younger children, Charles Sia scored highest with 22-88. The remaining in order were:

Norman Stickney	14-76
Roderick Clifford	11-41
Carol Walsh	8-26
Richard Eastman	4-12
Daniel McGrath	5-11

In the Newton court on Saturday she was given a 30-day suspended sentence to Billerica prison. Patrolmen Leehan and McKenna testified that when they arrived at the scene a large crowd had collected and was witnessing a stone throwing battle between the woman and two Newton Highlands men who were arrested for drunkenness. Patrolman McKenna stated that the Brown woman was yelling at the men and aggravating them.

"Miraculous Shower" Is Odd Fall From the Sky

People regard as mysterious, or semi-miraculous, various showers of objects which appear to fall from the sky, says a writer in the Indianapolis News. A so-called sulphur shower, occurring in the West, was a shower of pollen blown from pine trees. Showers of fishes usually are caused by waterspouts whose force causes quantities of fish and other aquatic animals to be drawn aloft. Showers of rats and mice have been reported. A shower of birds is said to have occurred in Baton Rouge, La., in 1896. The birds probably were driven inland by a coast storm and killed by a sudden fall in temperature. On the morning of July 29, 1875, a quantity of hay fell from the sky near Monks-town, near Dublin, Ireland, over an area of more than a mile in diameter, lasting five minutes. So-called rains of blood in southern Europe probably were rain reddened by dust blown across the Mediterranean from the Sahara desert.

In showers of so-called ink, the deposit consists of rain blackened with smoke or soot, while a mixture of rain and chalky white earth results in a shower of "milk." The showers of "honey" recorded in old chronicles probably were honey-dew ejected by swarms of aphids, scale insects or leafhoppers. The manna of the Bible thus was produced by scale insects which exude from their bodies a clear juice that falls to the ground in drops which harden into sugary grains, and which Arabs gather for use as food and medicine. In the case of some alleged showers of paper, the material has been found to be the crusts of dried algae. The "flesh" reputed to fall from aloft probably is the jelly-like material sometimes formed by colonies of bacteria on the surface of water.

Swing Days Big Events to Children of Koreans

Korean children have many games that are different from ours but little girls in Korea enjoy Swing day best of all special things to do. Swing day comes every year and is a holiday for children, notes a writer in the Washington Star.

Swing day originated from a Korean legend that has been handed down from long ago generations.

In the olden times there was a charming young princess who loved a prince of her own country. But her father, the emperor, married her off to a wealthy suitor from a far land who took her away to live there with him. Her husband knew she was homesick for her native land, and on a high hill outside the palace he put up a swing for her.

Once a year the princess was allowed to swing there all day. She would swing as high as possible and just catch a glimpse of her native land from the air. All year she would wait for this one day to think of her own country.

Korean girls honor the memory of the Swing Princess one day a year. Swings are erected on very long ropes that will fly quite high, on the hilltops. The girls line up and take turns at swinging. Swing day is celebrated this way all over Korea and the homesick little princess is the adopted patron of all Korean girls on that day.

"Switzerland of America"

The sobriquet, "Switzerland of America," is applied to several of the states, Colorado, for one, because of its magnificent natural beauty. Maine is another state called the Switzerland of America. Its mountainous scenery and abundant snowfalls doubtless gave rise to this nickname. It is also applied to New Hampshire, New Jersey and West Virginia. It is applied to New Hampshire in recognition of that state's beautiful mountain scenery; to New Jersey because of its mountain scenery in the northwestern part of the state, occasioned by the Kittatinny range of mountains and by the ranges of the Watchung, Sourland and the Pickle mountains of the southeast; and to West Virginia from the picturesqueness of the mountain scenery.

Memory Stimulated by Music

Many forms of memory are stimulated by music, according to a writer in Pearson's London Weekly. A certain air may call up a scene we thought we had forgotten. Or it may bring some person vividly to our mind. Certain strains of music have been known to awaken memory in people who were suffering from mental trouble. In the East there are healers who work with sound while using massage to stimulate the nerves. They know that everything has its rate of vibration, and if they can find the patient's vibratory response they can cure his nerves.

Plenty of Peat

Peat—really undeveloped coal—is formed by decaying vegetable matter and is found in almost all swamps. In Ireland, it's composed of moss; in India, rice; in the United States, almost any plant. Although, when dried, peat gives almost as much heat as soft coal and is practically smokeless, it is not used widely in this country as fuel. It takes too long to dry. But if America's coal is ever exhausted, there will be plenty of peat to take its place. Under the Atlantic coast lie about 10,000,000,000 tons.

Red or Black Hair Does Not Mark Man's Ability

Hair doesn't seem to afford any index to genius or character. It is true that among the important personages history has turned up there have been a good many red-heads, but the number does not appear to be greater, proportionately, than the number of red-haired persons among the less important, declares a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

John Bunyan had red hair, for one. And Peter the Great was red, and Swinburne's hair was red. James Russell Lowell's hair is described as having been ruddy or auburn, and Andrew Jackson's was "reddish sandy." Savanarola had reddish eyelashes, according to accounts of him, while Thomas Hobbes had reddish whiskers. The hair of U. S. Grant was a reddish brown, and that of William the Silent was auburn. And Calvin Coolidge's hair was not far from red when he was a young man.

To show that red-haired persons have no monopoly of talent, here are the names of a few outstanding figures whose hair was black: Matthew Arnold, Samuel Taylor Coleridge, Stephen A. Douglas, William Hazlitt, Charles Lamb, John Marshall, Daniel Webster, John Greenleaf Whittier, John Paul Jones, Sir Arthur Sullivan.

Among those whose hair was classified as "dark" were Browning, Alexandre Dumas, Robert Louis Stevenson, Rossetti, and Mendelssohn. William Cullen Bryant's, Defoe's, Cromwell's, Longfellow's and Faragut's heads were brown. And the downright blondes have included (among many others) Keats and Thackeray.

Human Body Only Machine
That Can Do Own Repairs

Your body is the most marvelous piece of mechanism on earth. It is the only machine capable of doing its own repairs. Not only does the body repair itself, but it also manufactures the various materials necessary for repair.

Can you imagine a broken brick mending itself without the aid of human hands? Yet that is what your body does when something goes wrong. All you have to do is to give it the necessary fuel—food and air—and your body will give you long and perfect service, observes a writer in Pearson's London Weekly.

As you know, the object of breathing fresh air is to maintain life. The oxygen we breathe mingles with the red corpuscles of the blood, purifies it, promotes energy, and builds up a natural resistance to germ infection.

When your body is not getting enough oxygen nature gives you a warning. Do you know what that warning is? A yawn!

You do not yawn because you are sleepy or bored. If you were living in the open air you would go to sleep without yawning. And you become bored with company because the room is stuffy, and so you yawn. The yawn is simply an SOS call from the body for more oxygen, and it is a subconscious call.

Difference Between Ale, Beer

Ale is a kind of beer. All ale is beer, but all beer is not ale. Originally the terms were synonymous. Now beer is a general name for all malt liquors, while ale is applied specifically to the paler kinds, the malt of which has not been roasted or burnt. Ale differs from ordinary beer in having a lighter color, a smaller proportion of hops and a higher alcoholic content. It is generally sweeter than beer because it contains more or less unfermented saccharine matter. The application of "ale" and "beer" varies considerably in different countries and localities. Before the adoption of prohibition, American ale was a malt liquor made by "top fermentation," in which the newly formed yeast went to the top and was removed.

How Gold Is Refined

Placer gold deposits are worked by washing the gravel to remove the greater part of the lighter barren rock, followed by treatment of the concentrate by the cyanide process. Sodium cyanide is used to dissolve the gold; the clear solution is drawn off into another vessel where the gold is precipitated by adding zinc. In the chlorination process, the gold-bearing quartz is treated with chlorine, producing gold chloride which dissolves. From the clear solution the gold is precipitated by adding ferrous sulphate solution. The gold bullion obtained by either process contains traces of silver, copper, iron and other metals. These are separated by treatment with sulphuric acid and by an electrolytic process.

Blood in Four Categories

The blood of human beings is typed in four different categories generally represented by the first four Roman numerals. Experimentation in blood transfusion years ago brought out that bloods of different species of animals were incompatible and that a similar incompatibility existed in all races of men between bloods of different individuals. Of the four main types of blood, often referred to as blood groups, so far as is definitely known, no one type is any better than another, says the United States Public Health Service.

Constitution and By-Laws

A constitution is defined as the organic law of any organized body or association of persons. A by-law is defined as a rule or law adopted by an association, corporation or the like, for its government in the conduct of its own affairs, subordinate to its constitution or charter. Robert's Rules of Order says that an incorporated society frequently has no constitution, the charter taking its place, and many others prefer to combine under one head the rules that are more commonly placed under the separate heads of constitution and by-laws. The same authority says that the rules of a society, in a majority of cases, may be conveniently divided into the four classes of constitution, by-laws, rules of order, and standing rules, though in some societies all the rules are found under one of these heads, being called either the constitution, or the by-laws, or the standing rules.

Slandering the Pig

We often say someone is "a dirty pig," but little do we realize that we are slandering the poor pig. This little animal is naturally clean and will not wallow or sleep in filth unless nothing better is available. Pigs are among the cleanest of all farm animals if allowed to be so, asserts a writer in Pearson's London Weekly. Most pigs are "pigs" because their owners force them to live and bathe in dirty places. Neither is the pig more lazy than other animals, if allowed his freedom.

Girl, Aged Five
Swallows Mirror

After swallowing a small mirror at her home on Tuesday night, Louise DeGorio, aged 5, of 398 Centre st., Newton, was removed to the Newton Hospital. X-rays were taken to locate the mirror, believed to be similar to those used by dentists, and physicians expressed the belief that its removal could be accomplished without the necessity of an operation. The girl found the mirror, brought it home, and fearing that she might swallow it, her mother took it away from her. Later the girl's brother informed his mother that she had taken it again and on going to her the child said that she had swallowed it. When she complained of a pain in her stomach the child's father hastened to Newton Corner where he informed Patrolman Guy Litchfield and Thomas Concannon of the incident. They had her taken to the hospital in a police car.

Pushes Arm Thru
Window, Gets Cut

Ambrose Flanagan, 17, of 87 Pearl st., Newton, severed an artery in his left hand on Monday night when he jumped on the running board of a friend's car on Gale st. near the Water-town-Newton line and showed his left arm through the window of the car, thinking that the window was open. He was taken to a drug store at Newton Corner where Patrolman Charles Walker stopped the flow of blood from the artery by using his police club to apply pressure on a tourniquet. Flanagan was taken to the Newton Hospital in the police ambulance.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"Christ Jesus" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, on Sunday, August 28. "The Golden Text is: 'Thou, Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting' (Micah 5: 2). Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "And when he had called unto him his twelve disciples, he gave them power against unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal all manner of sickness and all manner of disease" (Matthew 10: 1). The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus instructed his disciples whereby to heal the sick through Mind instead of matter. . . . In Latin the word rendered disciple signifies student; and the word indicates that the power of healing was not a supernatural gift to those learners, but the result of their cultivated spiritual understanding of the divine Science, which their Master demonstrated by healing the sick and sinning" (p. 271).

'Mud Skippers,' Rare Fish

That Often Leave Water

Fish out of water are on view in the Aquarium's Tropical hall in London. They are known as mud skippers. They have been accommodated in a large case furnished with half-submerged branches, miniature gravel beaches, etc.—the better to display the creature's unique habits.

These brackish-water fish have to a remarkable degree succeeded in conquering the land. The eyes being virtually raised upon stalks, the fish can enjoy a clear view of insects living above water line, and often leave the water in pursuit of such insects, pursuing them along tree branches, besides stalking them on land much as might a lizard.

By means of its wide-spreading breast fins and pliant tail the mud skipper can scuffle and even leap with such rapidity as to render its capture as difficult as that of a grasshopper. While out of water the gill-chambers of the fish are kept filled with air.

Prolonged exposure to sun and air would quickly tell upon the eyes of a normal fish. The mud skipper, however, safeguards its organs of sight against drying up by frequently lubricating them, withdrawing them into their sockets and rolling them about, an operation ludicrously suggestive of winking.

Temple of Solomon Built

Without Sound of Tools

The temple of Solomon differed from every structure, in that the ears of men never heard the sound of chisel, trowel, hammer, or ax lifted upon its material. The ax shaped the cedars 200 miles distant in the mountains of Lebanon under King Hiram, and the workmen, whose names are unknown, floated down the cedars to Joppa, and from Joppa conveyed them to Jerusalem correctly fitted to occupy their respective places. Near the Damascus gate is a shaft leading to a large quarry where the blocks and columns were fashioned and, when finished, brought to the rising temple. The very discolorings from the torches of the workmen may still be seen upon the stones within the quarry. This silence observed seems to point to the noiseless procession going on in the development of moral character.

What Meteorites Reveal

Meteorites, the meteors that fall to earth, are messengers of regimentation. They indicate that in all the vast cosmos there are only about 90 chemical elements, and that those on the farthest sun are no different than those on earth. Nature everywhere is regimented by these 90 forms of matter. The analysis of meteorites has been made for the American Chemical society by Dr. Jacob Papish, head of Cornell university's department of chemistry. Meteors not only come from the solar system, but also from outer space. They are the only tangible messengers man has of the presence of other worlds. In the meteorites, the spectroscopic and chemical analysis have shown the great majority of the known chemical elements.

May Apples

May apples are among the most attractive flowers of our woods, with their waxy white blossoms nodding between the paired, umbrella-like leaves. The round, lobed shape of the leaves has given the plant its scientific name, Podophyllum, which means foot-leaf. And that, in turn, has given the name podophyllin to the active principle of the drug extracted from the underground root-stocks of the May apple, used in medicine as an active cathartic. The common name of the plant comes from the small, pulpy fruit.

Heroine of Surgery

Mrs. Jane Todd Craeford, pioneer heroine of surgery, in 1809 rode 60 miles on horseback from her home near Greensburg, Ky., to submit to a surgical operation by Dr. Ephraim McDowell of Danville, Ky. There was no anesthesia at the time and she was fully conscious throughout the 25-minute ordeal. She recovered and lived for over 32 years. On May 30, 1935, she was honored by a monument erected in her memory by the Kentucky Medical association. It was placed beside that erected in 1879 in Danville to Doctor McDowell.

Practical Training

Mrs. Timkins was taking her son to school for the first time and, after impressing the teacher with the necessity of his having a thorough education, finished up by saying, "And be sure he learns Latin." "But, my dear madam," said the teacher, "Latin is a dead language." "All right," said Mrs. Timkins, "he'll want it. He's going to be an undertaker."

An Old English Custom

Several centuries ago, the ecclesiastical courts of England prohibited marriage not only between distantly related relatives by blood but also between relatives by affinity. Thus, sisters-in-law and brothers-in-law were as incapable of contracting marriage as natural brothers and sisters, notes a writer in Collier's Weekly, as were the children of husbands and wives by former marriages.

Strike at Drug Store Causes Fight

As a result of a strike which has been underway at the Liggett Drug Stores, Francis Corrigan, 19, of 22 Elmwood st., Newton, was in the Newton court on Thursday charged with assaulting Milton Goldman, 31, of Dorchester, assistant manager at the Newton Centre store of the company where Corrigan had been an employee. Goldman told the court that four employees at the Newton Centre store went out on strike on Tuesday afternoon and on that night Corrigan went into the store with a young woman striker and bought sodas. Goldman testified that Corrigan told him he needed a shave, and the complainant replied by asking Corrigan "Have you any razor blades to sell." He said that Corrigan took the remark as an implication at his honesty and challenged Goldman to fight. When Goldman came out of the store after midnight, he and Corrigan became engaged in a fist fight, with Goldman apparently getting the worst of the scrap. Judge Murray placed the case on file.

Speeder Thinks Law Is Unreasonable

Oscar Kazanjian, 29, of Blakeley rd., West Medford, was found guilty by Judge Allen in the Newton court last Friday of speeding. As it was Kazanjian's second conviction for such an offence within a year, Judge Allen had to impose the mandatory fine of $25. The defendant obviously was unaware of the law as he commented that the fine was unreasonable. The judge suggested that he take the matter up with the Legislature. Another speeder fined $25 for a second conviction within a year was Clinton Carlson, 21, of Rutland st., Watertown. Among those fined $5 for speeding were: Norman Erlandson, Wellesley; George Balcom, Natick; Anthony Stefany, Woodcliff rd., Newton Highlands. For disregarding "Stop" signs at through streets the following West Newton residents were fined $3 each: Beckett Jones, 294 Chestnut st.; Walter Dunn, 5 Taft ave.; Nicholas Till, 17 Eden ave.

Donnelly of 87 Waban park, Newton, driver of one of the cars, received a cut on her left knee. Mrs. Mary E. Murphy of 58 Gardner st., Newton, a passenger in the Donnelly car received injuries to her nose and Joseph H. Bryson of 146 Pearl st., another passenger, received injuries to his mouth and right knee. The driver of the other car, Eugene Frechette of 6 Fordham rd., West Newton and his passengers, Jacob Pass and Mrs. Anna Pass of 21 Pond st., Watertown, and Mrs. Ida Pass of 8 Silver Lake ave., Newton, were treated for injuries at the home of Mrs. Ida Pass by a physician.

Tells About Hollywood

By OLIVE M. JONES

The people of Newton are always very proud indeed whenever any of its citizens—or former citizens—distinguish themselves in some particular field of endeavor. An outstanding instance presented itself last week when it was our pleasure to interview Miss Priscilla Fortescue, well known in the world of broadcasting. To those of us in the know she is the former Priscilla Cowper, daughter of the James E. Cowpers of Berkshire rd., Wellesley Hills, while for the past thirteen years, since her graduation from Wellesley College and an immediate trip to England, she has been the wife of Henry A. Fortescue of 24 Ash st. in Auburndale.

A Colorful Person

Miss Fortescue is such a vivacious, colorful sort of person one would never suspect she is one of our young matrons, much less that she is the mother of two children fast growing up—Patricia, eleven, and Peter, nine. Nevertheless, this most enterprising young woman, who was at one time an aircaster for WAAZ, and who for the past six months has been in Hollywood, with headquarters at various moving picture studios, is in the East again not only renewing acquaintance with her husband and children but also contacting agencies here in reference to her educational radio program for the coming fall. She is a versatile person, and has apparently adopted many traditions of the great West in her general view of things.

Multitude of Experiences

Out of the multitude of experiences in both broadcasting and films, Miss Fortescue generously recounted many fascinating highlights. We were particularly pleased to have her tell about the screening of "Robin Hood," a Warner Bros. production, that most recent of films. She said that in order to procure the proper setting it was necessary to transport the whole company, with all properties, a distance of six hundred miles from Hollywood. The place chosen was a virgin forest in Chico, California, which was presented to that city by one Col. Birdwell with the understanding that if alcoholic liquors were ever served on its premises the land would revert to his heirs. It took one hundred freight cars to transport the entire load of ox carts, costumes, scenery, etc. It is amazing to learn that those gigantic trees among which Robin Hood and his merry outlaws camouflaged themselves with endless ropes of vines festooned from branch to branch, and from which those hardy fellows swung themselves above hither and thither while we sat breathless, were not real trees at all. They were marvelous creations of the studio transported to the forest of Chico in those hundred freight cars because the actual trees in the forest were too precious to be trusted with the weight of so many strong, mischief-making men! And the trick archery in "Robin Hood," Miss Fortescue explained, was none other than Howard Hill, a native of Newton and accredited the foremost exponent of archery in America. His tricks in the film certainly thrilled everyone! Incidentally, members of the cast were constantly having "archery parties" while on location, and Miss Fortescue told us she also entertained at one, with all the notables present.

Absolutely No Fashion

To return to the city of screenland, Miss Fortescue declared from actual observation—not from any publicity propaganda of any sort—that there is absolutely no fashion in dress in Hollywood as we see it here in the East, in shop windows, etc. Slacks or shorts are worn invariably and one sees them everywhere. She said, astonishingly enough to us, that all during her stay there this winter she felt she could truly say she had not once seen a real dinner jacket being worn. She said, also, that the actors on the whole are human and so surprisingly fun-loving, and yet most considerate and circumspect in their deportment. Among her friends, those who earn the huge salaries of from two to three thousand dollars a week will go and lie in the sun and rest whenever they have time off.

Screen-Life Is Brief

And since it is generally conceded that the average screen-life of a cinema star is five years, one must lay away a bit for the future when one's prestige begins to wane. Unfortunately, what with income taxes and high living expenses (a star must have a secretary), one has very little left to save, according to Jimmy Feidler's semi-weekly evening broadcasts. And are they afraid of Jimmy and just what he is going to tell us fans?

Cecil DeMille, that gracious gentleman, so considerate, so appreciative of the personal trials of the Cinema Colony, is very much beloved out there in California. And there is Spencer Tracy, so lovable on the screen, he is never serious, such a humorous sort of personality, and as for the Clark Gable fans, Miss Fortescue says he is as handsome off the screen as on.

Sky Giants

Miss Fortescue said that "Sky Giants," now released in Boston by RKO, is a fascinating picture which we must see—she was on the set each day of production. She even told us a secret about the snow scene—there was no real snow, of course, but the illusion was made by salt glued to boards, fastened together sectionally. Even a mountain peak was constructed in this manner, while enormous real evergreen trees were covered with artificial snow.

Among her personal anecdotes about the notables in Hollywood, Miss Fortescue told about Chester Morris, an amusing sort of person who is appearing in "Sky Giants." She recalled how he was required to play the violin, and received only one lesson in the proper way to hold a fiddle. He plays away with great zest, imitating the correct manner—as best he can, but, very naturally, the most awful squawks were forthcoming. True to Hollywood magic, in the picture itself one hears only the lovely music played by a member of the studio orchestra who "dubs" for Chester. Mr. Morris is really a professional magician, with membership in the American Society of Magicians.

Just at the psychological moment for Hollywood publicity, Chester was awarded the first prize for card tricks at a convention held in Southern California, winning over 1000 contestants. While on the set at RKO, he kept the crew in constant bewilderment with this hobby of his, and entertained Miss Fortescue on the side so that she never missed a casting.

Pat O'Brien

Miss Fortescue is acquainted with the much-admired Pat O'Brien and in the taking of a picture, she said, the photographer was constantly saying, "Can't you sit a little closer?" while Pat kept saying under his breath, "We might get sued for this picture." She said that Pat and Dick Powell and Priscilla Lane are "tops" in one of Warner's newest pictures, "Cow Boy from Brooklyn."

Pat O'Brien says he wants more than anything to do a play in New York with Spencer Tracy, his boyhood friend. Pat feels he'd like to do "the legitimate" again but feels California is the place for his children.

Miss Fortescue told us she played the part of one of the "jail birds" in "Condemned Women," which many of you have seen. She said that one of her most devoted "fans" happens to be her proud father, who visited her in Hollywood and was widely entertained at Paramount and at Warner's, lunching on the set very frequently. He is a regular attendant at the movies and is familiar with all the character actors and "bit" players.

Certainly Miss Fortescue possesses many of the qualities, such as persistency and enthusiasm, so necessary nowadays. She is at present summering with her family on her parents' farm "Midmount" in Hill, New Hampshire. It is located about five miles from Hill or Bristol or Hanbury. This farm has been owned by the Cowpers for about 35 years. It is of interest to observe that Miss Fortescue is "pinch hitting" this week, broadcasting over WNAC. As plans are now Miss Fortescue expects to return to Hollywood this early fall.

The Largest Lakes

Few Europeans realize the immense size of the American Great Lakes; but few Americans know that Lake Ladoga, lying between Finland and Russia, is the largest body of fresh water in Europe, being 130 miles long and 80 miles wide.

The republic of Colombia at the time made up of Venezuela, Colombia, Panama and Ecuador, was the first Latin American government to have its independence recognized by the United States (1822).

Names of Things We Eat

The names of the things we eat have curious derivations. The humble vegetable, parsley, for instance, traveled from Greek to Latin, from Latin to Saxon, and from thence to its present form. It actually has the same origin as the name Peter (a rock), for it grew among the rocks of ancient Rome. Potato is from the Spanish patata, which, in turn, says Pearson's London Weekly Magazine, came from the Haytian batata, a sweet-tasting type of yam. The word sweet goes back to the Sanscrit svad—to taste; and sugar has also come to us from the same ancient language, via Persian, Arabic, Spanish and French. The Sanscrit for sugar was caraka, which first meant "grains of sand."

The Fiscal Year

The fiscal year is the year between one annual time of settling accounts and another. Our government fiscal year begins July 1 and ends June 30. The fiscal year is always spoken of as being in the calendar year in which it ends. Originally our fiscal year ended September 30, but in 1843 it was changed to June 30 in order to give department heads more time to prepare their reports for the opening of congress in December.

Duties of a Toastmaster

A toastmaster presides at festive occasions, wedding breakfasts, banquets and the like, calls upon those present to respond to toasts, or introduces after-dinner speakers. He is a general master of ceremonies. Usually he has prepared brief introductory speeches, interspersed with appropriate quips or jokes.

Dog Develops Ownership

The idea of property and ownership is very deeply rooted in human nature and is even shared with man by many of the lower animals. It is highly developed in the dog, which resents and resists any attempt of a stranger to take property that the dog considers his own or associates with his master.

Want Court St. Made "One Way"

Thirty-two residents and property owners on Court st., Newtonville, all but two residing in the area affected, have petitioned that the street be restricted to "one-way" traffic. The petition is as follows:

"We, the residents of Court st., Newtonville, respectfully apply to the Board of Aldermen of the city of Newton to have Court st. made a one-way st., running from Central ave. eastward to Washington st., and that parking be permitted on the north side of the street only, because Court st. is very narrow and when cars are parked on both sides it is practically impossible for a third car to get through."

Cars Collide at Chestnut Street

A collision in which three persons were injured occurred last Friday evening at 7:45 at the corner of Chestnut and Prince sts., West Newton. Louise M. Sullivan of 187 Washington st., Taunton, driver of one of the cars, Gertrude M. Sullivan of the same address, and Mrs. Edward J. McGrath of 93 Washington st., Taunton, received severe cuts and bruises and were treated by a physician. Herbert W. Chesley of 3 Sagamore st., Newton Highlands, operator of the other car, told the police that he was proceeding north on Chestnut st. when the other car came out of Prince st. He said he applied his brakes but it was too late to avoid a collision and his car struck the other one on the left side.

Faulty Furnaces Cause Fire Scares

Engines 2 and 5 and Ladder 1 responded to a call at 12:32 on Saturday to the house at 15 Prospect st., West Newton, where it was found that a faulty draft in the furnace in which rubbish was being burned had caused the house to be filled with smoke. At 2:22 the apparatus responded to a call to the house at 271 Waltham st., West Newton, where a similar condition was found. On Sunday morning at 12:02 a blaze was discovered at the Milliken Machine Company, 25 Prospect pl., on the outside wall of the building, which was quickly extinguished.

Many instances of dogs stowing away on boats or automobiles have come to my attention, but to my knowledge there has been only one case of a dog boarding an airplane, unknown to the pilot. It happened when Pennsylvania was in the throes of the disastrous floods of 1936.

A plane arrived at the county airport in Pittsburgh bringing needed medical and food supplies to that stricken area from Baltimore. An attendant on opening the luggage compartment was surprised to see a small brown and white female dog spring out. Nobody could account for the animal's presence on the plane. Wide newspaper and radio publicity was given the incident, with a description of the dog, but no one claimed the animal.

The Pennsylvania Airlines very graciously agreed to return the dog to Baltimore, where it was thought she had boarded the supply plane and which was probably the city where her owner resided. The dog's return was widely heralded in Baltimore newspapers, but still no one admitted ownership.

The animal was turned loose by airport officials with the idea that she would go to her former home. She was followed, but merely gave her followers a tour of the airport, ending by returning to a hangar, curling up in a corner and going to sleep. After two weeks of fruitless searching it was decided to accept one of the offers that had been received to adopt the homeless animal, with the stipulation that her new master would not let her wander near the airport where she might again be tempted to climb aboard a plane.

Travelers on the liner Queen Mary who desire to take their dogs abroad with them will find that excellent accommodations for their pets have been provided.

On the sports deck of this luxurious liner is a section set aside for the exclusive dog traveler. There are 26 rooms, each with hot and cold running water and other appointments suggestive of resort hotel advertisements. Trained attendants are provided to care for the pets of passengers, walking, brushing and feeding them according to strict dietary schedules.

Pleurisy is a common ailment of the dog, especially those breeds which are frequently bathed. Thorough drying of the animal is often neglected with the result that inflammation of the chest cavity develops.

Symptoms of this condition are manifested by loss of appetite, awkward gait in walking, sharp pain when changing a position, or the dog might cry out if suddenly picked up. A pet that is usually very docile may bite anyone who applies pressure over the ribs, so great is the resultant pain.

Treatment for this condition should of course be administered by a veterinarian if possible. If one is not available first give the dog a mild laxative and then dissolve a half pound of Epsom salts in two quarts

Newton Hospital Employee Arrested

As a result of several minor fires which have occurred at the Newton Hospital Inspectors King and Burke of the Newton police went to the hospital on Wednesday in an effort to discover who might be responsible for the fires, the last of which occurred a couple of days ago in a store room. The policemen were told, after arriving at the hospital that Guy Chapman, 58, of Pleasant st., Brookline, employed as a houseman at the hospital, had a revolver in his possession. Burke and King searched Chapman's room, found the revolver and placed its owner under arrest as he is an alien. Chapman was born in Canada and although he has been in this country for over 20 years, he is not naturalized. In Chapman's room the officers also found alleged obscene pictures and literature. In the Newton court on Thursday Chapman was sentenced by Judge Murray to serve 6 months in prison for having the obscene literature, and one month for having the revolver. The judge then suspended the sentence because of Chapman's previous good record.

Eliot Speaks To Building Trades

Thomas H. Eliot of Cambridge, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congressman from the 9th District will speak at Nonantum Hall, 251 Washington st., Newton, tonight to members of the Newton Building and Construction Trades Council. At the recent State Convention of the A. F. of L. in Worcester it was voted to endorse candidates for political office who are favorable to the "New Deal" program of President Roosevelt, and as Eliot has been closely associated with the Roosevelt administration, it is expected that he will receive the endorsement of the Newton Building Trades Council. Mr. Eliot was a former Assistant Solicitor in the Department of Labor. He was the recipient of praise from President Roosevelt for his work in framing the Social Security Act in 1935, and his subsequent service as General Counsel for the Social Security Board.

The meeting tonight will be presided over by Frank Burke, president of the Massachusetts Building and Construction Trades. Guy Hopwood and George Sobrielski, President and Secretary of the Newton Council will speak.

of boiling water. When cool enough so that you can put your fingers in it, apply with a towel wrapping it around the chest.

Do this five or six times in succession with the solution as hot as the dog will stand it.

Take a piece of soft flannel, cut four holes for the paws and draw it up tightly around the chest, fastening it with safety pins along the back. In severe cases before putting the flannel jacket on the dog, place two or three layers of absorbent cotton around the chest wall with shaved gum camphor between the layers. Allow this to remain three or four days before removing.

Remesin is the most beneficial internal medicine for pleurisy. If prompt treatment is administered to a dog with pleurisy development of more dangerous symptoms, such as pneumonia, can be prevented.

Among the many laws promulgated by the Nazi regime in Germany are a few designed for the protection of dogs. A two year jail term threatens any one who illtreats a dog in a manner that causes it to suffer pain or damage.

Dogs may not be trained to chase foxes or other animals. Foxhounds who once were used as hunting dogs are now securely locked in their kennels or kept well in hand as their owners know from widely publicized examples that if their pets were to get loose and chase after a fox the owner might repose in a Nazi jail for many months.

A dog's age multiplied by seven will give the equivalent human development. A dog five years old compares in a dog's span of life to that of a human being thirty-five years of age, etc.

Question: What is the best punishment to give a dog who disobeys or does something he shouldn't?—L.M.C.
Answer: A rebuke is the keenest punishment for a well-trained dog, as his whole training should be built upon love of his master.

Question: At what age does a puppy start to lose his milk or puppy teeth?—G. R. T.
Answer: You will notice that they start to drop out when the puppy nears his sixth month or thereabouts.
